Multnomah last night, fer which the Jay March Fetters were hosts for the members of the Monday Night and Friday Night Dancing clubs, a number of the merrymakers made up number of the merrymakers made up little dinner parties at the grille. One of the largest of these gatherings included Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Mears, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Gamble, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ames, Mr. and Mrs. R. Patterson Effinger, Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Skene, Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Skene, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Farrell, Mr. and Mrs. Bert C. Ball, Dr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. Alma D. Katz; Major, and Mrs. H. C. Jewett, who are newcomers to Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bertram Mackay, Henry Teal and Bodney L. Glisan. . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Edward David Roberts, of San Bernardino, Cal., are the house guests of their sons-in-law and daugh-ters, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Schuyler Kamm and Mr. and Mrs. Walker Willia Kamm and Mr. and Mrs. Walker Willis Kamm. The young matrons entertained with a most delightful informal tea on Wednesday afternoon from 5 to 6 o'clock in honor of their charming mother. The guests numbered about 49, and the hostesses were assisted by Mrs. Kurt Koehler and Mrs. Charles C. Hindman, who presided at the exquisitely appointed tea table, and Miss Jean Morrison, who assisted in the drawing-room. A profusion of fragrant yellow roses and ferus adorned the dining-room and the drawing-room was decked with baskets of pink snapdecked with baskets of pink snap-dragon.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts will be in Portland for about a week, and are much in demand at social functions, although they are of an informal nature. They have many friends in and about Portland and are former residents of Salem.

Miss Helen Smith, of New York, sister of Leigh Hackley Smith, arrived last night to be the house guest of Miss Jeannette Thomas. Miss Smith will be Miss Thomas' maid of honor, the wedding to be a notable event of Wednesday at St. Mark's Episcopal Church. Tonight Mrs. Marguerite Dosch Josselyn will be hostess for a small and informal dancing party at her home in Hillsdale, honoring Miss Thomas and Miss Smith. The guests will number about 24 of the younger set. . . .

For the benefit of the European suf-ferers, a large and elaborate dance will be given on the evening of Thursday, May 20, at Hotel Benson by the Jewish Women's Endeavor Society. A long list of prominent men and women will act as patrons for this affair, and it is creating considerable interest.

Miss Marguerite Templeton is among the first of the college girls to return home for the Summer vacation. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. C. R. Templeton, who has also enjoyed attending a course of lectures in the California University.

Mrs. Archibald R. Wright, president of St. Mark's Guild, will give a tea at her home, 54 East Sixth street South, on Saturday, May 22, from 3 to 6 o'clock, for the guild. Mrs. J. E. H. Simpson and Mrs. Edward Hall will receive with the hostess. A musical programme has been arranged. All friends of the parish are invited. Brocklyn car. Brooklyn car.

St. Mary's Cathedral Court of the Women's Cathelic Order of Foresters has completed arrangements for an informal May party to be given in the New Cathedral Hall tonight. The following officers are responsible for the affair: Miss Katherine Quinn, Miss Marjoric Mackinnon and Miss Winifred Raiston, assisted by John W. Mackinnon, John J. Kenny, Frank Elvers and Emmet Douglas, The patronesses will be: Mrs. W. A. Elvers, Mrs. M. J. Driscoll, Mrs. E. H. Deery, Mrs. P. ney of the City Health Bureau and proprietors of the principal cafeterias of the city, coverings are to be provided at once for all tables or shelves upon which food stuffs are kept. The arrangement has been brought about without the enactment of an ordinance as proposed some time ago.

The health officials have had much objection to the leaving of dishes of food on shelves where the food might be handled or touched by a person's clothing in reaching for another dish. Under the new plan these dishes and tables will be covered and the dish desired will be handed out by an attendant.

He remembered seeing a box under his wife's bed one day when he was looking for his slippers, and when he asked her what she kept in there she was very cross and said he was always poking his noze into everything, and she told him she kept old pieces of flannel and cloth in there.

And that was the thing of which Mr. Fox thought, so he jumped up and ran

He was too well pleased to be angry with Mrs. Fox, just then, so he closed the box and sild it under the bed again, then he brushed up all the crumbs, and, having had a good feast, he forgot all about being afraid of Mrs. Fox, so he curled up on the sofa and went to sleep and dreamed of his grandfather, because he had eaten so much plum pudding. So we will leave him dreaming and see what Mrs. Fox is doing.

"I suppose that Old Reddy Fox's wife is having a good breakfast while I go hungry," thought Mrs. Fox, as she trotted along, "that is if that lazy husband of mine has told the truth.

"Anyway, I will not starve," she said, thinking of the well-filled box she had stored under her bed. "I wonder," she said, and stopped as though to go back.

"Oh, he'll never think of it!" she said, and trotted toward the hole in the field.

But when Mrs. Fox came near the field she saw someone running shead of her; so, being very cautious always, she hid behind a rock and watched.

"It is Old Mrs. Reddy Fox," she said, stretching her neck. "Now, what is she doing over there, I wonder. Maybe she thinks she will find another goose or hen."

doing over there, I wonder. Maybe she thinks she will find another goose or hen."

Then Mrs. Fox thought of the breakfast she had lost and she trotted across the field right toward Old Mrs. Reddy. Mrs. Reddy saw her before she reached her, and she looked very cross. "Have you come to see if you can find another goose, Mrs. Fox? I assure you your wicked husband got all there was, the wretch. I suppose you are out for a walk to settle your breakfast, while I am starving, for all you care."

When Old Mrs. Reddy stopped to take a breath Mrs. Fox was staring at her. "Why, what do you mean?" she gasped. "My husband told me that Reddy Fox fell upon him and beat him and took away his breakfast, and then he threw him so he could not fight. I am the one who is hungry, madam, I can tell you. I have had no breakfast this morning."

"Wo hadem Reddy, I have not had any goose or hen, and I am afraid we have both been too trusting in believing our husbands. There is more to it to get to the bottom of this story."

Then Mrs. Fox and Mrs. Reddy told the story they had from their husbands it o get to the bottom of this story."

Then Mrs. Fox and Wrs. Reddy looked everywhere, but no sign of feathers or bones could they find. "Of course, they ate them and made up that story," said Old Mrs. Fox, "but where did they carry them? I wish I could find the spot. Nice husbands we have, Madam Reddy. They would let us starve while they have the fat of the land."

"My husband will not piay this trick again, I can tell you that, Mrs. Fox." said Mrs. Reddy. Up jumped Mr. Fox, howling: "I won't do it again, grandpa. I am sorry I took your pipe."

"You will need more than your grandfather to help you this time, you wicked creature," said Mrs. Fox, siving him another bang with the rolling pin. "You and Old-Reddy are nice villains, eating all the breakfast from your poor wives and telling us you were robbed. I'll teach you not to try it again," and this time the rolling pin came down on Mr. Fox's back; but he was at the door by this time, and out he went, running into the woods and out of sight and hearing of Mrs. Fox's out of sight and hearing of Mrs. Fox's seem to be well enough now, and your shoulder, too."
