

STIRRING APPEAL IS MADE FOR PEOPLE

Ex-Senator Fulton Pleads for Development of Western Forest Reserves.

HOMESEEKERS DENIED USE

Proposal for State to Take Over and Sell Grant Lands Pointed Out to Be Serious and Uncertain Feature.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Sept. 17.—A stirring appeal for "human conservation," instead of "forest conservation," was offered the delegates to the Land Grant Conference here last night by ex-Senator C. W. Fulton, of Portland.

Mr. Fulton had been invited to speak on the "constitutional questions" involved in the land grant case, but directed his utterances more to an instructive explanation of the "blighting policies" of Federal restrictions against development in the West.

He declared that it would be far better for the state and the country to have the timber in the forest reserves turned into timber lands and the land opened to settlers than to cause the forest to remain uncut and undeveloped for the benefit of generations yet unborn.

Speaking of the policy that the state should advocate regarding the disposal of the lands, Senator Fulton declared that the proposal for the state to pay the railroad $2.50 an acre for the lands and sell them and convert the surplus into the school fund, was fraught with obstacles and risks.

"It is not entirely certain," said he, "that we would realize a profit. If it were, then the scheme would be quite attractive. There are, however, too many serious obstacles to be encountered, among which would be the amending of our constitution; for as it is the state could not for this purpose incur an indebtedness of $10,000,000. It would require a much greater indebtedness to handle the proposition. It is not entirely certain, also, that the voters would favor assuming such a burden."

"The primary principle I would urge is that the state should take the covenants of the grant, as far as practicable, be enforced. That is, the lands should be sold to actual settlers in quantities not exceeding 250 acres to any one person, for not to exceed $250 an acre. I do not want the soil of this state withdrawn from its activities. I do not want any more dead acres. We already have too much such territory. We want home builders, and every acre of publicly owned land suitable for home building should be open to settlement."

Senator Fulton told the conference that he doubted the power of the Government to restore the lands to the public domain, although he said that this would not militate against it agreeing to liberal terms for their disposal. He declared that the state should insist that the lands be sold to the public domain, but must continue in private ownership.

"I suggest," he continued, "that a careful classification of the lands be recommended. Those suitable for agriculture and stock raising should be disposed of only to actual settlers on the easiest terms possible. Those of a mineral character, such as are chiefly valuable for timber should be sold on some plan designed to secure to the public the maximum value."

Railroad Consideration suggested. In conclusion the Senator urged that it might be well for the state to meet the railroad half way in securing an agreement for the lands, as suggested by Mr. Dunne, of the Southern Pacific, in his address in the afternoon.

Representative W. C. Hawley, of Salem, followed Mr. Fulton, and while not agreeing with him in the limit of power enjoyed by the Federal Government, was thorough in pointing out that the lands opened to settlement.

Representative Hawley pointed out to the delegates in several places that the Government could do likewise in Oregon.

He advanced the argument that the terms of the original grant should be carried out and that the lands be sold at $2.50 an acre as first provided.

Mr. Laflerty is heard. Ex-Representative A. Laflerty gave the audience a detailed account of the history of the land grant case and told of the part that he had had in it. As attorney for some of the settlers on the land, he said, he filed a suit eight years ago today, asking the Government to forfeit title on account of the alleged failure of the railroad to carry out its agreement. Mr. Laflerty quoted from Congressional records and from legal documents bearing on the subject and did not finish his address until 11:15 tonight.

Representative C. N. McArthur was invited to speak tonight, but deferred his utterances till tomorrow, deferred his utterances till tomorrow, deferred his utterances till tomorrow.

DUMA SILENCED BY CZAR Right to Reassemble Session in November Urged.

PETROGRAD, via London, Sept. 17.—The Russian Duma was prorogued until mid-November today, President Rodzko announcing an imperial order authorizing the prorogation which had been transmitted through Premier Goremeykin. The session lasted only three minutes. The reference to the "imperial" message was read by the vice-president, but the constitutional democrats maintained silence.

All the deputies immediately left the hall, only Deputy Kerenky, a laborite, who shouted "Down with all traitors," attempting to speak. The leaders of the Duma decided there should be no debate because Kerenky insisted on his right to say what he liked.

Only a score of spectators had gathered in the streets. The deputies, as they left the chamber, held private party conferences, appeared generally cheerful.

It is pointed out that the Emperor reserved the right to recall the Duma before November 14 if he wished.

ATTRACTION HOMES URGED BY SUPERINTENDENT ALDERMAN. Christian Influence Through Parents Rather Than Bible Teaching in Schools is Favored.

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 17.—The Pan-American Road Congress yesterday adopted a resolution calling on Congress to investigate the feasibility and necessity of a system of military highways throughout the country.

The original resolution recommended by the committee on resolutions called on Congress to investigate the practicability of investigating the practicability of building a military highway through California, Oregon and Washington from the Mexican to the Canadian line, to cost $50,000,000.

Delegates from the interior of Illinois objected to the resolution, arguing that the word "military" should be left out and that the motion should be made broader so as to include all sections of the United States.

Work by Convicts Advocated. C. P. Coleman, State Highway Commissioner of Virginia, and J. E. Maloney, secretary-engineer of the Colorado State Highway Commission, told the Congress that the placing of convicts at work on the workers' roads would go far toward providing a solution of the existing prison problem.

Mr. Coleman declared that the work built up the men physically, and result morally, and fitted them for life on leaving prison. Maloney said that the honor system had proved a success in every way.

"It would seem fair and just," said Mr. Maloney, "that the prisoners employed on the roads should receive a monetary remuneration as well as receiving the benefit of having their prison terms shortened. It would permit prisoners to accumulate small funds to assist them when they were thrown back on the world."

Labor Not Competitive. "To road work there is little or no competition with free labor," he continues.

"The work on which the convict is engaged is one of pressing need to the public and creates in the worker a kind of pride in his own usefulness."

"This was Pacific Highway day at the congress, which will hold its final session tomorrow."

illustrated to Miss Kitty Evans when she caught the largest nickel seen in the vicinity of Rock Hill, N. J., for three seasons. He weighed four and one-half pounds after he had been lunched for biting off the top of Miss Evans' right index finger. When alive and in possession of a temper it is assumed that he weighed about 20 pounds.

Miss Evans, who lives in Jersey City and who is stopping at the Lord Hotel in Rock Hill, started out for a fishing trip with Joseph Fenton, one of the best-known fishermen about town. They devoted most of their time up to noon to fishing in the bay. Fenton, an anonymous pickerer and they assumed it was the same one that tried to telephone the canon.

It was a large nickel, and as she had but one line, it was decided to go to the trouble of freeing it. Miss Evans directed the course to where the log was and she and Fenton, who had reached down into the water. With a scream she pulled her hand up and a large nickel was seen. The nickel was thrown into the bottom of the boat. It is asserted all she had lost of her finger was a little bit of the top.
