MAYOR AND MR. DALY LOCK OVER JITNEYS

Readoption of Ordinance Invalidated by Courts, Opposed by Commissioner.

COUNCIL OPINION DIVIDED

Indications Are Modified Measure, Without Emergency Clause to Take Effect at Once, Will Be Enacted.

Mayor Albee refused yesterday to consider Commissioner Daly's proposed jitney regulation ordinance, and Commissioner Daly refused to consider Mayor Albee's ordinance. Therefore the Council stands deadlocked so far as passing a jitney ordinance carrying an emergency clause is concerned. Indications are that the Daly ordinance will be enacted, but without an emergency clause.

The Mayor introduced his ordinance—the original ordinance adopted by the voters in June, and invalidated by a Supreme Court decision on a technicality—and asked that it be passed with an emergency clause, making it effective immediately and forestalling the invocation of the referendum. This action would require unanimous Councilmanic vote. Commissioner Daly said he would not vote for it.

He thereupon offered his ordinance—a measure with the features of the original ordinance objected to by the jitney union stricken out—and insisted that this be passed with an emergency clause. The Mayor said he would not vote for this.

Heated Discussion Ensues.

Therefore neither measure got anywhere except that both got the brunt of a more or less heated and personal discussion in which the elements of "good faith to the public" and "fairness to the jitneys and the streetcar company" and "public safety" were the principal talking points.

Commissioner Daly apparently had Mr. Bigelow on his side. While Mr. Bigelow gave no definite, open expression of his stand, it was apparent that he favored the Daly measure more than the Mayor's. Commissioner Dieck was with the Mayor, as was Commissioner Baker, although Mr. Baker said that rather than get no ordinance and regulation at all he would vote for the Daly ordinance.

Both sides, apparently, were trying to dodge the possibility of a referendum, which would hold legislation up for two years. This could only be done by passing the ordinance with an emergency clause making it effective at once. This would require unanimous vote.

Unless there is a decided switch either by Mr. Daly or the Mayor, the referendum danger will not be averted, for the measure—whichever is adopted—will have to go over for a month before going into effect. During that time the referendum can be invoked.

Two Weeks' Delay Follows.

Both measures went to third reading, which means that both will come up again in two weeks. Under conditions it is expected the Daly ordinance will be passed by vote of Daly, Bigelow and Baker and will stand for a month before going into effect.

"How is it you all agreed on the original ordinance in the first place?" asked Mr. Baker. The question seemed directed at Mr. Daly, who explained that while he voted for the ordinance he did not favor all its provisions. "I can't for the life of me see the need of some of the alterations proposed," said Mayor Albee. "I have talked with the Chief of Police and many others and these changes as proposed are certainly contrary to their wishes and experience."

Commissioner Daly declared that the people voted for the ordinance as it was because it was the only measure before them.

"Which goes to show," said the Mayor, "that the majority of voters wanted the jitney regulated."

Commissioner Dieck moved for the emergency clause on the Mayor's ordinance, saying that he would be the first to favor modifications if experience showed it to be needed. Daly objected to the emergency clause. Mr. Baker then moved for the emergency clause on Mr. Daly's measure. Mayor Albee objected.

And there stands the jitney regulation situation at a deadlock.

LABOR HEARS SINGLE TAX

Mrs. Joseph Fels Tells of Work in Alabama Colony.

In her talk before the United Labor delegates at the Labor Temple yesterday, Mrs. Joseph Fels discussed minutely the "Single Tax Movement and Its Effects." A large and enthusiastic gathering was in attendance.

Mrs. Fels told of the work of her late husband in furthering the movement, and touched on various phases of the Henry George theory. She also told of the single tax colony in Alabama, where some of the advocates of this theory are attempting to put it into practice. Mrs. Fels expressed the belief that the single tax ideals would be realized eventually by its advocates living up to the doctrines.

Dr. John W. Slaughter, of London, lectured briefly on the Single Tax in England and its effect on the labor movement in that country.

Medals to Be Awarded for Highest Scores in Individual Events and Cup Is Up for Team.

Rules governing the annual rifle and pistol competition of the Oregon National Guard have been issued. The state shoot will be held on the Clackamas rifle range, September 9, 10 and 11. The teams will be composed of four men and one alternate, and will be selected from all departments of the state militia.

The corps headquarters will enter one team, the regiment, battalion headquarters and headquarters company, Third Infantry, will enter one team. Each one of the eight companies of the Coast Artillery and each of the 12 companies of infantry will have a team in the competition. One from the troop of cavalry and two from the naval division of the Guard will be entered as well.

