

MRS. S. STONER
PORTLAND VISITOR

Mother of Child Wonder Radiates Attractive and Interesting Personality.

PROGRAMME IS BUSY ONE

Author of Natural Education Believes in Use of Rhyme and Jingles as Memory Aid in Teaching Children.

Life for all the children of the land will be one jolly rhythmic round of jingles, if Mrs. Winifred Sackville Stoner has her way. No examinations to scare boys and girls to death, shorter school hours, fewer pupils to a teacher, training for practical life work, education of parents, these are a few of the important points that Mrs. Stoner emphasizes.

The woman whose methods have proved so successful in the education of her own daughter arrived in Portland yesterday. She will go to Corvallis today to speak for the delegates at the state convention of the Oregon Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, who are meeting this week in the college town. Tomorrow Mrs. Stoner will speak in the Lincoln High School for the teachers and parents, and on Saturday morning she will appear at a public meeting in the Helling Theater, where she will give a talk and demonstration on natural educational principles. At noon on Saturday Mrs. Stoner will be a guest of the Oregon Civic League at their luncheon in the Hotel Marshall.

Winifred, Jr., the wonder child, who is, at the age of 13, an author and a linguist, is not with Mrs. Stoner. She stayed in her home with her father, and is enjoying athletics, play and study.

Personality is Radiated. A noted educator has called Mrs. Stoner "the most wonderful woman in the world." A short visit with her is all that is needed to give perfect understanding of this statement. The inventor of the magical method of education has an abundance of personality. She radiates confidence, interest, and is most attractive—eyes that sparkle, black hair, rosy cheeks.

She has something interesting and original to say every moment. She is enthusiastic over her work and wants every mother in the country to catch her enthusiasm. Mrs. Stoner believes in fairies. In fact, she is much like Peter Pan, for, though so very wise, she will never grow up if it means to give up the severe, and dictatorial, and old. She would keep in the home the fairies Love, Sympathy and Good Cheer. Happiness would be the demon, Hurry, Worry and Fear, if she had her way. "I can't" would be unknown in a child's vocabulary when referring to a task, but "I try" would be the words.

In her rooms at the Hotel Benson yesterday, where she was interviewed, she merely demonstrated the manner in which she uses the typewriter as a means of learning spelling, reading and punctuation, and in memorizing. She made the machine serve as an instrument of delightful accomplishment.

Jingles Serve Purpose. The woman who has stirred the interest of all the leading educators of the country in her methods, has a dowered her, is a firm believer in jingles. "How do you recall the number of days in each month?" she asks, and when the reply, "Thirty days hath September, etc.," is made, she says: "Well, why not remember other things in the same manner?" Winifred, Jr., the child who knows so many languages and facts, and is so strong physically, morally and mentally, learned a large percentage of her lessons in jingles.

"Languages should be taught in the natural method before children are 12 years of age," Mrs. Stoner contends. "Using the child's mind with careful thoughts and impressions in the memory period, 5 to 12 years—will, she believes, give him a good foundation for reasoning."

Mother Proud of Girl. Proudly, with fondness and happiness, she showed a number of photographs of her daughter. There was one especially attractive picture of Winifred, Jr., sitting at a typewriter and surrounded by a number of chubby, interested youngsters, who show clearly that they are getting the message that Winifred Stoner, Jr., is handing down to them. The child and her darkey mammy, and the pet dog, and best big doll, are shown in another photo. More strenuous are the pictures showing the young wonder enjoying a boxing match with a professional boxer.

"Look at those muscles. Does she look like a prodigy, all brains and no physical strength? No, she is a natural child and perfectly healthy," said the mother.

Mrs. Stoner has views that conflict strongly with those of Mme. Montessori. It was the little word "system" that started the conversation along this line. "System is all very well for Mme. Montessori," said Mrs. Stoner, "but system turns out not individuals, but masses. Treating each child as an individual, not as a class, is a hobby of Mrs. Stoner and she speaks in the highest terms of praise of the efforts that have been put forth along these lines in Portland public schools."

YOUTH ENDS OWN LIFE

Laundry Mark Only Clew to Identity of Man Dead in Plaza Block.

With a small rope tied around the neck and attached to an iron beam overhead, the body of an unidentified young man, well dressed and apparently prosperous, was found hanging in the men's restroom in the Plaza block, on Salmon street between Third and Fourth streets, early yesterday morning. The case was pronounced by Deputy Coroner Smith to be clearly one of suicide. The body was taken to the public morgue and every effort is being made to identify the man. A clew furnished by a laundry mark, "L256," is being investigated.

Home for Kiddies Sought.

Judge Cleston, of the Juvenile Court, wants someone who will volunteer to give Eva and Billy a home. They are homeless tots whose father is dead and whose mother is ill. Eva is 8 and her little brother Billy is 6. The children are fond of each other, and the Juvenile Judge wants them to have a home together or to be near each other. Who will mother and care for these homeless babes? Telephone Juvenile Court.

