

COLLEGE GRADUATE SELLS GIRL'S RING

Thomas F. Kirk, of Omaha, Hysterical When Taken to City Jail.

LIQUOR CAUSES DOWNFALL

Young Man Tells How Wealthy Parents Cast Him Off for Becoming Engaged to Working Girl Whose Jewelry He Pawned.

Thomas F. Kirk, who says he is a graduate of the business department of Creighton University, Omaha, Neb., and the son of a wealthy family in that city, was arrested last night by Detectives Hyde and Vaughn on a charge of selling a ring owned by his fiancée, Miss Della Richter, of the Marr apartments, 380 1/2 Morrison street.

Kirk became hysterical after his arrest and was transferred to the emergency hospital, in the care of Assistant City Physician Lawton.

To the police Kirk admitted pawning Miss Richter's ring, but insisted that the girl did not object until he used the money to buy liquor.

"Miss Richter did not have me arrested, I know," said Kirk in the emergency hospital. "Only this morning she cried and asked me to stop loving her, because I was not making good here. I guess it's too late for me to make a new start now." Kirk admitted dimly. The boy is 24 years old.

Omaha Parents Wealthy. Kirk says his parents in Omaha are wealthy and he is engaged to Miss Richter in the past year. His father, Kirk says, is an interne in an Omaha hospital. The boy admits that he has been in trouble with the police before.

"I made a bad start in life," Kirk told Dr. Lawton. "I was married when I was 18 years old. I ran away from home, and have been on the street since. I have made several trips across the continent. But the craving for liquor has always been my downfall.

"I had a hard time to get work in Portland, but I was trying to make a new start. They had tolerated almost everything from me, but mother could not think of me marrying a working girl. Finally they cast me off entirely.

"But we did not care. Della said that everything she had was mine, and all I had was hers, and we felt like I had a job then, because Della could not conquer 'the booze.' First I got drunk and laid some worthless claims on her, and then I got off and Della forgave me. Then I had some other trouble. She forgave that, too.

"Here the boy broke down. His hands, nervous from his mode of life, shook as if with ague. The cigarette, which he had begged from a sympathetic policeman, had been scattered on the floor of the padded cell, where he lay during his hysteria.

Plan Made for Sweetheart. "Oh, won't you call Della on the telephone for me?" he begged. "I need her now more than I ever did. I know she will come if she knows where I am. And my mother! This will kill her. She's sick anyway. You know how it is with a fellow's mother, they worry so."

Kirk will appear before Municipal Judge Stevenson today, if he has recovered sufficiently. The boy says he will ask for no mercy, as his past offenses have disgusted him with himself.

BODY THOUGHT RELATIVE'S

Door Long Vainly Ajar for Missing Man, Woman Gives Up Hope.

Clinging to the belief that the body of a murdered man found near Troutdale a year ago was that of her son-in-law, George Olesmer, Mrs. George Berner, of Hopewell, N. J., has written to Sheriff Hurbut asking him to try to establish her belief as a fact.

"Each night when we retire," says the letter, "we leave certain doors open, almost hoping that George will walk in; and if he were here we certainly would come to me, if he had to beg a steel his way."

The body found near Troutdale was identified by several persons as that of James Rooney. In the pocket of the coat, however, was a notebook belonging to George Olesmer. The man's throat had been cut.

WAREHOUSE AT LINNTON IS IN PORTLAND CITY LIMITS.

Ordinance Forbids Explosive Storage Within Bounds and City Commission May Ask Removal.

What disposition shall be made of the powder warehouse of the Trojan Powder Company on the west bank of the Willamette River just above the bridge, Spokane Falls, Ore., is being debated by the City Council this morning. The warehouse was within the limits of Linnon and since the annexation to Portland it is now within the city limits and consequently operating contrary to a city ordinance prohibiting powder houses within the confines of the city.

The Mayor and Commissioners made a trip of investigation to the warehouse yesterday, being taken down the river by Harbormaster Speller. They found the place locked and no watchman visible, so that a thorough investigation was impossible.

Mayor Albee said the warehouse probably contained sufficient explosives to destroy the entire railroad bridge, besides any houses in the vicinity.

"I do not consider such a thing safe to have in the city," said Commissioner Daly, who said that the present unsettled state of affairs, and large quantities of explosives have been discharged on Puget Sound and other places, should take every precaution here."

