Allies Declared Not to Have Done as Well Recently as They Had Hoped.

ENEMY'S LINES INTACT

Situation Is Serious, Says Cabinet Member, and to Win Will Require Whole of Strength and National Capacity.

LONDON, Sept. 17 .- The first speech made to the public by a member of the British Cabinet since the publication of rumors of a difference of opinion in the Cabinet over the question of members favoring conscription would resign unless compulsory service was introduced within a week, was delivered by Winston Spencer Churchill. Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, at Enfield today.

"It is not an easy moment," said Mr. Churchill, "for a public man to open his mouth on any topic, for there are so many people who seem to have less to do than they ought to who are engaged in trying to make difficulties, even more than already evisted, and seeking more than already existed, and seeking to make artificial divisions in regard to matters of great consequence which should be approached in a spirit of impartiality and good will."

Allies Are Disappointed. Mr. Churchill added that during the past four or five months the allies had not done as well as they might have i. There had been events which, not disastrous, were disappoints. In France and Flanders a series of resolute and costly attacks were made on the German lines and, although ground was gained, the lines of the Germans were not pierced. the Dardanelles, he said, the allies had gained invaluable ground which led them toward a decisive conclusion, but they had not gained the advantage at the points at which they aimed. Then there had come the retreat of Then there had come the retreat of the Russians and, while the Russians were rearming and recovering their strength, a new and unmistakable burden had fallen on Great Britain. The situation was a serious one, but the allies had it in their power to carry the war to a successful conclusion, and the war to a successful conclusion, and they could do it, the Chancellor said, it the national capacity.

Duty All That Can Be Done. After all, Mr. Churchill continued the allies did not seek the struggle, and if they did their duty they would have done all they could.

those who afterward looked back upon "this unhappy but not inglorious" gen-eration, would be able to say "we did not fail under the test and have preserved the liberties of the world.

LAW IS HELD OBSOLETE

Judge Holmes Says "Sunday Closing" Not on Statutes.

TILLAMOOK, Or., Sept. 17 .- (Special.) -Judge Webster Holmes says the Sun-day closing law has been repealed since January 20, 1865. "The Sunday closing law," he says, "was handed down from territorial days, under the provision of the state constitution, article 18, section 7, which provides 'all laws in force in the Territory of Oregon when this constitution takes effect and consistent therewith. shall continue in force until altered or repealed. The Sunday closing law was included in the code of criminal procedure passed October 19, 1864. Two days later the same session repealed it by passing Senate bill 71, entitled 'An burglary in the second degree.

There has been much ado about nothing for a good many years by the mistaken belief that we had a "Sunday closing law" in Oregon."

The Judge referred to a case in Ma-tion County where the law was at tacked. Judge Bennett signed the writ of review from the Justice Court on July 25, 1904, and the case was tried before Judge Galloway, who reversed the case on the grounds set out that there was no Sunday closing law.

Coming direct from the war-stricken country and after a voyage fraught with many terrors, these young people find them-selves the center of much curiosity. They have two brothers fighting for their country. The younger one, who belongs to the Royal Irish Rifles, has been wounded at the Dardanelles. The older brother was badly wounded in the battle of the Aisne. He is now a Sergeant, training young officers at Cork. Miss Johnson, in officers at Cork. Miss Johnson, in speaking of the voyage, said: "We left Liverpool on the Cunard liner Cam-eronian and while going through the danger zone we were accompanied by two warships, which we could most always see in the distance. We heard rumors that there was a submarine in our vicinity and, being just a day or two after the sinking of the Arabic, we were told that all danger from the submarines was past.

"The next day during the sports on deck a big crowd of passengers gave three cheers for the captain of the Cameronian for bringing them safely through, and there were also three cheers for President Wilson and the United States."
