BAKER STAR DEPLORES GOSSIPING, ACTOR CAD

Edward Woodruff Points Out That Lack of Loyalty Is Characteristic of Other Professions, Though Most Dangerous to Stage Folk.

BY LEON CASS BARR. EDWARD C. WOODRUFF deplores the fact that the younger generation of actors seem to have no feeling of loyalty to their managers and fellow workers. He deplored this and some other things in his dressing-room last night at the Baker. He is a great optimist, that Woodruff says, and it simply followed out his fine ideas of giving loyalty where loyalty is due that prompted him to speak the lack of it today in theatrical life. So many actors are obsessed with the mistaken idea that managers are their natural enemy and the only way in which they can make progress is to get the best of him. The old feeling of mutual confidence and co-operation between actor and manager seems to have given way to one of mutual distrust in many instances. It is to be believed the published accounts of wrangling, lawsuits and broken contracts.

Disregard for Contract Common. "Actors frequently show the utmost disregard of the obligations of a contract, and many of the younger stars exhibit lack of appreciation for what managers have done for them. In these instances the lack of gratitude is sometimes amazing. I do not mean to say that it is only in my profession that employees generally show a regrettable absence of loyalty to their employers, for in many other walks of life the old ideals of fealty and duty and obligations between employer and employee have been generally disregarded. "In fact they are almost obsolete. I may be old-fashioned, I hope I am, if old fashion means to believe in not knocking one's employer. Our fathers had far better policies and better manners in this respect.

Own Self Is One Most Hurt. "They realized that when they knocked their employer or their co-workers they belittled and dishonored themselves. An actor more than any other artist hurts himself most when he knocks. If he chooses to withhold his loyalty he should resign and seek another position. "People connected with the theatrical business should be very careful of gossip. The intimate relations necessary to give outsiders opportunity to indulge in chatter about them. And the majority of people are much too prone to give credit to such gossip, especially if it involves a little scandal, and the suffering and wrong such talk often works is nothing short of tragedy to the innocent bystander. "There should be more care and

Declaration That Prosperity Is Returning Brings Applause—H. B. Miller Predicts Passing of "Invincible Government."

EUGENE, Or., Oct. 13.—(Special.)—A forecast that the commercial organizations will form the basis of government of tomorrow; a demand that the Pacific Coast enter the manufacturing field on a world-wide basis, made possible by the removal of the seamen's shipping bill, and the restoration of the merchant marine; astonishment of an Easterner that the West fails to use the wood block paving that the East is using to replace asphalt, and an invitation to Eugene to participate in the Portland Land Products Show late this month, featured the Commercial Club banquet tonight.

The banquet was attended by 200 Eugene business men, who welcomed with tremendous ovation the prediction made by George E. Hardy, executive secretary of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, that prosperity is already on its return; that the iron industry of the East, a National barometer, is again normal, and that railroads are fearing that they will be unable to handle 1916 deliveries. H. B. Miller, of Portland, head of the University of Oregon school of commerce, predicted the passing of the "invincible government" and the arrival of a new organization based upon Commercial Club and Chamber of Commerce units.

He told of the co-operation given the University of Oregon by the Portland Chamber of Commerce, and of the reports and surveys brought to the university through the Portland organization.

COMMON SENSE AND HEALTH

COMMON sense tells you that real health cannot be forever dependent upon the artificial stimulation of laxatives and cathartics.

Drugs relieve constipation temporarily, but never cure it. Nujol is odorless and tasteless, absolutely neutral, and is not digested or absorbed into the system. It acts merely as a mechanical lubricant. Nujol is not a drug. Its use will not give quick, temporary relief. But Nujol is a genuine remedy in that it relieves constipation in the most natural way by lubricating the lining of the intestines, softening the intestinal contents, and thus promoting healthy and normal bowel activity.