ADVOCATE OF NATURAL EDUCATIONAL PRINCIPLES WHO WILL SPEAK TOMORROW.

Mrs. Winifred Sackville Stoner.

LENIENCY PLAN HALTED

JUDGE REFUSES PLEA OF GUILTY GOTTILIB PLANNED TO ENTER.

District Attorney Not Averse to Parole, Because of Big Expense of Proving Forgery.

After reading in yesterday's issue of The Oregonian of the record of Leon Paul Gottlieb, indicted for passing a worthless check for $12, Circuit Judge Gantenben definitely refused a plea of guilty which Gottlieb entered with a view to obtaining a parole. The plea had been tentatively refused by the judge late the previous afternoon on his statement that he desired to investigate the case. Gottlieb has changed his plea to not guilty.

District Attorney Evans, while not recommending a parole, was not adverse to it for two reasons, the first being that the check was drawn on a New York bank and it would be necessary to bring witnesses from there at great expense to the state to prove the absence of a deposit. The other was that criminal charges are pending against Gottlieb in California, which he probably could be prosecuted with much less trouble and expense.

What course now will be followed with reference to Gottlieb is uncertain, but he is certain to remain in jail for a while anyway, as he is unable to furnish the bond required. It is understood that Mrs. Gottlieb, nee Clara Hersenberger, the girl with whom he eloped to Oregon City and who lived with him only a few days, is contemplating action for divorce. Gottlieb's conviction as a felon would give her a ground to which he could offer no defense.

HENRY FORD IS INVITED

Thomas Edison, Also Asked to Visit City, Finds Stop Impossible.

The Portland branch factory of the Ford Motor Company, through F. B. Norman, manager, yesterday telegraphed to Henry Ford at San Francisco urging him to come to Portland before returning East. In the same telegram they invited Thomas Edison, the wizard inventor, who is now with Mr. Ford at San Francisco.

Mr. Edison yesterday informed the Chamber of Commerce that he would be unable to include Portland on his present itinerary, but the local officials are hopeful that Mr. Ford will come to Portland to see his branch here and the Columbia River Highway.

Robbing Companion Charged.

Charged with stealing a companion of $8, Max Maschner was arrested at the corner of First and Davis streets yesterday by Officers Wade and Mallon. He is said to have gone through the pockets of M. Seller in a saloon at Second and Couch streets.

VOICE IS VERY LIFE TO CAROLINA WHITE

Death Would Be Her Choice If She Were Not Able to Sing, She Says, but She Has Beauty Required by Movies.

BY LEONE CASS BAER. CAROLINA WHITE says if anything would happen to her voice so that she couldn't sing, she would want to go away in a far corner and die. She just that serious about her art.

But if anything should happen to that great big lovely voice, Carolina White would become a great sensation of the film world. She is an expurgated edition of Theda Bara, a brunette Lillian Russell, a plump edition of Cavalletti (Lina not Rusticana). All the time I talked to her I was thinking that Nat Goodwin was clear off his noodle when he said he had married the loveliest woman in the world. He may have wed a few of the beauties, but he didn't capture Carolina White.

But she has been captured, matrimonially speaking, and her captor is Paul Longene, a young, good-looking, earnest and music-loving Italian, an authority on opera, and a most interesting conversationalist. These two have a lovely home in Italy, but they were saddened by the death of Paul Longene who has two brothers at the front, and two cousins lately killed.

Madame is Not Neutral. Madame Carolina White is an American, intensely loyal and proud of it, but she is decidedly not a neutral in the question of war. Her husband's people are truly her people.

"But it is for the mothers I care most, all the mothers, not of one country, but all countries. It is the women, the mothers, who suffer."

The prima donna was not acting when she said this. Her eyes—big, wonderful and brown—looked across thousands of miles to where they saw the horrors whereof she spoke. It is one of the fascinations of her, this way she has of mirroring her thoughts in her eyes.

She likes vaudeville and the new audiences it brings to her. She adores even the monkeys when they happen on a bill with her, and she is demurely ready to play even G. E. S. Wood. Everyone is Carolina White's friend, from the littlest usher up the line. She confers to please even to him, and her great passion is literature.

"All day long I could read—and far into the night," she says.

News Explained to Husband. "I read all the news headlines, and all sort of books. My husband reads our American papers, too, and then I have to explain them to him."

She laughed wickedly at the remembrance. Madame White loves a social life, but has no time for it, as she says, "There is no halfway measure. Domesticity, babies, society—all the things the soul of a woman craves must be put away until the operative career is over. They cannot be mixed, with justice to either."

"I have sacrificed to art—but— Here the lovely Carolina blushed beautifully. "We adore babies," she added. "Intoxicants, Madame says, are the ruin of most voices. It is the love of most voices."

"The only thing that will penetrate the vocal chords and swell them and harm them is alcohol," she said. "So anyone with intelligence keeps away from it."

She is psychic, and her friends call her a medium.

