Surgeons at Late Hour Unable to Staunch Wound in Jugular Vein.

ASSAILANT IS REMORSEFUL

"I Thought I Was Doing Something That Ought to Be Done," Says Convict, but He Regrets He Embarrassed Warden.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., July 18 .-Leo M. Frank, serving a life imprison-ment sentence for the murder of Mary Phagan, an Atlanta factory girl, was was attacked last night while asleep and his throat cut by William Creen, a fellow prisoner, at the state prison farm here. His condition is serious, but there is a chance for recovery.
Frank's throat was slashed for several inches and the jugular vein par-tislly severed.

Some animosity has been shown toward Frank by his fellow prisoners since his arrival at the farm, but prison officials said nothing had indi-cated danger of an attack on him. Creen was placed in solitary confine-ment. He is serving a life term for murder. In a statement to the prison officials he said he was sorry that he had made the attack, but that at the time he thought he was doing the right

The assailant used a butcher knife. Frank's jugular vein was cut, but neither the spinal cord nor the windpipe was injured.

The attack was made in the dormitory. All lights were out at the time.

Creen is said to have had the knife

Creen is said to have had the knife secreted in his prison clothing. So sudden was the attack that no guard had time to interfere. Frank fell to the floor, his cries calling the attention of the guards, who switched on the lights. Blood was smitting CORN, WHEAT AND OATS SUFFER on the lights, Blood was spurting from Frank's wounds and his assailant was trying to make his way back to bed. A knife made from a file and which the convicts had used in killing hogs during the day was found on the dermitery floor.

Surgeon Convicts Give First Ald. Dr. George B. Compton, the prison surgeon, was immediately called, but before he could reach the prison dormitory, two surgeons who are serving prison terms were at Frank's side, ad-ministering first aid.

"I guess they've tot me," Frank is quoted as having said to the doctors when they reached him. He did not lose consciousness. Frank was removed to the operating room in the hospital, where the wound was dressed. The physicians had not succeeded in stopping the flow of blood at last reports. Prison efficials said Frank had a chance to recover, but that his conscious sanitation problems confronted chance to recover, but that his con-dition was serious.

Sentence Recently Commuted. Frank was brought to the state prison farm June 21 after a midnight trip from the Fulton County jail in Atlanta. Scheme Presents Difficulties.

The incomprehensible feature of the scheme of zetting the unemployed onto the land is that it is proposed to-locate as many of them as possible on the Government Irrigation projects. In the first place time has demonstrated that the reclamation act is not a poor man's law and men without funds who have tried to establish themselves on the Government projects have, almost without exception, failed and been obliged to relinquish their entries. Secondly, irrigation farming requires experience beyond that required on the non-irrigated farm.

The city laborer, without training as a farmer, and especially without experience in irrigating, is bound to encounter all manner of difficulties for a series of years before he can successfully handle a farm on one of the Government projects.