The state shoot includes the state individual match, the state team match and the state pistol match. For the state individual match any member of the National Guard or the Naval Militia of the state may compete. This match is also open to members of the State Rifle Association and to the ex-members of any Oregon National Guard team.

The competitor making the highest aggregate score will receive a gold medal, the next two silver medals, and the next three bronze medals. A silver medal will be given to the competitor making the highest aggregate score in rapid-fire shooting and one to the successful slow-fire competitor.

The team match will be at ranges from 200 yards to 1000 yards, according to whether the shots be slow or rapid fire. The prizes in the team matches include the State Trophy for the successful team in Class A, and the General Staff prize to the winner in Class B. The State Trophy prize is a silver cup and becomes the property of the team winning it three successive times.

The state pistol match is open to all the commissioned officers of the Oregon National Guard, Oregon Naval Militia, and to all non-commissioned officers authorized to fire, including four members of Battery A, Field Artillery, and members of the Oregon State Rifle Association and affiliated clubs. TAX EXPERTS ASKED TO PORTLAND IN 1918

County Assessor Reed Tells of Plans Made at Conference to Check Waste.

VISIT TO FAIR DESCRIBED

Canada, California and Oregon Are Given Credit for Best Displays, but Home State Is Regarded as Excelling All Others.

Portland can have the 1918 session of the National Tax Conference if it desires. County Assessor Henry E. Reed, who returned yesterday from the recent conference at San Francisco, invited the tax experts to come to Oregon three years hence and received many assurances of friendly support. Next year's meeting will go to New York, Omaha, Detroit or Tampa, Fla. By 1918 the conference will be ready for another Pacific Coast trip and Portland is first in line for the honor.

"The conference," said Mr. Reed yesterday, "is held annually under the auspices of the National Tax Association. At the meeting at San Francisco 41 states were represented. One important result of this year's work was the decision of the association to extend its influence into every state in the Union through the medium of state branches affiliated with the National body. The purpose of these branches will be to encourage taxpayers to study tax laws and particularly the expenditure of public money.

"The most valuable paper of the conference was the report of the committee on increase in public expenditures. This document was only summarized to the delegates and will not be available to the public until printed in book form about January 1, of next year. The report, as briefly outlined by Mr. Adams, of the Wisconsin Tax Commission, recommends tax limitation laws; limit on public debt as well as on taxes, and serial bonds for cities instead of old sinking fund methods for paying off funded debt.

Educational Side Discussed.

Professor Adams, in presenting the report, said it has become the fashion throughout the country in recent years to vote anything asked in the name of education, regardless of cost. He said he thought the question of education should be dealt with in a spirit of liberality, but with high intellectuality, to the end that the taxpayers should not be overburdened with debt. The same thing, he said, is true of highway bonds. He said there should be a limit to highway bond issues, and that under no conditions should road bonds be issued for a longer time than the life of the road.

The State Auditor of Oklahoma said that his state has a finance committee to which all appropriation bills introduced into the Legislature are referred before being acted upon. In passing upon these bills the finance committee gives careful consideration to the state of the treasury before reporting them back. Every delegate to the conference approved this Oklahoma plan as a means of checking legislative extravagance.

"All in all, the present and future work of the conference holds out much hope to the taxpayers. With the extension of the National Tax Association's influence, the majority of states are likely soon to have laws limiting taxation and indebtedness, budgets, and the widest publicity to public expenditures and methods of accounting."

Oregon Fair Exhibit Lauded.

Mr. Reed spent several days at the San Francisco Exposition. He says it is the most wonderful exposition ever held in the United States and that unless signs fail it will be a financial as well as an institutional success. Of Oregon's representation he said:

"Credit for first honors among participating states and countries lies between Oregon and Canada with California safely in next place. In the matter of state buildings, Oregon is first, California second and Canada third. Oregon has one of the very few buildings on the grounds that can be distinguished from the prevailing travertine style of architecture and coloring. It has the only building that will be remembered for any length of time by exposition visitors. The Tower of Jewels and the Oregon building are architectural creations of the Exposition. The Tower presents itself in all its glory to the visitor who comes in by the main entrance. As the Exposition is approached from the water side, the majestic proportions of the Oregon building dominate the entire picture, the crowning act of man in an environment of genius.

Differences Are Explained.

