SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—(Special.)—Whether it was the near approach of new pitching material with the subsequent shake-up or the logging from the release of baseball heavers already cut loose from the family hearthstone tis hard to say, but something happened to Curly Brown today. Forget all the bumpings the side-wheeler has taken for his portion in the past. He redeemed himself this afternoon in the opener of the series against Portland, when he not alone blanked the Beavers, but let them down with five scattered hits. Once the boys from the north got a man as far around as third base, but there were two down and some fancy fielding stunts pulled them out of harm's way.

Coveleskie Also Strong.

It was a tight fit at that, for the Seals found the going hone too smooth with Stanley Coveleskie opposed to them in the box. The Polish gentleman gave a rattling good performance and the San Francisco aggregation was lucky to chase one run around the bases, the score totaling 1 to 0, at the windur the windup the windup.

It was that same C. Brown who was largely responsible for winning his own game. He started things in the sixth inning with an infield single, Ward making a desperate but unsuccessful try for his man. Fitzgerald bunted for a sacrifice and Schaller's grounder to Derrick sent the pitcher around to third. He tallied when Ping Bodie shot a hot one through the infield to center. Beavers Fight to End.

McCredie never stopped trying and in the eighth used two pinch hitters in an effort to tie the score. With Derrick out and Ward safe when Meloan dropped a throw from shortstop, Davis was sent in to bat for Coveldskie. The nearest the Northerners came to scoring was in the fourth when Speas reached first on a fielder's choice, second on a stolen base and third on an infield out, but there were two down and Corhan made a pretty play to retire Stumpf at first and the Beavers went back to the field. The score:

Johnston's speed and place work easily won him the first two sets. Hacket, however, made a great stand in the third and by his steadiness in returning all of Johnston's shots, forced the young Californian into a deuce set. PRESIDENT BAUM is considering the "mud bail" and doubtless will take steps to abolish the delivery, according to word from San Francisco. Although he has given his umpires word to take no action against the new delivery, he is meantline investigating.

The "mudder" can be abolished under the rule that covers the discoloration of the sphere, but to do so would mean the placing of the ban on licorice, tar oil, rosin, tobacco juice and even the "spitter." There are few pitchers in any league who do not depend upon one of these brands.

an opponent. The champion was winner by the overwhelming acore of 14 up and 13 holes to play.

One brilliant struggle made today's play memorable. James D. Standish, Jr., of Detroit, Mich., state champion, was the hero. He vanquished W. C. Fawnes, of Pittsburg, after a heart-breaking round of 37 holes.

Fawnes was 3 down when afternoon play began. He overhauled his young rival and the match was squared on the 34th hole. Neither could gain a margin on the next two greens, but Fawnes missed a short putt for the 37th after Standish, who was seven feet from the cup, had sunk the ball. The Detroiter, who has been runner-up to Evans in the last two Western championships, will meet Oulmet to-morrow.

At the end of the 20th week of the race, Gedeon had driven in 92 runs and Ness had to be satisfied with second honors, showing a total of 59 runs driven in.