Audience's Attitude Known. "It's only audiences that call out this psychic feeling," she says. "But it is true, I can tell just how an audience is receiving my songs."

"I can feel the appreciation, without one bit of applause. I can feel it if even one person turns about in his seat. I seem to be like a sensitive plant while I sing."

Madame says that the best thing she likes about vaudeville is that it has brought her before the real music-lovers, "not merely the smartly dressed men and women who assume to love opera because they fancy it is the correct thing to do."

SCHOOL PROTEST MADE

WOODSTOCK PARENT-TEACHERS SEEK COMPLETION OF BUILDING.

Athletic and Garden Grounds Also Are Requested in Resolution Adopted by the Board.

Woodstock residents will ask the Board of Education to complete the present schoolhouse by the erection of five or six rooms and an assembly hall and the purchase of playgrounds, including a baseball diamond, a field for football and for school gardens.

The request for these improvements was embodied in resolutions adopted at a mass meeting held at the schoolhouse Tuesday night under the auspices of the Woodstock Parent-Teacher Association. The resolutions will be presented to the Board by a committee.

According to the report of Principal A. J. Frideaux, the Woodstock pupils occupy eight rooms in the new and four rooms in the old structure, which is three blocks away, and a single portable room. Appropriations have been made in former years for the completion of the Woodstock building, said the principal, but these have been cut out.

The meeting was held in a classroom on the lower floor, which was crowded and very uncomfortable. Fire Marshal Stevens would not allow the use of the hall on the upper floor, and he came in for some severe criticism.

SEWER OUTFALL BIDS OPEN

Improvement Costing $15,185 Is Planned at Hall and Water Streets.

Fifteen thousand one hundred and eighty-five dollars will be the cost of the new trunk sewer outfall at the end of Hall and Water streets. Bids for the work were opened by City Auditor Barber yesterday. The improvement is planned to take the place of the present sewer outfall, which is in bad condition.

Bids for this improvement and others planned by the Council in the near future were opened yesterday as follows:

Improvement in Water street and Mill street—Gleiblich & Joplin, vitrified concrete and reinforced concrete sewer, $19,941.21; J. P. O'Neil, Alzida Contract Company, $18,871.33; J. P. Shea, concrete and reinforced concrete sewer (class of other pipe not stated), $15,324.30; Williams Cement Pipe and Reinforced Concrete Sewer, $15,210.11.

Improvement East Fifty-ninth street from Sacramento street to Brades street, with grading and sidewalks—Arthur B. Kern, $861.54; Stuy Sand Company, $941.60; George Gundlach, $888.44; Cochran-Nutting & Co., $884.72; Manning & Co., $878.42.

Improvement portions of Sixty-eighth street Southeast and Fifty-third avenue Southeast, as a district, with grading and sidewalks—Hodman & Burre, $1,620.34; Cochran-Nutting & Co., $1,623.89; George Gundlach, $1,628.23; Manning & Co., $1,630.70; Arthur D. Kern, $1,636.17.

CITY ASKED TO FIX LINES

Inglewood Park Residents Claim Survey Is Incorrect.

Once more the City Council is confronted with the proposition of straightening out the survey of Inglewood Park, the property lines of which have all been found to be incorrect. The plot was surveyed by men employed by Commissioner Dick when he was a private engineer in 1908.

A communication has been received by the Council from Otto A. Samson, secretary of the Glenhaven Improvement Club, asking that the lines be changed by the city before any more improvements are put in in the addition. The request was made once before, but received no official action.

Shoe Starts New Hunt.

Hunters on the headwaters of the Calapooya River have found a gum overshoe, such as was worn by John C. Morgan, prominent resident of Brownsville, who was last seen hunting in that region in October, 1912. A searching party is preparing to leave Brownsville, it is said, to make a search of that section to see if the missing man's remains can be found. Members of Mr. Morgan's family identified the shoe as similar to one worn by him when he disappeared.

Mr. Morgan, who was 67 years old, left Brownsville to go hunting on October 29, 1912. That was the last seen of him.

TODAY'S BEAUTY AIDS

To clear up and whiten the skin and secure that charm of pink and white youthful freshness so much desired by all women you will find it far safer to rely upon a good face lotion rather than powder. To get rid of that shiny and muddy appearance in your complexion, dissolve four ounces of sparkling water in one-half pint of water, and add two teaspoonfuls glycerin. Apply this to your face, neck and arms, rubbing gently until dry. This lotion does not show or rub off like powder and is much better. It is splendid for removing tan, freckles, pimples and sallowness.

You can make a delightful shampoo for a very trifling cost if you get from your druggist a package of canthox and dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. Pour a little at a time on the scalp and rub briskly. This creates an abundance of thick, white lather that thoroughly dissolves and removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt. After rinsing, the hair dries quickly, with a stiffness that makes it seem heavier than it is, and takes on a rich luster and a softness that makes arranging it a pleasure.—Adv.
