

TELESENTRY TIME EXTENDED 2 DAYS

Lists to Be Kept Open Until Saturday Night—Large Number Already In.

IRVINGTON CLUB IS HOST

Tyler and Johns Most Formidable Outside Entrants, While Oregon Has Five Stars—Foot Faults to Be Called Rigidly.

There are two days left in which to enter the Oregon state championship tennis tournament. It has been decided to leave the list open until Saturday night. For the second time in the history of Oregon tennis the state championship is to be played at the Irvington Club, and all Irvington is preparing as never before to join in the festivities.

As hosts the Irvington folk have already created an enviable reputation and the fact that there is an unusually large number of entries has only stirred them to show the players and the spectators how much Irvington people can do for their guests.

From the north, south, east and west they come—Tyler, from Spokane; Johns, from San Francisco, and many from points intermediate. The entry will far surpass any tournament thus far held in Oregon.

Social Side Well Cared For.

The women in charge of the social side of the tournament have already insured its success. The following matrons will act as patronesses: Mrs. William F. Woodward, Mrs. William T. Foster, Mrs. W. M. Cook, Mrs. Andrew D. Norris, Mrs. Andrew R. Porter and Mrs. Helen Ladd Corbett.

With Tyler and Johns as the chief contenders from outside of Oregon, the chances seem to favor Tyler. Fresh from his California tennis he ought to make a strong bid for the famous Fisk challenge cup.

Oregon pins her faith to Richardson, Wickersham, Wolfard, Goss and Morton. Richardson has been unfortunate in having suffered a sprained ankle. He may not be able to defend. He seems to be Portland's chief hope for championship honors.

Wickersham has slumped and has not yet shown his ability to come back. Wolfard shows the best prospects, but may not be able to outgeneral some of the old veterans when it comes to weathering a hard tournament strain.

Goss has been playing a strong game and is not altogether eliminated. He can be counted on to go the limit since he is the only two-times winner of the famous cup in competition.

Morton would be a sure winner if he played his cannon-ball drive with any degree of surety. Then, too, there are Wakeham, Minor, Ewing, Lancelotti and Hobson, from Vancouver barracks.

The tournament committee has decided to adopt the "latest styles" in management of the tournament. The experience of last week in San Francisco has been an excellent example of what should be done in the foot-faulting. In one prominent match alone there were called 20 foot faults.

Three Stars Service Fair. Richardson, Wickersham and Goss are fine examples of a fair and upright service. Richardson places it well and does not attempt to run in. He never foot-faults. Wickersham has lots of speed and wins many aces. He, too, never foot-faults. Goss has no speed, but places fairly well, and is best at getting the net, but it is his guns were strapped. It was while he was at the net that he was hit by a racket.

Callin Wolfard is a gross offender, and no less a notable than Chairman James Shives will have a hard time getting away with his first service, for his racket hits the ball. Then, too, the umpires are to have a chance to test their skill. For the committee has decided to give a first and second prize for the two best umpires who have served during the week. All officials of the tournament are ineligible to compete.

Entries can be made with Chairman Shives, East 505, or at the Irvington Club East 4685.

Boxing Brevities. Just at the present time Tom Cowler and Jim Corbett are creating considerable talk in New York City. The big heavy, who is scheduled to meet Guszt Smith this month, in Gotham, is receiving a great deal of publicity.

One of the New York papers, in speaking of Cowler says: "Corbett is long overdue to pick a winner and perhaps this time he has succeeded. Fred Merrill says he expects to have things in running order and will open up with a boxing and wrestling show about September."

Just at present the heavyweight class is in need of new material and Cowler will give a royal welcome if he makes good."

Work is under way at the new headquarters of the Rose City Club, across the Morrison bridge. Fred Merrill says he expects to have things in running order and will open up with a boxing and wrestling show about September."

According to reports, Eddie Flannigan has opened a boxing school on the East Side and is teaching a number of pupils the many art.

Boxing promoters and followers of the state game in California are giving up hope of having the game returned to that state, according to reports.

Frank Kendall, the Portland heavyweight and his manager, Tom Batolito, is expected in Portland today from Oklahoma. Kendall has been away from his family for six months and his return home will be in the way of a visit. While here he will endeavor to line up a bout with Les Oxley, the Spokane heavyweight, who has been putting the crusher on the boys in the inland Empire metropolis.

CLOTHES STOLEN ON TRAIN Thief Not Only Takes Jewels, but All Woman's Wearing Apparel.

OMAHA, July 18.—Mrs. Anna Thorpe, of 2653 Emerald street, Philadelphia, lost $400 in money and most of her clothes on a train coming into Omaha at night. She stopped in this city to purchase new clothing, after which she continued her trip to the Pacific Coast.

Mrs. Thorpe carried her cash in a handbag, and during the night this, as well as her grip and the clothes she had taken off, were stolen. She carried her railroad tickets and extra money in another place, and these the thief didn't molest.

Considerable Scorn, in This. Atchison Globe. A woman can throw considerable scorn into her tone when she exclaims "Oh, men are all alike!" Still, even women will admit at times that some of them are more so than others.

STUDIES IN OREGON COWBOY LIFE AND NOTED SCULPTOR WHO EXECUTED THEM, NOW IN PORTLAND.

SCULPTOR IS GUEST

Alexander Proctor to Continue Study of Oregon Types.

FINE WORKS COMPLETED

Rare Expression of Action Is Executed in Reproductions of Performances by Men Masters of Wild Western Sports.

