PATRIOTIC SPIRIT IS KEEN

Gathering at Arlington Cemetery
Demonstrates International Situation Is Uppermost in Mind.
Tribute Paid Veterans.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Eulogies of America's soldier and sailor dead were voiced here today by President Wilson, Secretary Bryan, Secretary Daniels and Governor Willis, of Ohio, at impressive Memorial day exercises at Arlington National Cemetery. Large crowds flocked on every opportunity to show that the present international situation was uppermost in their minds. President Wilson, cheered on his arrival and departed during his address, carefully avoided any direct reference to problems now facing the United States. He was enthusiastically applauded and declared that "Greater days lie before this Nation than it has ever yet seen, and the solemn consciousness of the magnitude of office in this time is that they must make their best endeavor to embody in what they do and say the best things in the United States."

Governor Willis evoked applause when he said: "The President of the United States is making a magnificent effort to keep out the broils of Europe," and added: "Now is the time to keep cool, think carefully, and stand by the President."

Patriotic Support Urged.
"He and his Cabinet know vastly more of our delicate relations with European belligerents than the rest of us can possibly know," he said, "and his hands in the patriotic effort he is making in this crisis."

The President sat in the midst of veterans of two wars during the exercises and uttered an audible "Amen" at the conclusion of an invocation by Bishop Earl Cranston, of Washington, who prayed that the United States might be led aright in the present crisis.

"I have no come here today to deliver an address, but merely reverently to take part in expressing the sentiment of this impressive day. It is not necessarily a day of reminiscence. Reminiscence is not always a profitable exercise. It generally belongs to those, appropriately to those only, who have left the active stage of life and have nothing to think about except the things that are gone and dead."

Memories Are Stimulating.
"It does not behoove a nation to walk with its eyes over its shoulder. Its business is constantly in the years that lie ahead of it and in the present that challenges it to the display of its powers. But there are reminiscences which are stimulating and wholesome, and among those reminiscences are chiefly to be ranked the recollections of days of heroism—days when great nations found it possible to express the best that was in them by the ardent enthusiasm of every power that was in them."

"That is what gives dignity to a day like this. It is not a day of regret; it is not a day of weeping; it is not a day of stimulation. But, my friends, these stimulating memories we are sometimes told, are not to be cherished. We do not see that full significance of them. We are constantly speaking of the great war of which we think today as a war which ended the Union, but it did, indeed, save the Union, but it was a war that did a great deal more than that. It created in this country what had never existed before—the national consciousness. It was not the salvation of the Union; it was the rebirth of it. It was the time when America for the first time realized its unity and saw the vision of its united destiny."

Solemn Lesson Cited.
"The solemn lesson of these memories for us is not that we must be ready to save the Union again, for there are none among us who threaten its life; but that we must see to it that the unity then realized, the vision then seen, is exemplified in us and the things that we do. There is no stimulation in any lesson unless it be the stimulation to duty. There is no stimulation in any occasion if it be merely the pleasure of recollection; it must also be the ardor and courage of hope. Greater days lie before this Nation than it has ever seen yet; and the solemn consciousness of those who bear office in this time is that they must make their best endeavor to embody in what they do and say the best things in the United States."

"It does not do to talk too much about one's self, and I do not think that it is wholesome for the United States to talk too much about itself. I do not want to know what you are today so much as I want to know what you are going to do tomorrow. The only test I know of that is competent to determine what you are is the test of what you do. Let us not think of our characters; let us think of our duties and of the actions that lie before us."

Self Cultivation Deplored.
"I have always maintained that the man who lives to cultivate his own character will result only in cultivating an intolerable pride, because his pride will be himself. Character, my friends, is a by-product. It is produced in the great manufacture of daily life. But it is not easy to determine.
"Duty for a nation is made up of so many complicated elements that no man can determine it. No group of men without wide common council can possibly determine what the duty of the day is. That is the strength of a democracy, because there daily rises in the great body of a democracy the expression of an untrammelled opinion, which seems to be the duty of the day. It is the duty of the day, and suggestions of duty, and those who stand at the head of affairs have it as their bounden duty to endeavor to express in their actions those things that seem to rise out of the conscience and hope and purpose of the great body of the people themselves."

