LINER GOES TO CHARLESTON

Direct From Portland.

With only two steamers provided for by the American-Hawalian line to leave here in August, prospects are bright for the steamer Nevadan to be dispatched direct from Portland for Charleston, and it will be the first of the fleet to make the run from this harbor without touching California ports. The Ohioan, of that company, is scheduled to leave New York July 28, and arrive here August 24, and she will continue to Puget Sound to discharge and reload for the return.

It was said yesterday by C. D. Kennedy, Portland agent, that Portland will be the northern terminus for the Nevadan when she arrives August 14, as orders have been received to turn her back from here for Charleston and New York. For that reason, it is understood a strong effort will be made to load a full cargo, as the trip will mark the resumption of the Charles.

came the reply.

It doesn't take much to swing an sirtight hall game to either side. McCredie attributes Saturday's 5-2 defeat to a third strike that was called a hall by Umpire Williams. Sunday Umpire Finney refused to sive Bates a base on a wide shot that cracked him on the fingers. Hillyard was on first base and two were out, and a life to Entes would have put men on first and second with Sumpf at bat, and it might have changed the entire complexion of the afternoon. As it was, Bates filed to center and ended the raily.

Tom Hughes tells of an uniucky break he got during his days with Washington in the spring of 1912. He had the Philadelphia Athletica 1-6 in the last half of the minth with two out and Frank Baker at bat.

Hughes worked two strikes on Baker and then sent a fast one through the middle of the plate, which Baker foul-tipped. The ball struck Henty's hig mitt, but fell out, and on the next ball Baker it for a hours run swer the right field fence, tying the score. Strunk, who followed, rolled an easy grounder to Hughes and was out.

The game was won by the Mackmen in the tenth.

It was just a little break, but it cost a ball game. However, Hughes bilmes himself hersure he says he should have walked had a little bit there likely would have won this 2-1 game for the Beavers. Instead, Frederick grounded out, McMullen to Koerner.
