A CHURCH wedding, charming in its simplicity, was celebrated in the White Temple at a special last night when Miss Jean Katherine Allison became the bride of Homer B. Jamison. The wedding march was played by Miss Fay Ball, of Astoria, who presided at the organ. Rev. E. M. Blas, of Berkeley, Cal., an old friend of the family, officiated at the ceremony. The church was decorated beautifully with golden glow and other yellow blossoms combined with palms and ferns and wild asparagus. Miss Mildred Simpson attended as maid of honor and Raymond B. Early, of Hood River, was best man. Miss Robinson had charge of the bridesmaids. The young men are sigma Chi fraternity brothers of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a smart blue tailored suit and chic Fall hat in black velvet. Her corsage bouquet was of Cecil Brunner roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Simpson wore blue serge, strictly tailored with a corsage bouquet. Her bouquet was of pink roses.

The couple will pass their honeymoon in San Francisco. Mr. Jamison is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. V. M. Jamison.

At the University of Oregon, of which institution he is a graduate, Mr. Allison was regarded as a star athlete. He is now a member of the faculty of the Jefferson High School and is coach of the football, basketball and baseball teams of the school. At college he was captain of the baseball and basketball teams. Both Mr. and Mrs. Jamison graduated in the 1913 class.

As a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority, the bride was one of the most popular girls of her set and is possessed of a wealth of personality that has endeared her to all who know her. She is the daughter of Mrs. Katherine Allison.

After returning from California, Mr. and Mrs. Jamison will be at home in their attractive new residence, 1230 Commercial street, Piedmont.

Hundreds of electric lights, shaded with the multicolored Japanese lanterns, were hung about the grounds of the Waterbury Country Club last night. The plane presented a gala appearance in honor of the presence of the members of the Oregon and Washington State Bar Associations and their wives, daughters, sisters and friends. Frederick R. Bohren, chairman of the committee, had planned every detail for the entertainment with the greatest care and he functioned as one of the most brilliant and successful social feasts of the season. The guests arrived by water from Astoria and Kellogg, which was chartered for the occasion and made two trips to the country club.

The Ad Club quartet rendered several selections. David Bath, the memory expert, gave a unique part of the entertainment; John Flynn and his ministrations from Spokane added zest with their chief specialties; and orchestral music was provided for dancing, which was enjoyed before and after the program.

Tables for the serving of refreshments were arranged on the lawn and were overflowing with attractive, many-hued lanterns. Another group of guests, who were Mr. and Mrs. Jack H. W. Hogue, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Coan and Mr. and Mrs. Roger B. Sinnott.

Dispensing hospitality about the grounds and clubhouse were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Ben C. Day, Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Woodley, Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Watzek and Frederick R. Bohren. The ride on the river returning to the city was delightful and completed the ideal entertainment.

Miss Anna Elizabeth Hodecker and Dr. H. H. Schmitt will be married tonight in the First Presbyterian church. The couple have many friends who will be interested in their marriage.

Professor and Mrs. Thomas Huston MacBride are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. McBride. The latter couple motored to Seattle and their guests made the return trip with them. Bennett, the latter the mother of Mrs. Bolderston, Mrs. Hole and Mrs. Linton, are also guests at the hospitable home in Rose City Park.

Davis was hostess to a score of friends at a charming lawn party on Saturday at her home, 557 Lombard street. The grounds were decorated with Japanese lanterns festooned from tree to tree. The gay transparencies reflected light on the surrounding foliage and united to make a particularly pleasing setting for the affair. Outdoor games, dancing and luncheon at fresco were the features of the evening.

Mrs. Theodore Anderson entertained the members of the Bessie Lodge recently at a sewing party and tea. The guests enjoyed the afternoon on the lawn under the shade of the trees.

On August 23 the members of Utopia Rebekah Lodge will hold a picnic and basket lunch at the home of Mrs. Lillian Crion, Charles A. Gray in Valley road. For particulars telephone B. 1310.

NUMBERS COME LAST

NAMES PRECEDE IN NEW TELEPHONE DIRECTORY JUST OUT.

System Is Changed to Aid Memory; New Type Is Used; 50,000 Copies Are Being Distributed.

A new arrangement prevails in the latest directories just being distributed to the number of 50,000 copies by the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company. The prefix and number follow the name in the new books, instead of being placed before the name of the subscriber, as in all previous telephone catalogues issued by the company.

It is thought the new plan will prove a convenience to patrons, as when looking up a number in the new book the prefix and numerical come last, and on this account can be remembered more perfectly than before.

The books are being delivered in the city and suburbs by the company. They were printed in Portland, the issue being 60,000 copies, requiring five weeks for printing and binding, being the work of 80 employees. The books are entirely an Oregon product, the paper coming from the Crown-Willamette Paper Company, at Oregon City.

