

BITES FOR MOTHER OF SUFFRAGE TODAY

As Abigail Scott Duniway Deceased, Funeral Service Will Be Simple.

DEATH SHOCK TO FRIENDS

Ceremonies at Unitarian Church to Be Followed by Private Service at Mount Scott Cemetery for Family Members.

Funeral services for the late Abigail Scott Duniway, the mother of equal suffrage in Oregon, will be held at the First Unitarian Church, Broadway and Franklin streets, at 10 o'clock today. The Rev. T. L. Elliot, minister emeritus of the church, and a personal friend of Mrs. Duniway, will preside. The church service, in accordance with Mrs. Duniway's wishes, will be simple.

The honorary pallbearers will be Governor James Whitcomb, Senator George E. Chamberlain, Senator Harry Lane, Representative C. N. McArthur, H. L. Pittock, George H. Himes, ex-Senator C. W. Fulton, ex-Governor Oswald West and Judge M. C. George. The active pallbearers are to be Leslie M. Scott, Ambrose Scott, John H. Scott, Paul R. Kelly, James S. McCord and Kenneth S. Latourette.

Private services for members of her family and immediate friends will be held at the Mount Scott Cemetery. The body later will be cremated.

It is expected that the funeral will be attended by hundreds of Mrs. Duniway's personal friends and by citizens who want, in this way, to do honor to the pioneer suffrage leader. Persons in all parts of the state yesterday testified to the love and esteem in which the venerable advocate of equal rights for women was held. Even those who were opposed to the enfranchisement of women paid her high honor and respect.

Although on account of her extreme age and her recent illness, her death was not unexpected, the news that she finally had passed away was more or less of a shock to her many friends yesterday and formed the topic of much quiet discussion among people in all parts of the city.

In this connection many of the interesting incidents in connection with the life of Mrs. Duniway were recalled. The official proclamation making equal suffrage in Oregon effective was penned by Mrs. Duniway's own hand. This honor was conferred on her by Governor West, on November 19, 1912. The Governor called on Mrs. Duniway at her apartments in Portland and asked her to write the proclamation, which she gladly did. The document in her own handwriting is now on file in the office of the Secretary of State at Salem.

A notable group of suffrage leaders witnessed the ceremony. After Mrs. Duniway had completed the draft of the proclamation, Governor West attached his official signature to the document.

Below the Governor's signature appear the words: "The address is transcribed by Abigail Scott Duniway in her 75th year."

Mrs. Duniway's 75th birthday, on October 22, 1912, was a notable event in Oregon. A great public demonstration was given in her honor at the City Smith gymnasium, where thousands of people gathered, to pay a tribute of love and respect to her. Members of her family, officials of the state and local governments, old friends and suffrage leaders from various parts of the Northwest were seated on the platform with her. One of the principal speakers of that occasion was Mrs. Mac Arkwright Hutton, of Spokane, who died last week.

Mrs. Duniway received many beautiful floral offerings and hundreds of congratulatory messages from all parts of the country.

Mrs. Duniway was the first woman in Multnomah County to register as a voter. This privilege was extended to her February 14, 1913, through the courtesy of John B. Coffey, County Clerk. Mrs. Duniway at that time was unable to leave her apartments, and Mr. Coffey personally took the registration books to her room. She registered as a Republican. She signed her name with a firm hand in the spaces provided for that purpose. She gave her occupation as "author."

It is customary for women of her age—she was 75 at that time—to be "retired" as their occupation, but Mrs. Duniway insisted that she was too active to be classified as "retired."

Mrs. Duniway always condemned the militant methods of the English suffragettes, and gave forthrightly her opinion on this sentiment at a reception given in her honor at Eugene, November 18, 1913.

"Women can lead men all right," she said then, "but they must keep the strings out of sight. You cannot go after them in hammer and tongs. If you do they will rebel."

"One trouble with the woman suffrage movement is that it is being engineered by professional old maids."

