BEAVERS WIN THEIR FIRST SUNDAY FRAY

After Being Humbled 9-0 in First Game, They Turn on Oaks to Tune of 4-2.

KLAWITTER GIVES NO RUNS

pecially in view of the fact that the day was sizzling and that Trainer Al Lean had to keep keep acks on the Oak players' heads to ward off suffocation.

players' heads to ward off suffocation.

Boyd, the Southern Leaguer, essayed to take Klawitter's place in the advertised second engagement, and Boyd Joined Bobby Keefe at the main gate a few moments later. With the score 4-0 in the seventh Shotputter Pruiett was sent in to relieve him. Higginbotham, too, felt the effects of the sun and Walter Mack yanked him in the eighth, after two runs had scored the frame after two runs had scored the frame before as a result of a boot by Ty Lober. Coveleskie twirled the last in-ning and a fraction in fine fashion. He fanned two of the three batsmen in the Big Crowd Turns Out.

Close to 5000 fans turned out for the bargain offering, and the great army of the unemployed stationed at the of the unemployed stationed at the turnstiles enjoyed the first real work-out in many weeks. "I don't care about Mexico," quoth "Genial Jack" Cook, vice-president of the Oaks, as he watched the turnstiles spin. "The more revolutions here the better."

Big Jack Ness was the hitting star of the day for the Oaks, with Jimmy Johnston as his aide-de-camp. Ness secured three hits in the first game, and delivered another when he went in as pinch hitter in the second affair. Ness drive scored one of the two Oak runs, drive scored one of the two Oak runs, and great was his joy thereof when Hig was pulled into the sarcophagus a minute or two later.

Johnston Steals Three Buses.

Johnston, who totes around a gold ticker on the strength of stealing 125 bases at San Francisco a couple of years ago, added to his 1915 totals by Fred Carisch hustled their throws in an effort to flag him, only to chuck the ball into centerfield on two occasions. Carisch finally did nab him once in the second game, and the crowd enjoyed it almost as much as a vaudeville joke

Gus Fisher bagged three of the six hits off Klawitter, and Bates was the satellite in the other affair. The shuf-fling third-sacker with the Bob Fitzsimmons underpinnings drove in two of the Beavers' four tallies, and thus can be halled as the real hero of the fray, Klawitter in Fine Form.

Fortland secured only six scattered hits off Klawitter—fair enough revenge for the terrible walloping Portland administered to the Dutchman the last time he made boasts about pitching a double-header about two years ago.

This time Klawitter was wise. One game satisfied his histrionic tastes, estable for the terrible walloping portland administered to the Dutchman the last time he made boasts about pitchers' battle.
