Halloween will be celebrated nowhere else in the city with the elaborateness and large attendance that will mark the observance at the Manufacturers and Land Products Show at the Armory today. This day's special features will be the high mark for the week in entertainment at the big show, and it is expected that the attendance both afternoon and evening will break records of all other days.

School children will hold the stage this afternoon and a special admission rate of 15 cents for adults and 10 cents for children will be made. From 2 P. M. to 5 P. M. there will be dances, drills and other entertainments offered by the school children in the little auditorium of the Land Show pavilion under the direction of Professor Robert Krohn, Superintendent L. R. Alderman will be chairman for the day.

Souvenirs to be given children. Souvenirs and samples from all of the booths will be distributed among the school children who attend the show, and the demonstrators will make special pains to make the visit of the children one of educational advantage as well as amusement. The time before and after the programmes in the theater will give the children an opportunity to look over the exhibits and enjoy the other attractions.

Some of the school drills also will be added to the programme this evening, one of the special features being a witch and lantern drill by pupils from Failing School. The Campfire Girls also have drills and a programme tonight.

Postoffice employees will be out tonight in force and will hold their programme in the ballroom of the Armory. At 7:30, by way of leading up to the Halloween festivities, there will be a big parade and Halloween pageant through the streets of the city.

Prizes to be awarded in contest. After other programmes in the Armory a contest will be held, and prizes awarded in the boys' and girls' contest in impersonation of Charlie Chaplin and Sis Hopkins.

BOND INTEREST SUIT DUE County and State Difference to Be Settled by Court.

At the request of County Treasurer Lewis, who wants to be fully protected,

COMMISSIONER OF INTERNAL REVENUE, HIS CHIEF REVENUE AGENT AND OREGON AND WASHINGTON COLLECTORS OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

(1) James W. McGinnis, Chief Revenue Agent of the United States. (2) Milton A. Miller, Collector for Oregon. (3) David J. Williams, Collector for Washington. (4) William H. Osborn, Commissioner of Internal Revenue for the United States.

The County Commissioners have asked the county and the state. The Legislature passed a law ordering the state to pay the interest on the bonds, but the State Tax Commission failed to provide for it in their levy last year because the legality of the issue was still on test before the Supreme Court.

This is Mr. Trefz's third visit to Portland and he has many friends here. On previous occasions he appeared before the Ad Club and the Chamber of Commerce. He will be in Portland until next

INTERNAL REVENUE COLLECTOR VISITOR

William H. Osborn Is Custodian of Approximately $440,000,000 Yearly.

CURING "DRUNKS" SIDE JOB

Prohibition Wave Declared to Cut Figure in Customs Receipts—Conference Held With Washington and Oregon Subordinates.

How would you like to be Commissioner of Internal Revenue for the United States and collect annual taxes for the government aggregating $18,068,907.81 on distilled spirits, taking the figures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914. The 1915 figures not yet being available, $25,245,244.40 on beer, $76,789,424.75 on tobacco and a number of other small items making up a grand total of $244,424,335, not to mention something like $100,000,000 more on income taxes?

Quite a busy little job, eh? William H. Osborn, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who arrived in Portland yesterday with James W. McGinnis, chief revenue agent, his right-hand man, says it's just about the busiest job in the country and that it is enough to drive a man to drink. But he doesn't drink a drop himself. Moreover, in his home town of Greensboro, N. C., which he was induced to leave temporarily for Washington when President Wilson named him Commissioner April 23, 1913, he is president of the second largest liquor cure institute in the world.

"And I've turned against 10,000 men from that institute," said the Commissioner enthusiastically. "Cured? Of course they were cured. They couldn't take a drink of whiskey if they wanted to."

Drinkers Caught Twice. Thus Mr. Commissioner Osborn gets 'em both ways. First, he collects the whisky tax for the Government, and then he takes the drinkers of said whisky and cures them in his institute. "Do you cure many Democrats?" softly queried Milton A. Miller, Collector of Internal Revenue for Oregon, as the Commissioner and Mr. McGinnis, with David J. Williams, of Tacoma, Collector of Internal Revenue for Washington, and L. W. Elliott, revenue agent for Oregon, Washington and Alaska, were chatting in Mr. Miller's office at the Custom-House yesterday afternoon.

"I make a specialty of Republicans," retorted the Commissioner dryly. "There has been quite a noticeable decrease in the amount of liquor consumed in the United States with the spread of prohibition," the Commissioner was asked.

"It certainly looks like it from the figures," returned the Commissioner, promptly. "There has been quite a fall in the revenue from the tax on distilled liquors and on beer. I don't recall the figures. There has also been a falling off in tobacco revenue, though not nearly so marked as in whisky and beer revenues."

