The building then was the new Meth odist church and the orator of the day was Rev. James H. Wilbur, the builder and pastor, and the date was 1851— just 64 years ago. Yesterday the ora-tor of the day was Judge M. C. George, whose name is linked with Oregon history and enterprise, and J. R. Pearl, whose forefathers were factors in carly Oregon history.

On that first occasion, after a beginning inside, the exercises were concluded on the outside with a patriotic dinner for the whole town, cooked over open fireplaces and served in the trial she declared her husband rechards to the consider a reconciliation but on the outside and ended, perforce, on the outside and there was no dinner served on the grounds. The 500 or 600 persons in the congregation, outnum-bered the entire population of the Portland—"hamlet" as they called it

But the spirit was the same—the spirit of '76, as piquant in 1851 as it was yesterday, 1915. The same starspangled banner was honored 64 years ago as was honored yesterday, although in the banner that floated yesterday twinkled 48 stars while in the terday twinkled 48 stars, while in the stars and stripes that proclaimed the day in 1851 only 31 stars shone forth. California had been admitted only the year before. Yesterday two large flags were stretched across the church front and hundreds of small silk colors were distributed to the open-air congrega-

Triumph of Liberty Heralded.

"Today we celebrate not only American independence, but the triumph of Saxon civilization, of universal liberty and of Christianity.

"Let us be thankful that now we can worship God and serve our country without danger of sacrifice. We pay homage to God and to our noble aires today. Let us do it by perpetuating our fathers' faith and by rejoicing that we live under the tree of liberty that they planted in this land. Let us pray for the good day when patriotism shall be our law and our glory."

Sens, the real Nation and the ideal republic, armed him against all assault from without or doubt within.

Today an all-embracing Socialism would be his goal and message. But Whitman's was a Socialism that was essentially human, social, personal, full of bravery and the compelling joy of prayers.

Walt Whitman apotheosized not only a new civilization and a people far re-moved from all that he held to be decrepit and antiquated in feudal Europe, but also the gesintion of a new race. His poetry vaunted and procisimed it in detail, its social organism, its physical characteristics, its natural envi-ronment, its unity and significance. ## Realty Holders Our exchange and home building departments are at your disposal.

The service of the one is demonstrated by our recent $800,000 land transaction, and of the other in the many homes we are constructing. The Oregon Home Builders Oliver K. Jeffery, President.
