BY GERTRUDE P. CORBETT

To Miss Claire Wilcox, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore B. Wilcox, falls the honor of entertaining with the first important social function of the season. It was a charming dance at the Waverley Country Club last night, with the popular and delightful Miss Isabelle Tyson of Knoxville, Tenn., as the guest of honor. The rooms were gay with the beautifully gowned women and their escorts who were bidden to meet the charming visitor, also to greet Miss Genevieve Brooke, who made her formal bow to Portland society last night. She received with Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox, Miss Wilcox and Miss Tyson, the receiving line forming a handsome and distinguished group.

Miss Brooke is the younger daughter of Mrs. Edward M. Brooke, who has for several years made her home in Washington, D. C. Miss Brooke is a delightful and popular addition to the young set and will be in demand at smart functions during the season.

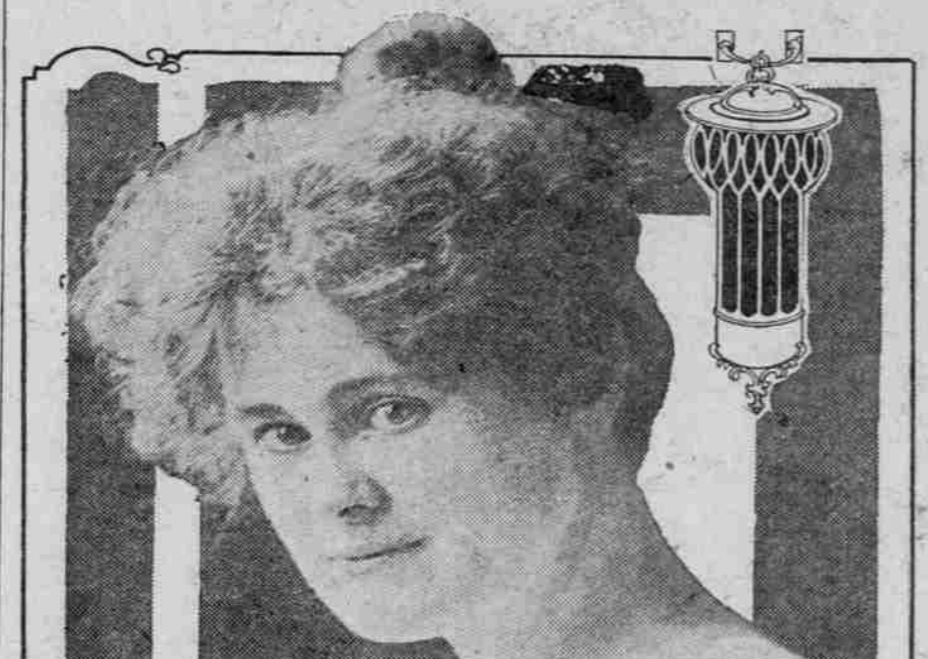

The Country Club was a bower of lovely blooms, enhancing the beauty of the gowns of the fair sex. In the large reception-room tall standards were filled with flaming pink gladioli, and with a profusion of brilliant-hued autumnal foliage.

Golden-hued sunflowers were gracefully arranged with bright cones in the broad halls, and the rose-colored ballroom was charming with baskets and standards filled with rose tips and the vivid-toned autumn leaves. Baskets of vari-colored asters adorned the supper tables in the dining-room.

IRVINGTON MAID WHOSE ENGAGEMENT HAS JUST BEEN ANNOUNCED.

of exultation in one's country, a feeling, not of vainglory, but of joyful pride in the wonders and vastness of a territory that is ours, but that has hitherto been unknown and unappreciated.

It seems almost as if we are just discovering America. At least many of us are just discovering what treasures of beauty we have here, what vast and unexplored fields for pleasuring and health-getting.

I think the phrase "When I was West" will bring a glow to the face of the one who hears it and who has also been West. A leap of the spirit and an interchange of joyful reminiscences such as the words "When I was in Europe" never called forth.

THE SANDMAN STORY
By Mrs. F. WALKER

Nellie Norton's Nose.

"NELLIE." "Yes, mother, I will be there in a second," replied Nellie, as she swung down from the fence and ran into the kitchen.

"What were you doing in the yard?" asked Mrs. Norton, who was busy making jelly.

Nellie blushed and hung her head. "I was watching old Mrs. Brown scolding her children," replied Nellie. "It is funny to hear what she says and see how the family run about when she scolds them."

