WHAT THEY SAY ABOUT "DAMAGED GOODS"

Social Disease Portrayed. "The vice of men in the form of horrible disease is reflected in the suffering of good women."—Chicago Examiner. Less in Real Life. "Damaged Goods" is a true and pure delineation of a social disease and its far-reaching effects on public and personal health.—Chicago Hygiene Committee, Mothers' Congress. Wages of Sin Told. "The more we have of 'Damaged Goods' the more we have in actual life."—Congressman L. Reilly, of Connecticut. Disease Ravages Filmed. "Stared with great attention to detail and with the delicate plot handled in a manner to produce the most telling effect. While at the same time skirting the borders of immorality, 'Damaged Goods' is a brilliant drama of the wages of sin."—Washington Post. Remedy Will Come. "The subject the community comes to realize is the danger that threatens the home, the unborn child and the race through unwedded or ill-regulated marriages, the sooner will a remedy be found."—W. C. Woodward, Health Officer, D. C. Hard-Hitting Sermon. "Damaged Goods" is a tract, a pamphlet, a sermon, the most awakening and hard-hitting we have ever seen.—New York Telegram. All Should See It. "Damaged Goods" is a drama which should be seen by every Congressman. A. B. Rouse, of Kentucky. Awful Truths. "Damaged Goods" as presented by Mr. Richard Bennett and his co-workers, should be seen by all parents, young men and women, for it shows the awful truths brought to light which should be hoodlums in living a 'vice' X 'danger' in no other manner."—Editorial, Hearst's Magazine. Appeal for Decency. "The affair Bennett and his co-workers, in it no vulgarity and no unnecessary facts are permitted to appear. It offers the strongest arguments against hypocrisy and makes a tremendous appeal for decency."—New York Telegram. Lesson Needed. "I think the 'Damaged Goods' will be beneficial to the country, as it is the most needed lesson."—Congressman Joseph Graham, of Illinois. Horrible Truth Impressed. "I would wish to take a young boy and girl of mine to see this play. 'Damaged Goods' is a play which could get any harm out of it. I confess I do not understand how it is put in such a horrible form, in living a 'vice' X 'danger' clean, artistic force, that the mind is impressed as it could possibly be impressed in no other manner."—Editorial, Hearst's Magazine. Square Deal for Future. "I welcome this new and brave forward step in the fight against vice. It is the reformer's trumpet blast to the present to give the future a square deal."—A. S. Johnson, Washington Hebrew Congregation. Bennett is very effective in pictures. His acting is splendidly adapted to the screen for the reason that his facial expressions are particularly powerful. The supporting company is excellent and the play promises to be one of the moving picture successes of the year."—Washington Herald. short addresses will be given by Dr. Alan Welch Smith, Ernest Stansbery, Samuel Connell and J.
