

TRADE SCHOOL SITE NOT YET SELECTED

Board Puts Off Choice After Change is Made in Offer in Holladay Section.

OTHER OFFERS ATTRACT

Directors Want to Make Selection, but Inability to Deliver Part of One Block Turns Attention to Other Likely Places.

After considering the purchase of a site for Portland's proposed trade school for the past two years, the school board at a special meeting yesterday afternoon referred the question to the building and grounds committee.

The board made an offer to the Anglo-Pacific Realty Company some time ago of $120,000 for a tract in Holladay Addition, consisting of blocks 145, 146, 147, 148, 165, 166 and a fraction of block 143.

The Chamber of Commerce committee, consisting of E. Daly, E. E. Covert and G. W. Holcomb, asked to report on the price to be paid by the school board for the property, said the members had examined prices paid for property in that district for many years past and considered the amount offered by the school board to be within a reasonably fair valuation.

Other offers, however, poured in on the school board, and rather than direct their attention yesterday from the purchase already thought agreed upon, G. N. and M. Versteeg tendered 26 acres in the Holladay section, bounded by Third and Tillamook streets for $100,000.

Dr. George Parrish offered five acres between the Broadway and Thompson streets and between Third and Thirty-third streets for $50,000. Captain E. W. Spencer, acting for the Irvington Real Estate Company, offered 15.3 acres between Fremont and Fargo streets and East Tenth and Fourteenth streets for $50,000.

The board to assume bonded obligations. The last tender was thought the most attractive.

Spencer Site Attractive. "This new offer seems rather a good one," said Director Plummer, "but I am inclined to vote for the acceptance of the Holladay site, as previously agreed upon. I would like to have definite action taken. This matter has been hanging fire for the past two years. The acceptance of this offer would shut off any necessity for consulting attorneys for a legal opinion as to whether the Anglo-Pacific people refused to offer to substitute the Spencer tract."

"I would not feel at liberty to confirm that offer now," said Judge Munly, chairman of the board. "I am impressed with the Spencer offer. Now that St. Johns has been taken into the city, it is really in a central position and the price is favorable."

The board decided to take no action in regard to friction between the Boya-John-Arnold Company and Charles Fenwick, inspector on the new Council School, other than to counsel brotherly love.

Blind School Request Held Up. Director Lockwood raised an objection when the request of Superintendent Myers, of the School for the Adult Blind, for half time during the summer, it being desired to keep the school open, was considered.

"Is this not more a shop than a school?" he asked. "I have had an investigation made and a report laid. The subject was held in abeyance."

Recommendations of the building and grounds committee in regard to the construction of the Franklin High School be awarded to J. S. Winters for $74,897, and that the contract for the building hardware for the new Kennedy School be awarded to the Honeyman Hardware Company for $1024 were adopted.

SENATOR PREDICTS AID FOR DRY OREGON

Mr. Chamberlain Inspects Arid Belt and Says Water is Needed for Production.

HE URGES CO-OPERATION

Carey Act, State and Private Enterprises in Interior Visited—Federal Help May Be Secured as Result of Trip.

"Central Oregon needs water." That is the comment of Senator Chamberlain after a 10 days' tour of the interior country from Bend to Lakeview and from Lakeview to Klamath Falls.

"The Tumalo land that has been settled is showing up splendidly. There are about 5000 acres of this land under cultivation now and the farmers expect to get good crops," said the senator.

At Paisley, he inspected the private irrigation enterprise recently taken over by a group of Philadelphia capitalists. The irrigation people, however, have become involved in dispute with the cattle owners of the vicinity over the water rights in the Shevaskan River.

Between Paisley and Lakeview Senator Chamberlain saw many farmers successfully cultivating the soil under dry farming methods.

"It is too bad, though, that this Lakeview country can't be brought into more direct commercial relation with Portland. All the trade there now goes to San Francisco—at least most of it does."

A new private irrigation enterprise at Lakeview is about to begin operations, he reported. Senator Chamberlain gave much time and attention to the Government project at Klamath Falls. "A lot more land adjacent to the Klamath project can be brought under cultivation," he said, "but it will take considerable money to provide the water."

General Co-operation Needed.

He went from Klamath Falls to Medford by stage, stopping at Crater Lake for a brief visit. "There ought to be more general co-operation between the state and the Federal Government and between private irrigation companies and the Federal Government," he declared.

Oregon's future development depends largely upon her ability to irrigate her arid lands. All interests ought to pull together to attain this end.

After a few days' work in his office, Senator Chamberlain will go to Eastern Oregon and into the interior country as far as Burns. He also will visit Marshfield and other coast points before Congress reconvenes, in December.