A sculptured bust of Mrs. Duniway was completed about two years ago by Roswell Doeb, a young artist of Portland. It now is in possession of her family. The bust shows the head bent slightly forward and the eyes partially closed, indicating an attitude of deep study. All the lines of her face were faithfully reproduced. The bust was on exhibition for a time after its completion at the Portland Art Museum.

Mrs. Duniway appeared one time in the moving-picture film. This was when she cast her first vote at the municipal election, in 1912. The film, however, was not shown, at the request of Mrs. Duniway. The pictures show her leaving her home and going to the polls, and also show her leaving the automobile and entering the election booth.

Mrs. Duniway suffered a severe illness during the latter part of February and the early part of March, 1912, and was detained at home for several weeks. For a time she was threatened with an attack of pneumonia. Hard work in connection with launching the woman suffrage campaign of that year brought about her illness. Her wonderful vitality overcame the disease, and throughout the campaign of 1912 she was an active worker. She personally received the returns election night that told her that equal suffrage in Oregon had become a reality.

Mrs. Duniway was the first woman in Oregon summoned to serve on a jury. This was in early December, 1912, immediately after equal suffrage had become a fact. The summons was a mere formality, however, in recognition of Mrs. Duniway's lifelong battle for the ballot for her sex. She was not required to serve. The case was one in the Municipal Court and afterwards was tried by a jury of women, who disagreed.

This ended the experiment of calling women to jury service in Portland.

In the horse and vehicle parade of the 1912 Rose Festival the entry of the women's suffrage organizations won the first prize—a silver loving cup. This trophy afterwards was presented by the committee of suffrage women who had charge of the float to Mrs. Duniway. The ceremony of presentation took place at her home and was witnessed by many of her friends and members of her family.

An oil painting of Mrs. Duniway was completed by Edwin D. Betts, a New York artist, about four years ago, and presented to the Oregon Suffrage Association. It now hangs in the National Art Gallery at Washington, D. C. The portrait was unveiled at the Portland Hotel, September 16, 1911. The ceremony was attended by many of Mrs. Duniway's friends and by suffrage leaders. The picture shows the mother of equal suffrage in Oregon seated in an arm chair. The likeness is declared to be an excellent one.

Mrs. Duniway was opposed to prohibition in the form it is now being advocated. In the campaign of 1912 she took a more or less active part in the effort to defeat prohibition. She was a firm believer in temperance, however, which she said would be more effective than absolute prohibition. She believed in personal liberty.

EUGENE FEELS DEATH KEENLY

Intense Reverence Expressed at University for Mrs. Duniway.

EUGENE, Or., Oct. 11.—(Special.)—Word of the death of Mrs. Abigail Scott Duniway produced an expression of intense reverence in Eugene today, especially on the University campus. Mrs. Duniway championed the cause of the State University during the referendum fights several years ago, and has been looked to as one of its strongest friends. She took a particular interest in the women of the state institution, and was one of the first to join the movement for the erection of a women's building, and at one time worked toward having a bill brought before the Legislature asking for a special appropriation for this structure. At the present time the students are at work slowly gathering funds, hoping eventually to have enough to complete the plan which Mrs. Duniway helped in originating.

President P. L. Campbell, on learning of the death of Mrs. Duniway, said: "I have known Mrs. Duniway since boyhood and I have followed with great interest the efforts she made for equal suffrage in Oregon, especially as my own sympathies were with her in this fight."

"It is with great regret that I learn of the death of this woman of such unusual strength and personality and intellectual gifts," he said. "She has been much interested in the University of Oregon, particularly in the women of the University. She helped us in the work for the erection of a fund for the workmen's building, and at one time planned to work for the building before the Legislature."

Mrs. P. L. Campbell, a member of the Eugene Portnightly Club, returned yesterday from Portland, where, only yesterday, she left messages from the Eugene women for Mrs. Duniway, who was interested in the work of the Eugene Women and who has visited them here.

'WATCH DANGER SIGNAL'

FLYNN DECLARES NATURE HAS PLANS TO WARY US.

