Are Men Naturally Untidy?
"WONDER" mused the Clubwoman, "if a man were put on one desert island and a woman on another, if the man wouldn't in the course of time have his island all cluttered up with banana skins and ashes from camp fires and such things and the women have her all neat and pretty, with flower beds in the front yard and the walks bordered with seashells."

"Of course that is what would happen," grimly assented the Old Maid. "One doesn't need to wonder about that. Did you ever see a tidy man?"
"Yes, I have seen some, but I'll confess not many."
"You ought to have exhibited the ones you caught," tartly observed the Old Maid, "and let the rest of the world see them. A man is a naturally untidy animal."

"That's the point I am wondering about. Is he naturally untidy or is the untidiness he shows the result of lack of training? The other day a party of us got caught in a storm and had to take refuge in a lumberman's shack out in the woods. The rain was coming down in torrents and the door was unfastened we fled into the place for shelter. I do not think I ever saw such a dirty room. The floor was smeared with grease, the tea towel or what answered for a tea towel, was unspokeable, the coffee pot blackened with smoke, the floor littered with the dirt that comes from making a wood fire. The windows looked as if they had not been washed since the cabin had been built. I do not believe a woman, no matter how hard she might have to work, would have been content to live in such a place. But this man evidently was not. And I have noticed often that when men rough it their surroundings are untidy and dirty."

"It isn't only when they rough it that they are untidy," grimly retorted the Old Maid. "You should see my brother's room all the time. If I didn't straighten it up for him it would be a disgrace."
"That's just the point," said the Clubwoman. "Are men naturally untidy or are they so because women have always straightened up after them, they have never been trained into habits of tidiness."
"Both," rejoined the Old Maid. "The Clubwoman laughed. "There are untidy men of course."
"Precious few."

"But in regard to the average man and the average woman," went on the Clubwoman. "I have been impressed with the fact that the ordinary man is not as tidy as the ordinary woman, and I am wondering if it is because he is naturally untidy or because he is not trained to be neat and orderly. Women from the time they are little girls are taught to be tidy. I do not believe in order, to put things in their place. But a mother trots around and picks up after a boy and excuses him by saying 'You can't expect a boy to be neat.'"

"I guess untidiness is part of the original sin of all of us," admitted the Old Maid. "But in a boy it is allowed to flourish and in a girl it is nipped in the bud. And generations of such training have resulted in woman's being tidy and in man's being untidy; that is, it is put up to the woman to keep the world neat. There are untidy women who have had the best of training, I'll admit, and tidy men who have had none. But taking the matter by and large, men give little attention to neatness and women bear the matter upon their conscience."
"After all, then, I wonder if it isn't up to women to train the boys of their household to be neat and orderly and so in time bring about a generation of men who will have as high a regard for neatness and order as women."

THE SANDMAN STORY BY MRS. F. A. WALKER.

A Double Rest Day.
BY BARBARA BOYD.
Will the department stores, I wonder, give the double rest day this year that they did last Summer during the two warmest months?

Perhaps you may be able to help the spread of this movement. Especially may you be able to if you are a member of a woman's club.
For the movement grew out of the effort of a woman's organization, and without doubt, women can help spread it into those towns where it has not yet been adopted.
For though men largely have the say as to whether there shall be a double rest day or not, their decision usually was kept open Saturday morning, and how little presumably the storekeepers would lose, started the crusade for the double rest day. A number of the large department stores agreed to it, and throughout July and August thousands of men and women in New York kept the two full days of rest instead of one and a half.
Hear what some of them say about it:
"You have no idea what a difference those two solid days off has on my clerk said. 'I have been in this store six years, and I have never felt so well able to begin the Fall work as now.'"
Another told a reporter, "I really enjoyed working this Summer, the time passed so quickly and I felt so rested and unburied."
Another salesgirl asserted that all the clerks felt so much more rested and went to their work in a very different spirit from what they usually did during the warm weather. "The time to herself was the important thing with another. Many echoed this sentiment. Two solid days seemed to mean much more to them in the way of time than they had gained more than it had apparently lost. Little business was done on the half day, the clerks, and the interest and enthusiasm bred by the extra rest, more than made up for the sales' loss.
If you have ever had but one day in the week for doing all the hundred and one little things it falls to a woman to do, you can appreciate to the full that 'unburied sense' two full days mean. No wonder one girl said it was like another week's vacation.
The stores themselves, it is said, lose nothing financially by the opening for little business is done Saturday morning. And by closing certain running expenses are eliminated. The storekeepers' chief objection is that they do not wish to inconvenience their patrons.
And this is where you and I and

INDIAN'S JURY CHOSEN

TRIAL OF JIM GEORGE, ACCUSED OF MURDER, UNDER WAY.

