Columbian Optical Co. 145 Sixth St. Floyd Brower, Mgr. PROBABLY the most desirable shape of gar-ment for older children is the union suit. It is the most convenient to put on and to remove. Lackawanna Twins Union Suits are made along scientific lines. They fit perfectly. They range in sizes from two to sixteen. They are made from care-

dent, Mrs. Wilbur P. Thirkield, New Orleans; corresponding sccretary, Mrs. May Leonard Woodruff, Allendale, N. J.; record secretary, Mrs. D. D. Thomp-son, Evanston, III.; treasurer, Mrs. H. C. Jennings, Cincinnati.

hint of personal jealousy in the asso-clation of these two women. Miss Gordon gloried in the accom-plishments of Miss Willard and loved those who loved her friend. She put all thoughts of self down before the interests of the other woman. The two great temperance workers first became associated in 1877, when Frances Willard was directing the women's work in a Moody revival meet-ing. The organist was absent and the audience was called upon to volunteer compares favorably with the stories of Damon and Pythias or David and Jonathan. It reflects every element of self-sacrifice and lack of self-seeking. It is a monumental contradiction of the belief that woman's friendship for woman cannot be complete and all-embracing. Anna Gordon's association with Miss Willard was one of ministry. She gave the best years of her life to protect-ing Frances Willard from petty annoy-ances. Her love for the great tem-perance leader was a combination of all love, from that of a child's reverence for a parent to a mother's protection of a child. a child. Miss Willard was her companion's in-spiration in everything she did. For 21 years Miss Gordon allowed the cur-rent of her life to be directed by Miss Willard.
