then came dramatizations of many of the familiar characters of the nursery and of the popular fables. The pied piper of Hamlin, the old woman who lived in a shoe, Jack and Jill and many of the others were there, almost as realistic as they appeared in the old story-books and twice as active. The domestic science department of the local High School also had an attractive float.

The Dalles fire department had a prominent part in the line. The local fife and drum corps furnished the music for this division.

The parade for the most part was a successful effort on the part of the local committee to present, by contrasts, the evolution of transportation from pioneer days to the present time.

For instance, an old-fashioned highwheeled bicycle was followed by an upto-date motorcycle, and the first automobile that came to The Dalles was followed by a 1915 model bearing the license number 16,393, indicating its recent purchase.
