RESERVE FUNDS TO BE USED ON CROPS

12 Regional Banks Are Told How to Aid in Financing Movement.

Board's Action Taken to Forestal Any Possibility of Congestion This Fall; Especial Note Is Taken of Cotton Situation.

WASPINGTON, Aug. 2.—Preliminary plans designed to make available the resources of the Federal reserve system, in the annual Fall movement of crops have been worked out by the Federal Reserve Board. Writing to the 12 regional banks, the Board pointed out, in a letter made public today, how members of the system may help to finance the crop movement.

The board's action was taken, the letter says, to forestall any possibility of congestion of crops this Fall or lack of financial accommodation to move them and to avoid a recurrence of the stringency which in the past has marked this movement.

Although the board applies its plan to wheat, corn and all other cereals, it devotes most attention to the cotton crop, which, it says, is peculiarly sensitive to abnormal conditions such as now exist in the export trade.

Usually the crop movement has been taken care of by Government deposits in banks or the issue of emergency currency under the Aldrich-Vreeland act, which expired last month. In place of these agencies, the board states, there is ample authority in the Federal reserve act to meet the situation this Fall.

"In view of the large surplus reserves now held by the Federal reserve banks, by member banks and by other banks throughout the country," says the Board's letter, "there should be no difficulty in affording the producers the assistance necessary to enable them to market their products in volume corresponding to the power of the trade to absorb them.

To accomplish this end, it is sug-gested that Federal reserve banks adopt a definite policy with reference to rediscounting paper secured by documents in satisfactory form evidencing the ownership of stored agricultural products. Through such a policy, together with proper methods of warehousing. Federal reserve banks can be a potent Federal reserve banks can be a potent factor in assisting the normal movements of staple agricultural products from the field to the factory or to the consumer. It is recommended that regulations governing the rediscount of notes covering advances on such products be issued by the Federal reserve banks whose members are actively engaged in financing the movement of such crops to the market."

sion of the Equitable Life Assurance Society and had made millions through his investments in tobacco and rubber. At that time Mr. Ryan was one of the industrial "kings" of America. He had a variety of "crowns" and changed them in rapid-fire order as the occasion demanded. He was called alternately, the "insurance king," the "tobacco king" and the "rubber king."

Mr. Ryan began early to lay the foundation of his present fortune, which, some experts measure at $500,000,000. At the age of 17 he started work as a clerk in a Baltimore dry goods house. A few years later he transferred his youthful activities to New York. Opportunity found him a place on Wall Street and he has been more or less active there ever since, principally more.

When only 23 years old he became a member of the New York Stock Exchange and soon became interested in the consolidation and extension of various street railway and electric lighting systems in New York, Chicago and other cities and later turned his attention to the organization of railroads and coal mining companies in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

map with its loganberry juice. It made a big splash which would have been heard around the world if it had not been for the war. It gave thousands of cartons of evaporated loganberries and quantities of literature yesterday, to say nothing of 1500 gallons of the now famous juice.

The San Francisco papers cartooned it, the funny men dragged it into their jokes, the city editors gave it space, and everybody drank it.

Today, following the big loganberry day, the Oregon building is thronged—the fame held over. If Mr. Ferris and Mr. Bynon, who produce it in the Willamette Valley and who treated the world to the brimming red glass, do not reap big rewards it will be because everyone is broke.

Commissioner Logan was not allowed to have it all his own way, either, if he did marry into the Berry family; for there came along Judge James H. Logan, of Oakland, Cal., who made the loganberry 35 years ago, accompanied by a woung wife and a 3-year-old child,