"I wish, dear," said Mrs. Norton, sadly, "that you would learn the lesson of not peeping into other people's business. It is a very bad habit and the one that will grow on you till it becomes unbearable. I have an errand on which I wish you to go. Take this jelly upon the hill to Mr. Turner's house—it is for her sick brother."

Nellie put on her hat, took the jar of jelly and set out down the path to the outskirts of town. But she had gone only a few steps when she stopped to see what Mr. Edmonds was doing in his neighbor's yard. A bit further on she peered into the open door of a friend and caught a sight of the dining table, about which people were seated, then she passed a baby carriage full of bundles, only to go back and slyly open every package to see what it contained.

As she went, by the grocery store, a big jar stood outside without any lid. Down went Nell's head to see what was inside. Over every fence she peered into every yard she peeped and it was very late by the time she left the jelly at Mrs. Turner's and set out on her way home. Over the hill clouds came rushing up on gusty blows that shook the trees and frightened Nell so much that she started off on a run. Getting half way down the hill she struck her foot against a stone and fell sprawling, hitting her nose sharply against a flat plain washed and in its place was a flat plain with huts of straw, in which queer people with long noses were living. Nell could see dozens of them, men, women and children. All had ugly lean bodies and noses that were a bright purple and about as long as their waists. It was hard for them to walk, or eat, or drink, for in everything they did the big nose would be in the way.

"Great heavens, what has happened!" exclaimed Nell, as a hideous-looking man passed. "Where is the town and what is this going on here?"

"Why, nothing has happened, Miss. This is Busybody land and you have at last come among us. See how your nose has grown?" Nell looked down and sure enough her pretty white nose had become long and bumpy and purple.

"Yes, that is what we have all gotten for being busybodies and poking our noses into other people's business," continued the man. "At least we walk and find ourselves in this terrible country. I was once a boy on earth, and pecking, like you, into everyone's affairs. One day I found myself here, and here I have been for 500 years."

Nell was so horrified to speak. She had been brought off body from her home on earth and was living in some goblin land, which was too terrible to think about. With a moan she fell on her knees and began to weep. But she could not wipe her eyes, for her big, ugly, bumpy purple nose wobbled in the way. Then she felt a cool hand suddenly touch her brow.

"Oh, Nell, I am so glad you have come to your senses," she heard her mother say, and Nell opened her eyes to find her mother bending anxiously above her. She lay on a couch in the bedroom.

"You tripped coming down the hill

When I Was West.
A new phrase has come into our National speech.

In fact, it is not only a new phrase, but it has replaced an old one. There is not only a substitution in speech, but there is likewise a complete change of spirit back of the phrase. And when we recall the phrase, "When I was in Europe" on our tongue with a little feeling of pride and superiority, we sense to be, with the change of the two, for it is a change that will have some effect upon our National life and a change over which I think many of us will rejoice.

For we have to a large extent replaced the phrase "When I was in Europe" with "When I was West."

from Mrs. Turner's" explained her mother. "And when you fell you hit your head so hard you were made unconscious. The groceryman brought you back at once and I have been working over you for half an hour with ammonia and cold water to bring you to yourself."

Nell sighed with relief. "Do you know, mother," she said slowly, with a grateful smile, "I am glad to be home, and in future I will mind my own business—I don't want to go again to Busybody land."

PEACE ADVOCATE RETURNS

E. P. Rosenthal Is Organizing New Christian Association.

E. P. Rosenthal, the organizer of the Christian Peace Association, has returned from a tour through the Willamette Valley, establishing branches of the Christian Peace Association. He visited Salem, Albany, Eugene, Grants Pass, Medford and Ashland. In Salem, the names of the Governor, the ministers of the various churches and the presidents of the women's clubs head the list of associates.

In the other towns the ministers have taken an active part and Mr. Rosenthal has spoken in libraries, churches and the public parks. He has also spoken at prayer meetings, Sunday schools, regular church services and the women's clubs.

A peace rally, with a programme, will be given in the auditorium of the Journal building, Monday at 8 P. M.

Protecting You

Every step in the manufacture of the strength-bestowing beverage-food, Ghirardelli's Ground Chocolate, is done for your protection; for by protecting you we protect ourselves.

All the skill, all the care involved in the making of Ghirardelli's Ground Chocolate would be largely wasted if it were not packed in hermetically sealed cans.

When the Ghirardelli can is sealed, the good qualities within are kept in and the evils without are kept out. Let the Ghirardelli label be your guide to absolute protection.
