FIVE FIGHT IN NIGHTIES
TWO WOMEN, TWO MEN AND BOY HAVE FREE-FOR-ALL.
 Air in Vicinity of Eighteenth and Washington Streets Rent by Screams and Bruises Are Many.

The screaming of women, the cursing of men and the breaking of glass and other articles in the vicinity of eighteenth and Washington streets yesterday morning at 3:30 and caused Patrolman Mallon to think that a riot was in progress. As he reached the scene with club drawn and decks cleared for action a man ran from 585 Washington street, closely pursued by a woman.

The man was dressed in nightie negligee—palamas—and the woman, who wore a kimono, carried a long stick from the end of which several nails were protruding. The man ran plump into the arms of Officer Mallon and the woman halted and strove to turn her pursuit into a strategic retreat. Noise caused in the passageway between the houses at 585 and 587 Washington, and the patrolman unheeded more belligerents there. All the fighters had entered in the joyous melee sans street attire.

After a little investigation Patrolman Mallon finally wedged out Annetta Cuzin, Louis Cuzin and Joseph Conrad, Harry Conrad and Joseph Conrad as the chief warriors, and summoned the patrol, which arrived with Patrolman Burke and Officer. Louis Cuzin proved to be but 15 years old and was turned over to the Juvenile Court. He was one of the more active parties—"fighting as though crazy," according to the officer's report.

Patrolman Mallon failed to discover basic reasons except that the Cuzins apparently had entered the mode of living of their neighbors to the extent of offering valuable protest, which precipitated armed resistance and retaliation. Sickas, stones, everything that was not nailed down flew about during the melee, and the physical condition of some of the belligerents following the fray testified to the zeal with which blows were dealt.

FIRE CHASES 60 OUT

Lodgers Flee in Night Dress From Esmond Hotel.

FIREMEN CHECK PANIC
Empty Rooms Swept by Flames That Start From Mysterious Source in Commission-House-Damage Placed at $6000, Insured.

As flames licked up the fire escape on the west front of the four-story Esmond Hotel building, at Front and Morrison streets, shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday morning, about 60 lodgers awakened from slumber by the smoke and shouts from without, fled in a panic from windows on the north to a one-story building, and from the remaining fire escape on the south side to the ground.

Three alarms were turned in, most of the apparatus on the West Side responding, and by efficient work the fire was quenched with total damage estimated at $3800, fully insured.

The lodgers fled in night dress, but aside from the exposure which, considering the weather, was negligible, were unharmed. Most of the rooms swept by the fire were unoccupied but furnished.

Fire started, from an origin later investigation did not reveal, in the store of a commission man, M. E. O'Connor, at 145 Front street, who assembled at the outside of the building, breaking into three rooms in the Esmond Annex and four rooms in the Esmond Hotel. The fire escape marked the pathway of the flames.

The Esmond Hotel building is owned by Julius L. Meier and the Esmond Annex by E. W. Leadbetter. The damage to the buildings is estimated at $3000. At the Esmond Hotel, G. O. Oki, proprietor, damage is about $600. The damage to the Esmond Annex, M. O'Connor, proprietor, is about $400. The loss to Mr. O'Connor is estimated at $380. All is insured.

That there were no accidents and possibly loss of life in the scramble to get out of the burning building is probably due to the work of Fire Captain Dolsen, Fire Captain Dolsen, who helped the lodgers to escape. The fire was very hot for a time and many were badly frightened, making the work of the firemen difficult.

Jay Stevens, assistant chief, was in charge of the fire, assisted by Battalion Chief Holden.

YUMA'S ACT IS WEIRD
ALL EMPRESS NUMBERS ARE ACCORDED COMMENDATION.
 Bill Includes Variety of Staging, Pantomime and Acting—New Orchestra Wins Approval.

"Giver of weird seizures" is Yuma, for "he's a devil" in his implied red, sparkling costume, and one of the most weird and uncanny creatures that have appeared on the stage. The mysterious contortions, at times he resembles a mechanical dummy. On his weird "Yuma" turns himself inside out and reveals in superhuman feats possible only for the most gifted contortionist.

His supple body becomes a red ball wound around by his long flexible legs as he swings by his toes from the ropes on the Empress stage, for, at times, Yuma is a seven foot, he helps himself into a two-foot square box without the slightest apparent effort.

Hal Hal for the "County Fair," with all its freaks and fun, as presented by Hager and Goodwin, two clever comedians who sing and jingle out their original funny songs with voices that are good and gay, and a piano full of melody. Their specialty is a realistic and catchy interpretation of a perfectly funny and well-known country fair, with everything represented, even to the snake charmer.

Melodies, old and new, from four harmonic saxophones are factors of the entertainment. The number by Miss Darling and her three attractive maidens with their melodious instruments and pleasing songs.

Clever and attractive are Irene Burton and Tom Kerr, who talk in words of the violins. Each of these ingenious entertainers is the possessor of an almost human voice, and what these "fiddlers" say can be perfectly understood. With this as the means of a humorous flirtation and some of the most melodious they make their act a popular one.

Songs from "Old Virginia" and the land of the Shamrock, interspersed with sea songs and songs of what is entertainingly by Marie Gearing, who, with W. L. Gearing, has an unusually fine illustrated songbook.

"Too Many Bachelors" is a rousing comedy, with a good cast of five. The situation of a real burglar mixing up with a masquerade robber, a sailor and an Irish policeman and a pretty girl becomes a lively and happy entertainment. The new orchestra was a potent factor in making the Empress bill the attractive show that it was.

CITY WARDS TO SEE SHIP
CAPTAIN OF SUCCESS INVITES INVITES OF AID SOCIETY'S HOME.
 Stay in Portland Prolonged Two Days. Crowds Continue to Visit Relic Despite Hot Weather.

The convict ship Success is to be thrown open to wards of the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Captain Smith, her owner, having extended an invitation to the children yesterday through William Woodward, treasurer of the organization, on learning of the character of the society and the fact some of the youngsters there had expressed a desire to go through the vessel.

It will be the fourth time since the Success reached the harbor that she has been placed at the disposal of different bodies. First, students of the School for Adult Blind being aboard, then the Sons of Spanish-American War Veterans were entertained, and last week the newsmen of the city, through The Oregonian, had the run of the ship for two hours.

The Success will be opened today and tomorrow until 10 o'clock at night, and early Wednesday will be started on her long tow to Seattle. Captain Smith originally had planned to close the ship last night, but as it will require less than a week to shift the Success to Puget Sound, and many are returning from vacations, he decided to continue her exhibition two days.

Warm weather did not detract from the interest displayed in the ship yesterday, there being a large crowd aboard during the afternoon and evening. Because of the proximity of the vessel to the dock of the Yellow Stack line there were numerous Oregon City residents, making the trip here by steamer, to include the prison ship in their rounds of the city.

Tradition, however, is no older than some of the other folk stories one hears from time to time.
