

PAYPOOL IN BRITISH CABINET CRITICISED

Members of Parliament Question Authority of Ministers in Dividing Salaries.

MUNITIONS BILL PASSES

Powers of Lloyd George Limited to Those of Other Government Departments by Adoption of Amendment to Measure.

LONDON, June 8.—The rather novel project of pooling their salaries, recently agreed to by the members of the new coalition ministry, by which each secretary draws yearly about $21,000 instead of some receiving $25,000 and others $10,000 or less, was sharply criticized in the House of Commons today in the course of the consideration of the salary of the Minister of Munitions.

Davidson Dalziel, Unionist, took the stand that if the secretaries thus distributed their pay, they were altering the amounts fixed by Parliament without consent of Parliament.

Sir Arthur B. Markham, Liberal, took a similar view. The only question before the House was whether the question of the "division of spoils" to which he strongly objected.

Agreement is Defended. Home Secretary Simon defended the arrangement, saying it was in every respect a domestic agreement among the men concerned, and he thought it was inadvisable to inquire into the matter.

Premier Asquith announced that he listened to such a discussion with surprise and pain. The only question before the House was whether the new Minister of Munitions was to receive a salary of £5000. If the House of Commons were to pass a resolution that money should be spent it would mean the end of decency in public life. The Premier for one denied the right of the House to discuss the matter.

The speaker ruled that the subject could be discussed, but he questioned the good taste of such a procedure.

"For God's sake let us quit this and be Britons," exclaimed F. G. Kellaway, Liberal, whereupon the House agreed to the report stage of the salary resolution.

The House passed the munitions bill on third reading.

On motion made by W. M. R. Fringie, Liberal, the House had previously adopted an amendment limiting the powers of the new ministry of munitions "to those already conferred by statute or by order of the government department or authority."

This apparently meets the objection that David Lloyd George, in his new office, would have unlimited power.

Miss Genevieve Frazier in Recital Displays Art.

Student of Godowsky, of Vienna, Returns From War Zone and Charms Portland Audience at Piano.

JUST as there are many shades of roses, and different tints in rare jewels, there are many kinds of pianists and different shadings and readings of their scores.

We have piano players, and those who have piano whippers.

Between these two extremes the path of piano safety lies, and here is where the piano lies of Miss Genevieve Frazier. She is a student of the famous Godowsky, of Vienna, and was quite busy with her studies with him when war broke out. She returned by way of Germany and England to this country.

Miss Frazier is a daughter of the late Judge Frazier, and those of us who remember her as a student recall the fine progress she made in her art under the tuition of J. R. Hutchinson, of this city.

Miss Frazier made her first concert appearance since her return from Vienna last night in Christendom's Hall, and charmed the large audience with her fine, polished piano playing. She clearly gifted, she is now so drilled and so competent in the piano art, that she is a real credit to this musical community. She is quite a neat little artist. Both her choice of piano selections and her style of playing them are on a high plane. She delights to play what are known in piano lore as "difficult things," such as the Bach "Suite in G Minor," the Brahms "Capriccio," the Reger "Three Humoresken" and the Debussy "La Soiree Dans Grenade," and make a hit. She did last night. Her Bach, Brahms, Chopin and Liszt were soft, clearly expressed and delicate. The fire and dynamics came out in the Reger, but over all the selections came the air of refinement and intellectuality. Miss Frazier was cordially greeted and applauded. "Well done" was often said to her.

EDWIN WHITMAN IS DEAD

Festival Song Author Passes Away at Age of 64.

Edwin M. Whitman, 4951 East Seventy-fourth street, completed his song for the festival song, "The Whole World Knows the Portland Rose," died suddenly at the Good Samaritan Hospital yesterday at 2:15 o'clock. Mr. Whitman became ill Monday.

He was born in Columbus, Ohio, in 1851 and would have been 64 years of age next month. He had been a resident of Portland since 1908.

Mr. Whitman leaves a wife and other relatives including: W. E. Whitman, and Miss Lucile Whitman, of Portland, and Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Benson, and F. M. Whitman, of Valley City, N. D.

PAVLOVA DELIGHTS MANY

Two Great Performances at Baker Complete Engagement.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

bearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

QUEEN TO BE AT OAKS

FESTIVAL RULER, OUTLINED IN FIRE, TO WATCH DISPLAY.

Elaborate Exhibition Tomorrow Night, When Court Will Attend as Guests of Mr. Cordray.

Queen Sybil, her entourage and attendants, will be the guests of Manager Cordray, of the Oaks, at the big annual fireworks display to be given at the amusement park tomorrow night at 9 o'clock.

