

in detail, even to the presence of the merry bagpipers, was the reception given last night at Ardgoun by Mr. and Mrs. William MacMaster in celebration of their silver anniversary. About 100 of the oldest and most intimate friends of the hosts were safy. About 100 of the oldest and must intimate friends of the hosts were asked to share their genial hospitality on the auspicious occasion and the event was artistic and delightful in every respect.

In the big, broad hall great bowls and baskets of roses, gladiola, zinnias and other garden flowers greeted the guests. In the drawing-room, where the hosts received their guesis, an especially lovely effect was obtained with chrysanthemums and Ophelia roses and dahlias, combined with palms. Autumnal foliage and ferns A pink and white color scheme was developed throughout the room. In the dining-room, where a buffet supper was served, the silver and green predominated. The table was charming with aliver candelabra and a large silver basket filled with bride roses and maidenhair ferns, similar baskets and bowls of the blossoms being effectively arranged about the room. feetively arranged about the room

In the library, where punch and wedding cake was served, a color scheme of yellow was developed with chrysanthemums, dahliss and kinnias. Here Miss Mary F. Failing, Mrs. William C. Alvord, Mrs. David T. Honeyman and Mrs. John Latta alternated in serving during the evening.

Gay little airs were piped by the group of musicians stationed on the enclosed veranda and an orchestra played indoors during the evening.

Presiding at the attractive supper table were Miss Failing, Mrs. James G. Gauld, Mrs. John G. Edwards and Mrs. Walter F. Burrell.

Mr. and Mrs. MacMaster were showered with beautiful floral tributes by their hosts of friends in Portland society.

Miss Viola Barenstecher was honored with a delightful tea for which Mrs. J. J. Valentine and Mrs. Owen Summers, Jr., were hostesses yesterday afternoon at the home of the former. Over 100 smartly-gowned women called during the afternoon, and the artistic floral decoration of the rooms made an effective foil for the gowns of the assemblage. The drawing-room, where the receiving party stood, was adorned with chisters of autumnal follage and salvia, all appointments of the dining-room being in pink, pink shaded candelabra and an artistic arrangement of labra and an artistic arrangement of pink roses and ferns decking the table

Mrs. Valentine was gowned in pink crepe meteor, embellished with lace, and she wore a corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. Summers' frock was of white lace over white charmeuse, worn with a corsage of violets and red roses.

Miss Barenstecher wore a pretty frock of pink chiffon over satin, trimmed with silver lace and a corsage of violets and pink rose buds.

Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Leroy Fields, Miss Lillian Morgan, Mrs. Thomas R. Conlon and Mrs. E. W. MacLean. They were assisted by Mrs. J. O. Humphry, Mrs. Homer I, Keeney, Miss Marian Morgan, Miss Helen Clarke and Miss Edith Olds.