Few Witnesses Examined and Day at Klamath Falls Taken by Preliminaries of Case.
Klamath Falls, Or., June 11.—The case against Jim George, an Indian accused of the murder of Pete Brown, began here in the Federal Court yesterday, Judge Wolverton on the bench. The trial is being held in the new city hall here.
Pete Brown was found dead the morning of February 22, 1914, with two bullet holes in his back. He is said to have been drinking the night before and dancing and gambling grounds to come on horseback. Later the defendant was found to have a pistol of the same caliber as the bullets found in Brown's body, from the cylinder of which two shots appeared to have been recently fired, according to Government witnesses.
George was tried at Medford last Fall but the jury disagreed. The election of the jury for the second trial consumed all yesterday and until noon today, when F. D. Stephenson, Josiah Rhodes, Charles Burkhalter, George H. Sparley, of Josephine County; J. D. Corum, Curtis Duval and William Hotchkiss, of Lake County; John Byrne, of Jackson County, and H. W. Walter Turner, U. E. Reeder and Frank Ward, of Klamath County, were chosen. Several Klamath County men examined were challenged and excused after 11 men were selected out of regular venire of 38.
Assistant United States Attorney Beckman made the opening statement for the Government. Judge Herbert D. Gale in his opening statement for the defense spoke of the close friendship of the two men for two years and the lack of a motive for the crime.
Witnesses for the Government were examined today, Edson Watson, Indian agent of Klamath reservation at time of the murder, and J. M. Bedford, forest supervisor of the reservation, who testified that the crime had been committed on the reservation. To avoid the danger of Indian witnesses becoming drunk, United States Attorney Reames, at a special called meeting of retail liquor dealers of the county last night, obtained pledges that they all would not sell bottled goods during the trial. No fear is felt of Indians getting liquor at the bar.

OIL LANDS FORFEITED

JUDGE BEAN HOLDS PATENTS TO RAILROAD FRAUDULENT.

Properties Involved Said to Be Sufficient to Supply Navy With Fuel for 25 Years.

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—Ten sections of oil lands near McKittrick, Kern County, Cal., valued at $5,000,000, were declared to have been fraudulently patented by the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, in a decision by Judge Robert S. Bean, of the United States District Court of Oregon, filed here today.
The lands, part of which are alleged to have been illegally claimed by the railroad company, are ordered restored to the Government.
Under the decision lie in the Elk Hills district of Kern County, and would supply the Navy with petroleum for 25 years, according to Willis N. Mills, special counsel for the Government, who made the closing argument here before Judge Bean last January.
Another suit, involving oil lands in the same area and valued by Government attorneys at $22,000,000, still is pending in the United States District Court, Judge Benjamin F. Bledsoe having denied a few days ago a motion by the railroad company to dismiss the suit on the ground that the statute of limitations had supervened.
In the suit just decided hearings were held in the court on Saturday during a period extending over three years. The Government alleged that C. W. Eberlein, a land agent of the Southern Pacific Company, had filed affidavits that the land had been inspected and found not to be mineral, but agricultural, and subject to claim by the railroad company under an act passed by Congress in 1888. At the trial of the case, however, Eberlein testified that he had never caused the lands to be inspected, as set forth in the affidavits upon which the Government granted title into the case after Judge Olin Wellborn, who since has retired on account of age, had declared himself disqualified because he owned stock in the Southern Pacific corporation.

Compensation of Belgium, Guaranty of Protection to Small States and Lease Armament is Idea.
STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., June 11.—Peace resolutions, embodying his views on the war and which he will present to various peace societies, were announced today by Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor of Stanford University.
Dr. Jordan's resolutions express the opinion that force appears unlikely to end the war, and he suggests, as a way to honorable and lasting peace, international agreements of nations, guarantees of protection for small states and relief of people held in unnatural allegiance. Freedom of the seas, it is suggested, could be insured by international agreements guaranteeing commerce immunity from attack.
Belgium should be compensated. Constantinople neutralized for protection of Jews and Christians, and hampering tariff restrictions removed. It is suggested that the resolutions should be by an international police force, armaments reduced and peace terms arranged by an international conference, the resolutions conclude.
