Press Club Spends Day as Auditors to Eagle's Scream Out at Bonneville.

300 CELEBRATE FOURTH

Oration by C. A. Johns Before Writers and Friends is Followed by Defeat of Admen at Baseball and Sport Events.

The patriotic screams of the eagle resounded among the cliffs and crags of the Columbia Gorge about Bonneville yesterday, while the members of the Portland Press Club "whooped 'er up" in honor of the day that gave this Nation birth.

There were some 500 persons participating in the whooping-up process, including, besides the active members of the Press Club, their wives, sweethearts and friends, to say nothing of their families.

About 300 of them went by special train from the Union Depot to Bonneville, leaving Portland at 9 o'clock.

The rest went in the mood struck them, riding in automobiles over the 37 miles of the Columbia Highway.

Rufus Holman, County Commissioner, was chairman of the patriotic program, with B. F. Irvine and C. A. Johns as speakers of the day.

Mr. Johns Gives Oration. In part, Mr. Johns said: "We are assembled on the banks of the lovely Columbia to celebrate our National Independence. From time immemorial its majestic waters have been softly calling to the east and it has been immortalized in poetry, fiction and song, and has played a grand and noble part in the events of our Northwest. It is indeed fitting and proper that on the banks of this grand old river, so rich in historical events, we should lay aside the cares, duties and troubles of life and pay tribute and respect to the birth of this Nation, dedicated to liberty and freedom and the pursuit of happiness."

"On this beautiful morning, as we view the broad expanse of its calm and peaceful waters, our thoughts become sublime and we bow our heads in silence, and are truly thankful that we are American citizens, in the land of the free and the home of the brave. "No stronger indictment than the Declaration of Independence was ever drawn. No more important document was ever put into the hands of the divine right of kings, and shattered the monarchical traditions of thrones and empires, and all just powers are derived from the consent of the governed."

"It was followed by the adoption of the Federal Constitution, which did more, and will continue to do more to tear down and destroy the power and prestige of the aristocracy, the nobles and czar, than any other constitution in the world's history."

"Through the adoption of that Declaration and the Federal Constitution a new race and a new nation was born, and it was the American race and the American Nation, a republican form of government, founded on equality, liberty and freedom. Its foundation was broad and deep, and its broad and deep foundation aims than any other nation. It was the net result and the net product of the combined experience and patriotism of the best thought and intelligence of the world's history."

"When we look over the growth and history of this Nation, we have a right to feel proud of the great achievements of our citizens. It is a grand and glorious privilege, and yet I feel that some of us do not know what it means."

"As American citizens, and in return for the privileges we enjoy, we have a corresponding duty, as fathers and mothers, to the home and fireside, neighbors and friends, city, county and state, and to the Nation's flag. And any man or woman who does not honor and respect that flag and its sacred memories is not fit to be an American citizen."

"That grand old flag means something, stands for something, represents something, and it is the symbol of liberty and freedom and of a republican form of government, and while dark clouds have hovered over and around it, and it has been smothered and torn and stormed with shot and shell, and has struggled with foes from without and foes from within, yet today we should thank God that with out a scar or blemish, its folds are floating on the gentle summer breeze in a beautiful, clear and peaceful sky."

"We are living in a commercial age, in which the standing of too many persons is measured by their assets in dollars and cents, and the highest ambition, and that in the not distant future, and without a stain, our grand old flag will proudly wave from the highest pinnacle of National fame and honor."

"Having properly observed the patriotic celebration of Independence day, the Press Club went out and watched its baseball team wrest back the championship cup from the baseball team of the Ad Club. P. E. Sullivan, president of the Press Club, was umpire, which, some of the Admen maintain, accounts for the outcome of the game. The lineup of the teams follows:

Ad Club, Press Club, Leader Miranovich, P. E. Sullivan, Kenney, Stevens, C. A. Johns, President Cohn, E. S. B. Harrison, Lampman, C. P. Rickers, Smith, J. H. Peterson, Webb, Wirtlin, F. E. Fischer. Rev. C. C. Barick Declares That Upon America Depends Whether or Not the World at Large Accepts Christianity.

The church's part in the upbuilding of the country, its duty to the Nation and its responsibilities in encouraging the right kind of patriotism were among the themes found yesterday in the sermons delivered by Portland pastors. In nearly every church of the city reference to the celebration of Independence day was made and many inspiring addresses were heard. "America" and other patriotic songs found a place on the musical programmes.

