SOCIETY NEWS

Peters will become the bride of the popular Hallett Winslow Maxthe popular Hallett Winslow Max-weil. Their engagement was made known yesterday at an unusually pretty and artistle luncheon presided over by Mins Helen Ladd. The news was told by Bluebird place cards, bear-ing the cards of the young people, tied together with tiny clusters of orange blossoms, a huge bowl of pink rose-buds decking the table. Covers were placed for Miss Peters, Miss Patsy Stewart, Miss Marguret Mears, Miss Harriette Cumming, Miss Mary Brown-lie, Miss Sara McCully, Miss Rhoda Rumelin, Miss Catherine Russell, Miss Elizabeth Jones, Miss Ailsa MacMasabeth Jones, Miss Ailsa MacMas-Miss Esther Tucker and the at-

Miss Peters is an unusually pretty girl, and recently finished school at Dana Hall. Previous to that she attended St. Helen's Hall. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Petors. She has never been formally presented to society, and as ret there are no plans for the wedding.

Mr. Jiaxwell is a social favorite, and is the son of Mrs. A. L. Maxwell, assister of Mrs. Maxwell Blake, of Tanglets, Morocco, who is visiting here this summer, and of George Maxwell, of Hoquiam, Wash. He attended Portland Academy, and later entered Exeler school in New Hampshire.

Miss Katherine Ecob is receiving a great deal of social attention from members of local society. One of the latest affairs in her honor, also for Miss Eleanor Seara, of New York, was the luncheon presided over by Mrs. Joseph N. Teal yesterday. The table was attractively decked with garden flowers, and the guests were Miss Picob, her sister with whom she is visiting, Mrs. Harold M. Sawyer, Miss Sears, house guest of Mrs. Preston Smith, Jr., Mrs. Smith, Miss Genevieve Charch, Mrs. John Chaire Monteith, Miss Mary Meldrum and Miss Isabella Gauld.

They were later married. Her brother, Kaiakaua, became king in 1874 and named her hell apparent. She immediately assumed her royal position, tottring the island and announcing herself to her people. She twice became regent during the absence of the king and was recognized by Queen Victoria, who kissed and embraced her. Her brother died suddenly in San Francisco in 1891, an it was then that "Queen Lil" began her vivid career.
