Rev. Mr. Findley Reproves Those Who Are Careless of Training.

You may break, you make shatter the vase if you will But the scent of the roses will cling 'round it still.

"Coming Home to Fundamentals" was the subject of Rev. F. D. Findley's sermon at the First United Presby terian Church yesterday, and he recited the two lines of verse to impress his meaning when he said:

"With some men the only beautiful thing in their lives is a memory or a reminiscence. They have wandered far away and face a future that has in it no radiance or hope. They struggle in a present out of which all the joy and zest of life have fallen.

"But," here Dr. Findley drew on the picture in the verses, "a retrospect brings up to them pictures of beauty; revives memories and awakens songs that seem celestial. God never loses his love or interest in men and men never can obliterate the past."

Rev. Mr. Findley directed his sermont to men and were continued to the continued of the continue come careless of the training of their

While 910 persons were in the bathing pavilion taking a dip at one time, the afternoon's total of swim-mers, bathers and bathing suit paraders totaled more than 1500. Estimates of the day's business, but the second really unusual day this season at the amusement park, seemed to decry any talk of financial stringen-cy, for the money spent along the trail ran into thousands of dollars. Two rides alone, the blue streak and the mystic river carried a total of 15,000 persons, which means $15,00 in hard cash. But the money-spending was general, for every concessionaire reported the greatest business of the season, not excepting the Fourth of July, although the attendance figures that day were larger.

Crowds Back In Sun. The cafeteria worked waitresses in relays, while hundreds of gallons of coffee were brewed in the free kitchenette. More than 200 pounds of "hot dogs" formed one little item in the food consumption, while as for lee cream and popcorn sales seemed without end.

Everyone seemed delighted to bask in the warm weather, and it was at all times a warmly appreciative crowd.