OLD TRADITION MAY GO

END OF MONROE DOCTRINE POSSIBLE, SAYS REV. W. G. ELLIOT.

"League for Enforcing Peace" Might Bring About Change, Thinks Pastor of Unitarian Church.

"We may have to give up the Monroe Doctrine," said Rev. W. G. Elliot Jr., pastor of the Unitarian Church, who, in his morning sermon, explained the scheme known as the "League for Enforcing Peace," which was termed by him as the solution for the present.

"Reform in the social, political and industrial world is waiting for a revival of religion. Christianity is the keystone of the arch which strengthens the world. If America fails, the world falls. America, Christianized, means the world Christianized. It is ours to be either the grave in which the hopes of the world shall be entombed or the pillar of cloud that shall pilot the race onward to its millennial glory."

Sermon Thoughts From Portland Churches.

"OUR country is made up of the homes and the individuals, so that the condition of the state-at-large depends upon the home-life and the individual life. I doubt the high quality of patriotism of any individual or religiously indifferent person."

This, the opinion of the Rev. A. L. Taxis, pastor of Anabel Presbyterian Church, was given yesterday morning in his sermon entitled: "The Prayer of a Patriot," a subject in keeping with Independence day. Rev. Mr. Taxis said in part: "If he is not vitally solicitous about his family a man cannot care about his country. A man must give God the primary place in his personal life if he desires to be an exemplar of patriotism and his prayers express his patriotism most perfectly."

"To take life as God gives it, not as we want it, and then make the best of it, is the hard lesson that life puts before the human soul to be learned."

This was one of the statements made yesterday by the Rev. T. W. Lane, pastor of Centenary Methodist Church, who scattered throughout his sermon many epigrammatic sentences, a few of which follow:

"Whoso trusteth in the Lord, happy is he." "Worry robs you of the joy of the day, but gives you no added strength for any other day. Trust in the Lord. He knows and he cares."

"If you have been 'trusting the Lord and keeping your powder dry' all the year, try trusting the Lord and using some of your powder to bring forth results. It is fatal to keep your powder dry too long. When the time comes for business, get busy."

"Persistence can weave a most beautiful garland of victory out of the most unfavorable conditions, and the most unpromising materials."

"What kind of a life are you living?" This question, asked by Rev. W. O. Shank, pastor of the East Side Baptist Church yesterday morning, was the keynote of his sermon.

In the course of his address Mr. Shank said: "This is a melancholy life, filled with gloom and dark forebodings."

"This black streak of melancholy is either a disease of mind or brought on by remorse of sin. It may be inherited or cultivated."

"Is your life a disappointment to you? Many good people are defeated in life by a multitude of disappointments. Many are living the 'shylock' life. Their whole being is bent on getting rich—and they will have it at any cost."

"Others are chasing the bubbles of life. They are hunting the light and flicker things, which are here today, but gone tomorrow."

"The true life is the Christ life; a life of purity, honesty, and good deeds. This is life in the highest sense."

"The theme of our rejoicing today is not our great National prosperity," said Dr. Eldridge, pastor of Mount Tabor Methodist Church, "but the truth demonstrated in our National life that before God all men are equal as his children."

"Our National constitution is the sermon on the Mount translated into modern thought and governmental life. The only aristocracy to be acknowledged is that of merit. No man has the right to thrive at the expense of another. Life without liberty is worthless. Rome fell because she was founded on slavery. Our Nation, purified by the breath of God, is the land of freedom and the greatest moral power in the world."

Dr. Eldridge spoke of the duty of the citizen to develop all powers that are God-given. "As far as possible," he said, "every man should be self-supporting and inheritors of fortunes should be subject to these requirements. We have organizations for the increase of wages and the shortening of hours of labor, which is right. But we also need one for honest work and fair money. The danger to society does not lie in the so-called slum, but in the heights of society."

"We must keep the flag tied to the cross, not cavalry but cavalry will save our land," said Rev. L. E. Richardson, pastor of Kenilworth Presbyterian Church, in his Independence-day sermon yesterday. The speaker urged the need of keeping the National life pure and the flag unsoiled.

"The flag is more than bunting and colors," said the speaker. "The red stands for liberty, work and loyalty, the white for peace and purity and the blue reminds us of the blue dome of heaven and the God of all."
