Jitney Has Lark on Lawn, but Driver Scorns Reparation.

Garden Hose Makes Stop for Water Convenient and Hospital Trip Threat Holds Up Warrant.

HONK! Honk! With this call in his ears, a resident of Portland, near East Seventy-second and Division streets, looked out the front window of his home in time to see a jitney drive over the sidewalk and up on his lawn one afternoon early this week. Attoned, but not well pleased, the resident craned his neck at saw the driver of the jitney climb out of the machine and pick up the garden hose. The lawn was closed for the day and the water was turned on. The householder ran to the door. As he broke forth to the porch with fire in his eye, the jitney was just departing, with a farewell toot of the horn. The number of the jitney was seen, however, and the next day this citizen telephoned to the owner and asked him to repair the damage to his lawn and lawn done by the automobile. "Go to the devil," was the polite response. The man remonstrated and threatened arrest. "If you make trouble for me I'll give you six months in the hospital," was the retort courteous. The last remark remained with this man, and though he complained to Deputy District Attorney Deich yesterday of the action of this jitney driver, whose name he said was "Wood," he decided not to take out a warrant.

Mormon scripture prophesies that no king shall reign in this land save God alone. As long as the people are true to God and keep his laws they will be invulnerable, even against the combined powers. He spoke also of the great moral awakening of the people in the last decade, and the growth of confidence in the power of the United States and her prestige. The meeting closed with the singing of "America."

Standing on Their Rights. Imitators try to defraud your children of their rights by offering substitutes for HOLSUM BREAD. The fact that HOLSUM is imitated is the most conclusive proof of its goodness. Only good things are imitated. And like all imitations the imitations of HOLSUM BREAD never equal the original. They lack the distinctive HOLSUM flavor and the HOLSUM crispness and goodness because those who make them lack the HOLSUM formula and facilities. You cheat yourself when you ask for HOLSUM and take a substitute. HOLSUM WRAPPED. Pure—Untouched by Hands—Direct to Your Kitchen. Double Size 10c. HOLSUM Jr. 5c. Log Cabin Baking Co.
