CIVIL WAR VETERAN AT REST.

Funeral services for Samuel C. Hornaday, a veteran of the Civil War, who died suddenly at his home, 415 Fallings street, were conducted yesterday afternoon from 1025 Belmont street, and the interment was made in the Grand Army of the Republic Cemetery. Rev. Homer Cox, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiated at the home, and the services were under the auspices of Ben Grand Post, Grand Army of the Republic, of which Mr. Hornaday had been a member. Mr. Hornaday was 78 years and 2 months old, and was a native of California, enlisted in Company J, Eleventh Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and served two years and nine months, having been in a number of important battles. He is survived by a widow and two sons, the latter being Ralph and L. J. Hornaday.

STREET EXTENSION IS PLANNED.

The Council has started proceedings to lay out and establish East Taylor street in Tabor Heights on the north side of Mount Tabor, taking over and making a street of a short county road, No. 545, in order to give the city entrance to the park on a street owned and controlled by the city. This short county road connects with the main entrance to the park from the north side, and it had never been made a city street and could not be improved. The change from a county road to a city street necessitates an appropriation of private property, and there will be no assessments for benefits and damages. It will be possible to improve the part of East Taylor street connecting with Mount Tabor Park boulevard system with the other paved streets in Tabor Heights. Principal Elmer E. Goodwin, elected to take charge of Union High School No. 2 at Gresham, next September, has moved into a cottage at Gresham with his family, preparatory to entering on his duties. Mr. Goodwin comes from Brownsville, Or., where he was principal of the school there for several years. He moves to Gresham early to get into touch with his new work and where he can consult with the directors of the union district. The new high school building and gymnasium at Gresham are completed and will be occupied by the school with the opening of the term next September. About 150 students are expected from the five districts represented.

The collection of Indian relics and minerals donated to the Brooklyn School by Dr. D. and Mrs. H. B. Baskett, has been placed in the cases prepared for them in the assembly hall of that building under the supervision of Dr. D. Baskett. Fifteen cases were built by the boys of the manual training department, and the collection fills up all Dr. Baskett's will classify and mark each specimen. This work will not be finished before the opening of school this fall. The collection of Indian specimens is considered one of the most complete in the state.

EAST LINCOLN WORK ASKED.

A petition is being circulated at Mount Tabor for the improvement of East Lincoln street between East Sixteenth and East Fifteenth streets. MARK WOODRUFF LEARNS HINT IN TIME TO COMMANDER AUTOS AND TAKE GUESTS ON TOUR AND STAY HERE PROVES INTERESTING.

The Chamber of Commerce, especially represented by Mark Woodruff, its publicity man, turned what looked like a defeat at 1:30 o'clock yesterday into a brilliant victory for the hospitality of Portland, in the entertainment of a party of newspapermen and their families from Iowa, who came into the city in the morning. "But, goosh, it did take fast footwork," said "Mark" after it was all over. H. Van Rensselaer Chase, of New York, who was in charge of the organization of the new Chamber a few months ago, corresponded with the Iowa party and invited it to come to Portland, staying at length at the reception at the depot and the automobile trips that were in store when it should arrive.

MARK WOODRUFF LEARNS HINT IN TIME TO COMMANDER AUTOS AND TAKE GUESTS ON TOUR AND STAY HERE PROVES INTERESTING.

Monday afternoon Mark Woodruff got a hint that the party was coming, but from what direction and at what time, and when they were pointed that he couldn't get cleared up, in spite of much rushing about and telegraphing. The visitors came in yesterday morning. It was after 1 o'clock when the glad tidings were broken to the reception department at the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Woodruff grabbed a bundle of Oregon almanacs under each arm and hurried to the depot to find the visitors. They had been sitting around the depot all morning, twiddling their thumbs and remembering at length the gorgeous entertainment that H. Van Rensselaer Chase had made, and wondering whether they liked Portland very much after all.

EARLY RESIDENT DEAD

MRS. T. T. STRUBLE PASSES AT HOME IN PORTLAND.

Gradual Decline for More Than Year Results in Death of Woman Who Resided in City Since 1872.

Mrs. T. T. Struble, an early resident of Portland, whose characters and activities have been interwoven with the city's development, died yesterday morning at her residence, 30 North Twentieth street. She came to Portland with her husband and family in 1872 from her native state, Ohio, and resided here continuously until her death. Always unassuming and practical, Mrs. Struble seldom took part in popular functions, the only exception to this rule being the annual participation as a committee worker in the Oregon State Pioneer Reunion. For more than a year past Mrs. Struble suffered a gradual decline.

A special river steamer will leave the dock at Front and Alder streets, in front of Eversding & Farrell's store, at 2 o'clock, and a communication sent yesterday to Mayor Albee, "thinks it is time something was being done to censor these posters."

In no way can Portland retain the fire and police employees of St. Johns and Linnton, in the opinion of the municipal service board. The board at a meeting yesterday decided that it is all right to employ the men for a month or two to acquaint the new employees with local conditions in the two annexed towns.