A throne has been built for the queen in the most central part of the grounds and from this point of vantage she will be able to watch the display. Queen Sybil will travel to the Oaks in the private car of Franklin T. Griffith, president of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company.

The first rocket will be fired at once.

The throne will be outlined in fire, while flaming Roman candles will mark its corners so that it will be possible for thousands to see her.

The fireworks display will be of the grandest possible description, all the latest effects in pyrotechny being utilized.

No grandstands have been built this year because of the complaint that many thousands were thereby prevented from seeing the exhibition. Approximately 12,000 persons are expected on the fireworks display tomorrow night, and a similar sum Saturday night, when there will be another programme of fireworks.

BATTLE IS CONTINUOUS

ACTIVITY INCESSANT IN FLANDERS AND FRANCE.

French Report Added Gains in Famous Labyrinth—Germans Get One Aeroplane, British Two.

LONDON, June 8.—Official reports concerning the fighting in Flanders and France today indicate chiefly a continuation of the general war policy of the last few days. Fighting has been continuous, however, over a considerable part of the front and it is reported to have been exceedingly heavy at certain points. The names of Neuville-St. Vaast and the noted "labyrinth" continue to appear.

At the first-named place the French captured some more houses. In the "labyrinth" they increased their progress slightly.

There were violent German attacks, according to both Paris and Berlin, in the region of Hebuterne, where the French made gains Monday. Paris says the French are holding their ground in the face of reinforcements of two German battalions brought up by automobile. Berlin says of this engagement simply: "The battle continues."

Minor, but general, infantry attacks and almost incessant artillery activity are reported from many other points. The Berlin report says a flying machine over the enemy was shot down. Offsetting this, a brief report by Field Marshal Sir John French, of the British forces, says: "We have brought down two German aeroplanes, one opposite our right by gunfire, and the other in the neighborhood of Ypres as the result of an engagement in the air with one of our aeroplanes."

Woman Mother of Mayors.

ST. LOUIS, June 4.—Mrs. Minna Mollman has three sons. One, Fred W., has taken his seat as Mayor of East St. Louis. Another, Julius, has been elected Mayor of Mascoutah, Ill. The third was defeated by a slight margin in a Mayoralty election in St. Clair County.

What Do You Desire to Know About Portland Real Estate and Homes?

The largest home-building organization in the city extends a welcome to all visitors. Information pertaining to Real Estate and Home Building will be furnished by our experts on request.

Besides being the greatest builders of homes in Portland, we maintain Architectural, Material, Construction, Exchange and Land Departments.

THE OREGON HOME BUILDERS,

Oliver K. Jeffery, President,

13th Floor Northwestern Bank Bldg.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair and the spirit of the harvest time incarnate in her smile and dance. Many of Pavlova's admirers prefer this dance to her other famous one, "The Swan." She appeared in the title role of Amarella, a beautiful ballet drama founded on an episode in gypsy life as related in an old Hungarian folk song. Chopinina is an entirely novel ballet arranged by M. Ivan Chestine, who arranged also the music and dances in Amarella. The music in Chopinina was taken from Chopin's studies, preludes, valses and mazurkas, and offered nine beautiful numbers presented by Mlle. Pavlova, M. Volinine, M. Chestine and the entire company. M. Volinine's bow and quite as lively as that artist's. With M. Ostrowsky, Mlle. Pavlova gave a spirited dance of the XVIII period, and the clever little Mlle. Plaskovetzka, who is next of importance to Pavlova in the case given, arranged a pastiche with Strauss music. Artistically, financially, educationally and socially, the engagement was a success.

Two big performances at the Baker Theatre yesterday completed the engagement of the incomparable Mlle. Anna Pavlova. At the matinee two diversions, a set of ballets, Chopin from the ballet Coppelia were offered, and at the evening performance one diversion and two ballets, Chopin and Amarella, were given. In Coppelia Mlle. Pavlova appeared as Swanilda, with M. Volinine as Franz. She gave a series of three lively dances in the number, the first a variation of Slavonic themes, the second a pas de deux and the third a coda, with her imperial ballet as a background in the dance. In the diversion Mlle. Pavlova danced her marvelous and famous butterfly dance, appearing with a greenish gauze winged whet, and electrifying her audience with her grace and the beauty of her art. As a colorful dancing wind-blown California poppy, too, she called forth amazed exclamations of delight. M. Volinine appeared in this dance with Mlle. Pavlova and won praise for his own beautiful dancing. He gave, also, his pierrot dance, one of the big favorites of the Monday evening performance. Mlle. Pavlova's most beautiful dance of the afternoon and again at the evening performance was her L'Automne Bacchanale, an impassioned care-free dance in the green woods, with grapes woven in her hair