The books, if placed in a flat pile, would reach one mile high. If placed end to end they would reach from the center of Portland to Oregon City, a distance of 10 miles.

Few people realize the enormous undertaking it is to issue a telephone directory three times a year. The issue now being delivered has in it 59,880 pounds of white paper, 16,200 pounds of pink paper and 3500 pounds of cover stock—more than 51 tons of paper, in addition to 1500 pounds of ink.

All of the type used in printing this directory is entirely new. 6-point Roman, having many different reading numbers has been overcome, due to the style of type used.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR MUST BE ATTACKED UNDER THE SKIN

It has been proven by the world's greatest authority that hair is bound to grow out coarser and stiffer after each removal unless it is devitalized. It is impossible to revitalize hair with pastes and rub-on preparations, because they only remove hair from the surface of the skin.

DeMiracle, the original liquid depilatory, attacks the root of the hair, giving it the power to rob hair of its vitality—its life sustaining force.

Buy a bottle of the genuine DeMiracle today and you will get the original liquid hair remover. Others are worthless imitations—refugee hair. Remember, you are not asked to buy DeMiracle on a mere promise of your money being refunded. DeMiracle is the only depilatory that has a binding guarantee in each package which entitles you to the return of your money if it fails.

DeMiracle is sold in $1.00 and $2.00 bottles at the retailer, and is the most economical for dermatologists and large users to buy. If your dealer will not supply you, order direct from us. The truth about the treatment of superfluous hair has mailed in plain sealed envelope on request. DeMiracle Chemical Company, Dept. A, Park Ave. and 129th St., New York—Adv.

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about 2 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone.—Adv.

THE SANDMAN STORY

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

Mabel and the Monkey.

MABEL MORTON lived in a beautiful home on the banks of a small river. Beyond the lawn the hills rose, all covered with trees.

When Mabel was 3 years old her uncle, who lived in South America, sent her a monkey. The animal, which she named Jippy, had been well trained, and his funny antics were a delight to her.

In a short time they became fast friends, playing for hours about the house and lawn.

"That monkey bring out her big, rosy-cheeked doll Catherine and dress her up in all her fine clothes, while Jippy would sit quietly, like a good monkey should, though Mabel could see that he wanted to play with Catherine very much.

"No, you mustn't touch Catherine," Mabel would say, shaking her small hand at Jippy. And Jippy minded her, though he did long so much to hold Catherine in his little paws.

Mabel's father went to the city every day on business. As soon as Mabel would see him coming from the station at the evening she would wrap Catherine in a little doll's quilt and put her to bed. Then she and Jippy would scurry away to meet her daddy.

Now, though Jippy was a good little monkey, sometimes he just couldn't help being mischievous, and at times would get in Mr. Morton's private study and muss up things rightfully. Then Mr. Morton would be very much provoked with the little fellow.

"Mabel, he would say, 'I will really have to send that monkey away. Here he has spilled ink all over my desk again.' But Mabel would beg so earnestly for poor Jippy, that her father would always forgive the little fellow. And so the two had a fine time playing.

But though Jippy was a lot of fun, Mabel, who was only a child, would often get lonesome for a little playmate, and so one day when a little brother was born her delight was boundless. Jippy would look at her when she was holding little Paul, for that was the baby's name, and wish very much that he could hold it, too.

"No, Jippy, you must keep your little paws off of Paul, just like you do off of Catherine." And Jippy understood and never touched the baby.

One day when little Paul was about two months old Mabel's mother went to town with Mr. Morton, leaving the children in charge of the nurse.

Now, a few miles up the river there was a great dam. It had been raining hard for several days, and the dam was overflowing. As nurse and Mabel were eating luncheon, while the baby was asleep in his cradle on the porch, a man called out, "Run for your lives! The dam has broken, and a flood is coming down the river."

Frightened out of her wits almost, the nurse seized Mabel and ran across the lawn to the hills beyond. She had hardly scrambled up the side when the flood came roaring down. As the nurse looked back and saw the water swirling about the house up to the second story, she remembered that she had left the baby asleep on the porch.

"Oh! what shall I do, what shall I do," she cried, but there was nothing she could do but bring her hands and weep.

When later Mabel's parents came hurrying out from the city and heard about the baby they were grief-stricken, and when, late in the day, the flood passed and they could get to the house, they all sorrowfully made their way to where the baby had been hidden. Mabel, who happened to look up at a little balcony in the attic, cried joyfully: "A baby!"

They looked up, and there, sitting on the balcony, with baby Paul nestled in his arms, sat Jippy, rocking back and forth, just as he had often seen Mabel rock her doll. Mabel flew up the stairs to the attic and soon returned with the baby, which was all safe and sound, while Jippy followed timidly behind, for he was uncertain, poor little fellow, whether he was going to be punished or not. But he chattered with delight when Mabel picked him up and hugged him, while her father patted his brown little head.
