Although it was too wet to decide the wager yesterday, Champlon Wil-helm appeared on the scene for a little helm appeared on the scene for a little test of distance. On his first shot he cleared the leftfield fence easily, using a brassle, and on his second his ball hit high on the roof of the Chapman School building and bounded over.

Justin Fitzgerald, of the Seals, used to be a caddy around San Francisco years ago, and he cracked one near the centerfield scoreboard. Fitz' ball hit in the centerfield bleachers and bounced over the fence.

The supply of balls ran out at this functure, and Rube Evans had no ammunition with which to practice with his trusty baseball bat. So the argument is right where it decided some afternoon this week prior to one of the Portland-Oakland soirces. It will be quite a novelty to most of the ball fans, who have never seen a goifball clicked off the tec.

Grover Alexander.

"You made me what I am today" may rightfully be said by the Philadelphia National League club to its pitching idol, Grover Alexander, although Dave Bancroft, of Portland, also had a hand in the Phillies' pennant. Alexander's mound work this year has been remarkable. Fans are speculating about what Tris Speaker will do when he faces Alexander in the world series games. Speaker seems to take to Alexander's style of pitching. But time will tell.

An echo of last Thanksgiving day's Oregon-Multnomah football game on Multnomah Field cropped up Saturday at Eugene when these same elevens met in a 16-7 duel. In Saturday's game Captain Rupert and Len Streibig, of the Winged "Ms" and Bartlett, of Oregon were ordered off the field by the officials for "rough housing."

Last Thanksgiving the veteran clubmen took serious exceptions to some men took serious exceptions to some of the tactics used by Halfback Hunt-

Another man eligible for the California games has returned to the University of Washington. He is Ernest Murphy, '17, of Wallace. Idaho. Murphy was a substitute end on last year's crew and will be used as a reserve end and halfback this Fall. He is a big fellow, weighing about 190 pounds and standing about six feet tall. With Mike Hunt and Ed Leader and Murphy and Drummond, Washington has ends galore. Dobie is grooming a new man, Boyle, for the line. Boyle is a heavy man and a fighter.
