

MERCHANTS FILLING DOLLAR-DAY RANKS

Entry Lists for Publication Will Close Saturday Noon, With 600 or 800 Signed.

BENEFITS ARE POINTED OUT

Offering of Unusual Bargains Is Expected to Be Big Aid to Small Dealer in Obtaining and Retaining More Trade.

With only a few days remaining until the dawn of the big trading Dollar day, the merchants of the city are beginning to realize that any firm that stays out of the move will miss a comfortable jingle in his cash register, and yesterday they were beginning to start the final rush to get in under the big test.

Secretary W. E. Conkling put in the most of the day registering the names of firms that are to take part.

"The committees that have been at work have been composed of business men and women who were willing to expend a few days explaining Dollar day to other merchants, but they are people who are alive to what the event will do for them in getting new customers, etc., and they must devote their time to getting their own stores ready," announced Mr. Conkling.

It is proposed to begin advertising all names of participants in Sunday papers, and the copy must be ready for submission not later than Saturday noon. Any merchant who desires to get in should take immediate action.

"There is every desire on our part to have every merchant participate. The only thing is that we do not have the time to call on them at their stores. There is every reason why every merchant should get into this Dollar-day game."

"That is especially true of the small merchant—that is, small as compared with the department store man."

Little Merchant to Benefit.
"Dollar day will help the little fellow immensely. It has done it everywhere that Dollar day has been carried out. It gets new customers into his store to see the bargains he advertises for that day, and if he is the right kind of a business man he will keep them coming back."

Dollar day in Portland—next Thursday—is to be the right kind of a shopping tour.

Every merchant out of the $60 or $80 who will take part is making ready to offer unusual bargains for $1. In every instance it will mean the selling of an article of much greater value than $1.

Big Suburban Trade Expected.
And there is every indication that the shoppers of Portland and the suburban trade district which is served by Portland merchants will be ready for the day.

Some of the merchants who offer alluring bargains will be cleaned out before night.

"Please emphasize the fact that we want every merchant to get into the game," said Charles P. Berry, general chairman of the Dollar day committee. "Tell them to send down to the Chamber of Commerce and throw it to the breeze. The sooner they get them out the better, and the more business they will do."

BOISE SCORES FERRIS BILL

Club Asks Mining Congress to Help in Fight for State Control.

BOISE, Idaho, Sept. 16.—(Special).—Declaring most vigorously for state control of natural resources, and protesting strongly against the passage of the Ferris water-power bill, the directors of the Commercial Club of this city, in resolutions adopted today, instructed its special representative, J. B. Eldredge, to present a plea for its operation to the American Mining Congress, which convenes at San Francisco.

"We are convinced that it is the duty of every public or semi-public body in the State of Idaho to protest vigorously against the passage in the United States Senate of the Ferris water-power bill, vesting control of water-power sites and resources in the Federal Government bureau, the Interior Department," say the resolutions.

"The principle which backs the furtherance of this character of legislation is un-American. Its adoption means oppression of the West and tyrannical forcing of injurious and harmful bureaucratic rule upon us by the Eastern and Southern States."

WOMAN, HURT, GETS $7100

Southern Pacific Ordered to Pay for Injuries in Wreck.

OREGON CITY, Or., Sept. 16.—(Special).—A verdict for $7100 was returned for Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Dillow and against the Southern Pacific Company by a jury in the District Court today, after an hour's deliberation. Mrs. Dillow sued for $30,000.

The case opened Wednesday afternoon and went to the jury at noon today. The railroad company at the opening of the trial admitted liability, and the only point of contention was the extent of Mrs. Dillow's injuries. Physicians from Portland and Oregon City were the principal witnesses.
Mrs. Dillow was injured April 18, when a car in which she was riding collided with an electric locomotive on the Willamette Falls line of the Southern Pacific, across the Willamette from Oregon City.