Renewed Devotion Is Asked.
"America, I have said, was reborn by the struggle that she has lived through. But America is reborn every day of her life by the purposes we form, the conceptions we entertain, the hopes that we cherish. We live in our visions. We live in the things we see. We live, and hope abounds in us as we live, in the things that we see. Let us go away from this place renewed in our devotion to daily duty and those ideals which keep a nation young. Let us go noble, keep it rich in enterprise and achievement; make it to lead the nations of the world in those things that make for hope and for the benefit of mankind."

day by J. W. Greene, of the Greene Security Company.
"We will inaugurate 2 1/2-cent fares within the next 10 days, when our order for special tickets will be filled. These tickets, each of them good for a trip over the North Monroe street route, will be sold at $3.50 for 100.
"While it will be necessary to purchase tickets in 100 lots to get the advantage of the 2 1/2-cent rates, passengers on the large cars will be given a ticket for another ride with each ticket they pay into the register."

ITALY AND RUSSIA GREET Pervent Wishes for Victory Are Ex- changed by Rulers.

ROME, via Paris, May 31.—King Victor Emmanuel has sent the following message to the Russian Emperor:
"At the moment when the soldiers of Italy are advancing boldly against the common enemy, binding closer the brotherhood of arms between us and the brave Russian army, I send to Your Majesty, with joyful heart, cordial greetings and fervent hopes."
The Emperor replied:
"I am deeply touched by the considerate thought of Your Majesty. I desire to express to you the great pleasure I feel at seeing our two armies united by the bonds of brotherhood, and I beg Your Majesty to accept my most fervent wishes for victory."

ENGLAND SAYS GERMANY IS TRYING FOR DELAY

British Press Refers Pointedly to Attack on Megantic as Applied to Answer to President Wilson's Note—Berlin's Reply Displeases.

LONDON, May 31.—Commenting on the German reply to the American note concerning the Lusitania incident, the Manchester Guardian says:
"We do not know how long the war will last, but it is clear, if Germany has her way, that it will be a long one. The German blockade, still dragging out their inevitable length.
"The German note does not even reply directly to the American suggestions and actions as the sinking of the Lusitania should have been. The note actually has the effect of adding to the evidence of the explosion of ammunition which, it is believed, was saved in the face of the official statement of the Collector of the Port of New York that no guns mounted or otherwise were on board.
"It is the posture of the German note that only indicates the measure of her self-deception. When Washington wants to discuss submarine attacks on neutral vessels on the plane of an international policy, Berlin replies by arguments and technicalities."
Morning Standard—We do not believe that President Wilson will call into the trap laid by Germany to whom she wishes to allow the indignation of the American public to cool off. The latest Berlin warning to American shipping is not calculated to modify the situation created not merely by the tragedy of the Lusitania, but by the attempt to sink the Nebraska, which was even more flagrant.
Morning Post—It is not for Great Britain to give advice to the United States in such a case as this, and if the United States is driven into the war it will not be by the arguments of the belligerents, but by the course of events. But even if the Lusitania had munitions aboard that would not have justified the sinking of the Lusitania, but only in setting her as a prize for examination. The German reply entirely fails to meet the American demand, and remains for President Wilson to take the next step.
Daily Mail—Germany's reply shows a complete failure to understand the temper of the American people or to meet the American case. A more sneering or contemptuous reply or a flatter refusal to take the American Government seriously could hardly be imagined. Unless we greatly mistake, President Wilson is not going to be deceived by the sophistries with which the sages of Wilhelmstrasse seek to avoid giving a plain answer to his plain question.