Commissioner Daly said that it was understood that the building contained not only blasting powder, but dynamite, but also lignite and other high explosives. He said that the warehouse was large enough to hold 30 tons and that the structure was built underneath so that any person could easily attach a battery or use other means to discharge the explosives.

It has been suggested that the powder company may have had some agreement with the city of Linnon which might complicate the situation. Otherwise it probably will be notified to discontinue the use of the warehouse for storing explosives.

BASKET OF OPIUM SEIZED

Chinese Carries Drug Under Vegetables in Downtown Streets.

LOUIS GA CHUNG believes that American Custom-House inspectors have X-ray optics, for he is slated to appear before United States Commissioner Drake tomorrow and allege how he came into possession of 38 pounds of crude opium, found in a basket he carries through downtown streets. He was arrested by Custom-House inspectors F. G. Church, Harry J. Strowbridge, M. J. Gallagher and W. D. Crewdson were responsible for the capture of the Chinaman and opium valued at about $500.

Louis Ga Chung wended his way along Fifth street, carrying an innocuous-looking basket on his back. Presently it was filled with dry vegetables that are so often displayed in Chinese mercantile establishments. It was anything but suspicious, Inspector Church, who knows the Chinese habits, experienced a "hunch." Louis Ga Chung was stopped when he was discovered displaying no concern. The dried vegetables were shifted. Beneath were the balls of crude opium. He was asked if they were for his family. The Chinaman declared that he was a native of California or Washington. But Louis Ga Chung "no saved" when interrogated on that score.

Louis Ga Chung was asked to deposit $1500 to regain his freedom pending a hearing, and left to meditate upon the fate of his family, as the officials who persist in halting the opium traffic.

OFFICIALS GET STUCK

T. K. CAMPBELL AND F. J. MILLER SPEND NIGHT IN MUDHOLE.

Auto Was All Right and Farmhouse Refuge Nearby, but Men Did Not Know It.

SALEM, Or., July 29.—(Special.)—Unable to obtain their way back with their automobile stalled in a mudhole, Thomas K. Campbell and Frank J. Miller, members of the State Public Service Commission, spent Wednesday night in the car near Airline, Polk County.

They had been to Newport and were speeding homeward when the machine bogged down when they got stuck. After tinkering with it for more than an hour without success, the Commissioners decided the best thing to do was to wait until daylight and send for a mechanic. They feared they might get lost if they explored the neighborhood in the dark for assistance.

With the first streak of dawn they decided a farmhouse only about 300 yards away would be their refuge. They passed the night comfortably had they known of it. A mechanic was called from Portland and in half an hour he had the car out of the quagmire and the Commissioners were on their way to Salem.

Miller had tried to start the machine with the self-starter, whereas the mechanic simply jacked up one wheel, cranked the car, and it chugged its way out of the hole to solid earth. The Commissioners admitted that if they had not become confused because of Portland heat they could have extricated themselves from their predicament as easily as it was done by the mechanic.

SUICIDE MOTIVE IS LACKING

Affairs of J. W. Hyett at Silverton in Good Shape.

SALEM, Or., July 29.—(Special.)—J. W. Hyett, cashier of the Peoples Bank, of Silverton, left that city about two months ago to visit friends in Canada. He has lived in Silverton about eight years and is one of the prominent men of the city. Officials of the bank said over the telephone tonight that they knew of no reason why he should try to commit suicide in his condition. Mrs. Hyett and Edward Porter, president of the bank, left for Portland last afternoon, from which place they will go to Victoria to see Mr. Hyett.

"I have known Mr. Hyett for a number of years," said J. Yates, Marshal of Silverton, tonight. "I cannot conceive of a reason for his attempting suicide. So far as I know he was successful and happy. His habits here were exemplary."

Officials of the bank said they thought Mr. Hyett was a native of Ohio. He lived in Canada before moving to Silverton. He has two small children.

MILITIA IS SEASICK

Oregon Boys on Cruise, However, Stick to Their Work.

SAN FRANCISCO REACHED

Gun Crews Busy With Preliminary Practice, in Hope of Excelling Good Record Already Set by Washingtonians.