"Look Out for Cold Feet and Cold Hands, as They May Mean Prolapsed Organs Pressing," He Says.

W. E. Flynn, at the Eleventh-Street Theater last night, took up some of the fine points of many diseases that the audience has asked him to touch on—appendicitis, hardening of the liver, gall stones, prolapsed stomach and heart disease. Flynn said:

"Watch out for the danger signals. You read of someone dying suddenly at some social or some reception and you say 'I can't believe it, it is so sudden.' There is no such thing as sudden with nature. It doesn't treat us that way. She sends out one warning after another of our overdrawn account at her bank. When we pay no heed, but still keep on drawing, she sends the bill collector around and we have to pay or foreclosure takes place."

"Look out for the cold feet and the cold hands; they may mean prolapsed stomach pressing the organs of the abdominal cavity down, cutting off the blood supply to the liver, stomach, valvular heart trouble. Too much undigested food in body."

"Pain in region of heart—digestion slow; intercostal neuralgia; congestion of lining of thorax."

"Pain in pit of stomach—Inflammation of the gall duct; gall stones; cancer of the stomach."

"Mental depression—nervous exhaustion; torpid liver; slow digestion."

"Pay attention to a number of these signs along the road and there won't be any of this 'all of a sudden' business."

Tonight, 8 o'clock, "Commercialized Health" will be the subject.

HONOR SHOWN PORTLAND

B. F. Boynton Elected Vice-President of Railway Association.

Portland was honored in a twofold measure at the recent annual convention of the American Electric Railway Association held at San Francisco. In the first place, the convention delegates accredited Portland with having done more for the advancement of the "Safety First" movement than any other city in America, and in recognition of this fact B. F. Boynton, claim agent of the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company, father of the "Safety First" movement in this city, was elevated to the position of vice-president of the association for the coming year.

A large number of speakers spoke in particular of the work that has been done here in Portland. Other speakers who returned with Mr. Boynton were F. I. Fuller, vice-president; G. C. Fields, superintendent of interurban lines, and A. Molesworth, assistant claim agent.

"Dress Up" Let Portland Show How Prosperous It Really Is!

—A man of National reputation, visiting in Portland, once remarked, "How well dressed are the men and women on your streets!" —Don't allow this to lag—prosperity is somewhat a matter of looking prosperous! And we really CAN look prosperous. That doesn't mean extravagance. If you've been intending to buy new Fall clothes, have them for "Dress-Up" Week. Let everyone look their best.

Men, Dress Up in a $20 Suit or Overcoat

—A half dozen great manufacturing clothiers have competed in the assembling of these wonderful values.

—In the suits there are handsome shades of browns and grays, plaids, stripes and Scotch effects.

—We have styles that will EXACTLY suit you—models for the young man who likes styles out of the ordinary—models for business wear.

—And the Overcoats at $20—you'll wonder how so much smartness, such beautiful fabrics and faultless tailoring can be produced at the price.

—Come up to the Men's Clothing Store today and try on some of these $20 suits and overcoats. You'll want to "dress up" right away.

Not Merely to Sell Goods

The service of a modern store goes much further.

In planning this vast new store, we have provided many things that make shipping more convenient and comfortable.

We want you to make use of them—to feel that this store is your store.

The moving stairways afford access to the upper and lower floors. Always in operation during business hours, they are used by thousands of customers in preference to the stairs for going from floor to floor. Our spacious new rest room on the fifth floor is provided for the comfort of our women patrons. Every floor has a competent and courteous staff, whose activities are prompted by desire to serve. Our Personal Service Bureau will make selections of merchandise for out-of-town customers and those who cannot come to the store. Say "Personal Service" to our telephone operators. The Nursery on the sixth floor is equipped with all up-to-date conveniences. Trained nurses will look after the little tots while you shop. The Children's Play Room, fifth floor, is always thronged with bright-eyed girls and boys. A merry-go-round, hobby horses, shoot-the-chutes, beach sand, real birds and fish, and many of other things dear to childish hearts. A governess is always in charge.