"On the Vostial frontier: An artillery battle is raging. The attack was begun by our heavy artillery."
ITALIANS TAKE STRONG FORTS
Invasion of Austria Continues From Three Directions.
ITALIAN FRONTIER, via Paris, May 31.—The Italian invasion of the province of Trent is progressing from the south along the Adige and Chiave rivers, from the west across the Tonale Pass, and from the east by the way of the Lagoraine Plateau. The attack of the Italians is continuing all along the line, up to the highest part north, where they have occupied the Ampezzo Valley, together with the town of Cortina. Cortina, a Summer resort overlooking the village of Storo. It was to this point that the Italian volunteers in the war of 1848 penetrated and also overtook the village of Storo. It was here that the Italian army, under the headquarters of General Cadorna, radiating his action thence in the Giudicaria region. The Italians have conquered the group of fortifications commanding the passes leading to the vast entrenched camp which has its center at Trent.
These fortifications, some of which are modern and others old, constitute a wonderful system of defense.

LIBRARIANS IN SESSION

ADMINISTRATION PROBLEMS FORM

Representatives of Oregon, Wash-

Confer and Hear Talks.

SALEM, Or., May 31.—(Special).—Address and papers relating to the management of libraries were read today at the first session of the sixth annual conference of the Pacific Library Association, held in the Public Library of this city. More than 75 delegates were in attendance at the meeting tonight, and the number will be augmented tomorrow, when officers will be elected and other important business transacted.
Governor Withycombe delivered an address of welcome, to which George W. Her, president of the association, responded. In attendance from Oregon, Washington, Idaho and British Columbia compose the membership of the association, while the papers and essays today were as follows: "The Library Budget," Mrs. George T. Gerlinger, trustee Dallas Library; "The County Library," Mrs. J. H. Hitt, librarian Washington State Library; "Book Buying for Small Libraries," Miss Ellen G. Smith, librarian Walla Walla; "The Public Library," Miss Virginia McMaster, children's librarian, Albina branch, Portland; "The Untrained Librarian," Mrs. Ida A. Kilder, librarian Oregon Agricultural College; "Another Apology," Miss Lucia Haley, assistant cataloguer, Seattle Public Library.

Among the speakers tomorrow will be the following: Charles H. Compton, reference librarian, Seattle Public Library; Johanna Kaiser, librarian Tacoma Public Library; M. H. Douglass, librarian University of Oregon; Judson T. Jennings, librarian Seattle Public Library; Miss Anna H. Calhoun, head fine arts division, Seattle Public Library; E. O. S. Schofield, librarian Eugene; and Mrs. J. H. Hitt, librarian Ethel R. Sawyer, director training class, Library Association, Portland.

Swiss Observers Are of the Opinion that up to the present time the Italian forces have encountered mostly Austrian reserves. They will meet more determined resistance when seasoned troops from Russia come into action.
It is reported in Geneva that the Russians are feeling less pressure in Galicia. The suddenness of the Italian offensive surprised the Austrian and German leaders, and they have had to change their plans.

"YOUR HUSBAND IS FORTUNATE TO BE ABLE TO WEAR SUCH HANDSOME SUITS"

"Why, He Buys Them on CREDIT, Marcia!"

"AT CHERRY'S. And he never pays a high price! It really is one of my greatest comforts to have Frank buy his clothes at CHERRY'S, because it's usually so hard to get a man to spend a big sum all at once on a suit, and Frank simply swears by CHERRY'S INSTALLMENT PAYMENT SYSTEM."
"Marcia, you mean to use CHERRY'S influence on your husband and get him interested in buying his clothes ON CREDIT?"
"Well, all I go up to CHERRY'S store—It's in the Pittcock block, you know—and Frank's new suit will be ready for him then."
"Well, Frank can't not to say much, but to let your husband look around at the nifty suits. They will convince him! Especially when he hears how he can have his play clothes for so little by simply paying just a little down and the rest in convenient easy MONTHLY OR WEEKLY INSTALLMENTS."
His first visit to CHERRY'S CREDIT CLOTHING STORE is an event to any man. You'll sense your welcome when you step in the door.
Don't forget the place—339-291 Washington street, in the Pittcock block.