BY LILLIAN TINGLE.

Alexander Proctor, of New York, now visiting in Portland, one of the foremost of living American sculptors, probably is best known for studies of wild animals, especially the colossal "Princeton Tigers," the lions of the McKinley monument at Buffalo, N. Y., and the pumas at the entrance of Prospect Park, Brooklyn, N. Y.

At present, however, Mr. Proctor's interest is centered in the West. During the past year he has established a home and studio at Pendleton. The studio is on the Roundup grounds, where he had opportunities for studying at close range horses, buffalo, Indians and cowboy types.

Work Full of Action. "The Buckaroo" is one of his latest works, full of verve and action, both horse and man typically American, typically Western. Yet even when, as in "The Buckaroo," the sculptor is primarily concerned with the expression of action, he never loses the rare sense of decorative beauty which is characteristic of his more monumental works.

"Slim," a small "character" bust, is a portrait of a real man. But it is more than a portrait; it records for future generations the typical cowboy of story and tradition. There is an indelible something in the carriage and poise of the head and neck, the "long-distance look" in the eyes, the firmly modeled chin and the lean lines of the cheek that would be recognizable as "cowboy" even without the "costume touch" of hat and knotted handkerchief.

Buffalo Is Modeled. Mr. Proctor also modeled, at Pendleton, a buffalo which is destined to be part of a group with Indians. Indians horses and Indians have always had a special fascination for Mr. Proctor. His "Indian Warrior" now in the Museum of Art in Portland, was exhibited in the Paris Salon of 1898 and is well known.

A more recent bronze, "Parasol," was done during a visit of months among the Cheyenne Indians in Montana. The sculptor has been "adopted" by a Sioux Indian chief, "Little Wolf," and the same name was given him.

As Western in spirit as his cowboys and Indians are, the buffaloes recently completed by Mr. Proctor for the new Q street bridge, Washington, D. C., which, cast each in a single piece are said to be the largest single bronze castings ever made in America.

Mr. Proctor will visit Hanley's ranch, where he will have special facilities for the horse studies in which he is presently especially interested. Later he will return to Pendleton for the Round-up.

Among the many honors which have been bestowed on the artist, the latest is a gold medal from the Panama Pacific Exposition, news of which was received two weeks ago.

CIVILIANS TO ATTEND CAMP

Regular Troops Will Instruct 1000 Young Wall-Street Men.

NEW YORK, July 17.—With the tacit consent of the War Department, Major-General Leonard Wood, commanding the Eastern Department at Governors Island, N. Y., has arranged for the attendance of about 1000 young business men, mostly from Wall street and the downtown districts of New York, at the encampment of regular troops at Plattsburg, N. Y. These young men have the patriotic spirit and have expressed an earnest desire to acquire the fundamentals of military instruction in practical way, in order to serve their country as volunteers in case of war or other National emergency.

It is understood that several young men socially prominent in this city have received permission to attend the Army camp during the time. Among the latter class is mentioned Frederick Hulsekoper.

All the arrangements for the camp are in the hands of General Wood and the officials of the War Department say they know nothing of the details beyond what has been published in the New York newspapers. It is stated, however, that the proposed instruction is independent of the students' camp now in progress at Plattsburg.

In both cases the instruction is imparted without expense to the Government. The students from military institutions and the business men taking the military course supply their own uniforms and bear all expenses of transportation and subsistence. The Government supplies them with arms and equipment and places of shelter and rest. In each case those showing the necessary qualifications will be listed as possible volunteer officers in case necessity should arise for their services. The period of instruction covers only 10 days and necessarily is far below the requirements for commissioned rank.

WIFE ACCUSES GIRL, 17

Woman Wants $25,000 for Affections of Her Husband.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—A suit to recover $25,000 damages for alienation of her husband's affections was brought by a Camden woman recently against 17-year-old Mary Miller and her father, Andrew Miller, of Railroad and Ferry avenues, Camden, in the New Jersey Supreme Court. The plaintiff, who is known in Camden as Mrs. Joseph E. Cooper, is suing under the name of Mrs. Antonia Szewielko—her husband's name before coming to this country.

Mrs. Szewielko alleges that she was married to her husband, alias James Cooper, on August 31, 1913, and that a year later he fled to Providence, R. I., with Mary Miller, the daughter of the saloon owner who employed her husband. She asserts that Andrew Miller was instrumental in inducing his daughter to run away with Szewielko. The latter recently returned to Camden to procure clothes that had remained in his home. He was arrested and Mary Miller, who is said to have been living with him as his wife in Providence and had become the mother of a child, was summoned to return to her parents.

HEIRESS TO TRY FLYING CRUISER WEARS DISGUISE

Niece of D. G. Reid, Steel Magnate, Enters Wright Aviation School.

DAYTON, O., July 18.—Miss Rose Douglas, of Richmond, Ind., a niece of Daniel G. Reid, multimillionaire steel magnate, of New York, has entered the Wright Training School to learn aviation.

Ferdinand Eggena, New York City aviator, is here arranging for a cross-country trip from Chicago to New York. He hopes to make the flight in one day, stopping at Cleveland and Buffalo. He will start in about two weeks.

But on her starboard side her bow had been painted out with a silvery white color that was not discernible at a distance.

This odd paint was carried in a line along her topside and down around her stern, making her appearance small, and at the bow the painting was carried out in a curve, giving her the appearance of an old clipper stem. Painted revolving screens also had been placed about two of her funnels, the fore and aft ones. The screens had the disappearing paint on one side only.