"In the exhibit line, Canada and California have collective and non-competitive exhibits under their own roofs. On the other hand, Oregon has a collective and non-competitive exhibit in its own building, and competitive exhibits of the highest grade in six of the large exhibit palaces. It is these competitive exhibits which have won the prizes. California was barred from competition by the unwritten law of exposition, and so has a reason for putting everything into its own building. Canada chose to show what it alone had accomplished in all lines of endeavor, and so elected to put all its exhibits in its own building and make them non-competitive. Oregon adopted a different policy from Canada, and decided, for example, to let the world know what it had accomplished in agriculture in competition, say, with the agriculture of Iowa. From the exposition point of view, and from the larger point of view of demonstrating man's progress in the arts and sciences, Oregon did the right thing. The result is that Oregon has competitive exhibits in the several buildings, and a duplicate of those exhibits in its own building.

"I spent quite a little time in the Oregon, California and Canadian buildings and watched the crowds. In California the people seemed to hurry through the exhibits as if bewildered by the dominance of fruit. In Canada the pictures and combinations of pictures and landscapes seemed to be preferred to the products. In Oregon the people examined minutely the products of the country and requested literature and asked many questions. All the Oregon exhibits are good. The art room, where Miss Hatch presides, is, with the exception of some paint and window decoration, an all-Oregon product. It is very popular with visitors.

"Oregon, with an appropriation of $175,000, has put Washington, with an equal amount of money, clear out of the running. It has more than held its own with California and Canada, each of which had several times as much money as Oregon had. When it comes to real hospitality, Oregon has no competitor at the exposition."

There is nothing admirable about a woman who begins to shed tears early in the evening and bawls all night, just because of a difference with her husband. The average woman, when she cries, looks like a fat woman, when she cries, looks like a fat woman getting up in the morning, and there is nothing in her appearance to make her sinful husband feel repentant.

TAFT DUE TOMORROW

Ex-President Will Speak at Press Club Breakfast.

FAMILY IS COMING LATER

Oregon Bar Association to Greet Visitor, Who Will Address Attorneys at Heilig Theater Monday Afternoon.

Ex-President William Howard Taft will arrive in Portland at 12:15 o'clock tomorrow to attend the joint meeting of the bar associations of Oregon and Washington.

He will make a public address on "Law and Government" at the Heilig Theater, before the attorneys of the two states at 1:30 Monday afternoon, and will leave at 3.50 the same afternoon for San Francisco.

Judge Taft will not be accompanied by Mrs. Taft and Miss Helen Taft on his visit to Portland, as was at first announced. They are at present touring the Canadian Rockies, and will be in Portland for several hours next Thursday.

During the past week Judge Taft has been attending the National convention of the American Bar Association at Salt Lake City, and will come to Portland directly from that city.

On his arrival Judge Taft will be met at the station by a committee from the Oregon Bar Association, and will be escorted to the Multnomah Hotel, where apartments have been provided by the association. At his apartments he will receive a committee from the Portland Press Club and will be escorted to the Benson Hotel, where a breakfast will be served in his honor.

At this breakfast Judge Taft will deliver a short address. It is believed he will elect to tell about the newly formed League to Enforce Peace, of which he is president.

Immediately after leaving the Benson Hotel, Judge Taft will be taken on a tour of Columbia River Highway, with S. Benson and John B. Yeon as escorts. The party will return to Portland in time for the ex-President to attend a dinner to be given him at the University Club by the Yale Alumni, at 7 P. M.

At noon Monday the ex-President will be the guest of Ralph E. Williams, Oregon member of the Republican National Committee, at an Arlington Club luncheon. At 1:30 P. M. he will be in the Heilig Theater to deliver his address. He will leave the theater before the afternoon session of the bar associations is closed, for he intends to catch the Shasta Limited for San Francisco at 3:50 P. M.

RAILWAY GETS FRANCHISE

County Permits Operation of Freight Trains to Oilton.

A 25-year franchise to operate freight trains over the old United Railways line between Portland and Oilton, about half way to Linnton, was granted to the United Railways Company yesterday by the County Commissioners. The passenger franchise asked by O. M. Clark and two associates will be taken up Monday.

Under the terms of the franchise 5 per cent of the company's net annual earnings must be paid to the county after the common user privilege has been claimed.

Alley Wanted in Roseburg.

ROSEBURG, Or., Aug. 20.—(Special.)—Frank E. Alley, who recently was surrendered to the Federal officers by his bondsmen, is also wanted in Roseburg on a charge of non-support preferred by Mrs. Alley. He was to appear for trial at a former term of court, but could not be brought here by the officers for the reason that he was under Federal indictment. Until a few years ago Mr. Alley was one of Roseburg's leading land attorneys and was owner of the celebrated "Bonaday" stock farm, situated three miles east of this city.