EXPOSITION GROUNDS, San Francisco, July 29.—(Special.)—With every member of the Oregon Naval Militia in good health and spirits, the cruiser Albany dropped anchor in San Francisco harbor today, ending the first leg of the militia's annual cruise. The ship's guns thundered an Admiral's salute of 13 guns.

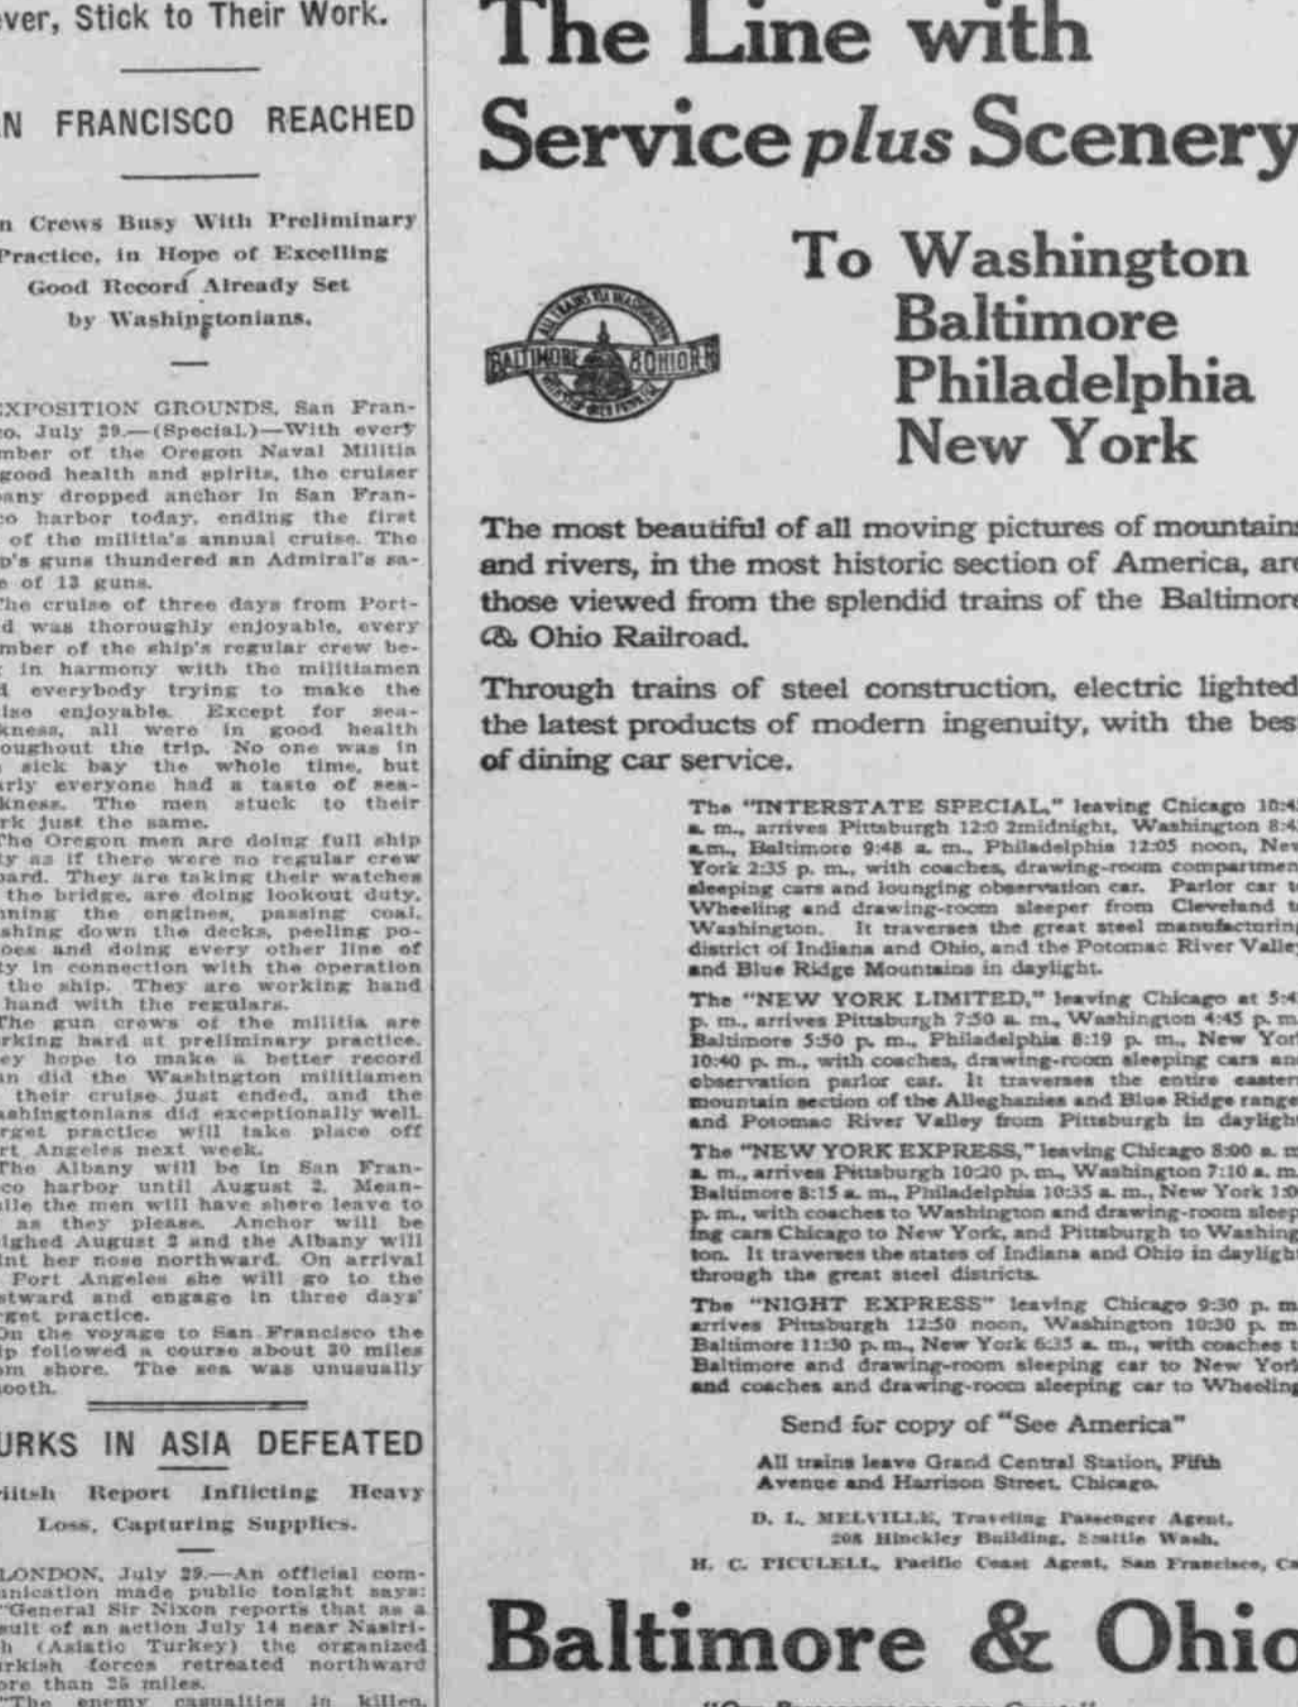

The cruise of three days from Portland was thoroughly enjoyable, every member of the ship's regular crew being in harmony with the militiamen and everybody trying to make the cruise enjoyable. Except for seasickness, all were in good health throughout the trip. No one was in the sick bay the whole time, but nearly everyone had a taste of seasickness. The men stuck to their work just the same.

The Oregon men are doing full ship duty as if there were no regular crew aboard. They are taking their watches on the bridge, are doing lookout duty, running the engine, passing orders, washing down the decks, peeling potatoes and doing every other line of duty in connection with the operation of the ship. They are working hard in hand with the regulars.

The gun crews of the militia are working hard at preliminary practice. They hope to make a better record than did the Washington militiamen on their cruise just ended, and the Washingtonians did exceptionally well. Target practice will take place off Port Angeles next week.

The Albany will be in San Francisco tomorrow, August 1. Meanwhile the men will have shore leave to do as they please. Anchor will be weighed August 2 and the Albany will pull her nose northward. On arrival at Port Angeles she will go to the eastward and engage in three days' target practice.

On the voyage to San Francisco the ship followed a course about 30 miles from shore. The sea was unusually smooth.
