Negotiations Still Pending for Sale of Several Other Stars-Draft May Take Coveleskie or Bates From Portland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—In the ppinion of officials of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, greater inroads will be made upon the personnel of the or-ganization this year than at the end of any previous season. The major leagues' drafting season opened today, leagues' drafting season opened today, which means that for five days one player may be drafted from each of the clubs for a consideration of $2500. The system of secrecy in vogue last Fall to counteract any move that might be made by the Federal League will be in force this year, but the activities of major league scouts recently have indicated that there will be extensive recruiting. recruiting.

Downs, second baseman, and Manager Harry Wolverton would not be much surprised to lose him by draft.

Portland is likely to lose by draft either Coveleskie, the best winning pitcher of the team, or Bates, third baseman, known as a hard hitter.

On September 22, five days after the lose of the big league drafting season, Coast League managers will get busy. It is said to be unlikely that many of them will take advantage of the op-portunity to raid the lower minors, as they are said to fear the moves of the Federal League on the new material.