"The decrease in liquor revenues for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, is approximately $15,000,000," volunteered Mr. McGinnis.

Commissioner Osborn is a big and vigorous man. He is 59 years old. He stands more than six feet tall, with the big frame and broad shoulders and weathered countenance of a man who is used to hard work out-of-doors. "Conditions Being Investigated." Commissioner Osborn and Mr. McGinnis, who has been a revenue agent for 22 years and chief revenue agent since Mr. Osborn took office, left Washington October 21 to confer with revenue collectors and investigate conditions throughout the West. They arrived in Portland at 1:50 o'clock yesterday on the Shasta Limited, and within an hour after registering at the Benson Hotel they were in the office of Mr. McGinnis, who was deep in a conference with Collector Miller and Collector Williams, of Washington, who had been asked to be here.

"I don't know yet what the nature of our business here will be," said Commissioner Osborn. "I'm here to find out."

One important matter that will undoubtedly engage the Commissioner's attention here, however, is the removal of the bonded warehouses from Portland and Seattle to San Francisco after prohibition goes into effect in Oregon and Washington January 1, 1916.

Commissioner Osborn is an intense admirer of President Wilson. "He is the greatest man in the world today," declared the Commissioner. "He is absolutely unselfish."

"And I regard Secretary McAdoo as the greatest emergency man that has ever been in a President's Cabinet. He is a man of action, and he is a wonder."

The Commissioner and Mr. McGinnis will leave Portland tonight for the U. S. Customs House in Seattle, from there going direct to Washington. They expect to reach that city next Thursday.

YES—IT IS POSSIBLE TO STOP RHEUMATISM. Rheumatism is a tormenting and stubborn malady. In some cases it yields to treatment which is without avail in other cases. The darting pains, lame muscles or stiffened joints only disappear by gradually expelling the uric acid, and so many thousands have been relieved by the blood-enriching oil-food in Scott's Emulsion that you should give it a faithful trial. Scott's Emulsion acts as a powerful blood-purifier by increasing the red corpuscles and it strengthens the organs to carry off the acids which cause the trouble. Try Scott's Emulsion. It cannot harm. TODAY the Big Three-in-One of PORTLAND'S GREATEST SHOW. THREE PREMIER EVENTS. School Children's Day—Every school child admitted for 10c. L. R. Alderman, chairman; Robt. Krohn, director. Halloween Night and Postoffice Night. Every school child in Portland should be there and everyone probably will. It will help them learn more about their native state and they'll enjoy the drills and fancy dances and the fun and frolic that will be a glorious feature of the day. Uncle Sam's Boys will be on hand under the leadership of Postmaster Myers as chairman after participating in the big street parade with the crack band we never hear often enough. Daredevil Zinn—champion candy puller of the Northwest—will give an exhibition of Round-U fancy roping—using one hundred pounds of hot candy instead of the twisted hemp that belongs to the average buckaroo. It is the civic duty of every head of an Oregon family to see that all of his flock visit this show—to learn of the resources of our great state, as shown by the greatest exhibit of products ever gathered together in the Northwest. The Portland Chamber of Commerce through A. J. Kingsley, president of the Manufacturers' and Land Products Show, guarantees this—from all viewpoints—as Portland's Greatest Show! FARMER SHOTS SELF

Tragedy Occurs Near Home on Skyline Boulevard—Neighbor Reports Man Was Acting Peculiarly.

Following the example of his brother Joe, who committed suicide about a year ago, Louis L. Endicott, 45, a farmer living on the Skyline boulevard, a few miles outside the west city limits, shot himself through the body Thursday night about 10:15. The body was found yesterday in front of the residence of Claude Reed, who lives on the Skyline boulevard a few miles from Endicott's place.

The body was brought to Portland yesterday morning by Deputy Sheriffs Phillips and Beckman, Deputy District Attorney Ryan and Deputy Coroner Smith, who went out to investigate. A neighbor told Deputy Sheriff Phillips that he heard Endicott raving wildly in his house, where he lived as a bachelor, Wednesday night. In his ravings, according to this man, Endicott apparently was "defying capture, shrieking among other things that he could not be taken back to California to answer for something that had occurred three years ago. Next morning this neighbor called on Endicott on a pretended errand and found him calm and apparently sane, although he had a wild look in his eyes.

Endicott was a brother of Patrolman Endicott, of the Portland police department, and also has a sister, Mrs. A. W. Johnston, living on the Skyline boulevard. It is believed that he was on his way to her home when the suicidal mania overcame him. He had been living on a 13-acre tract owned by his mother, Mrs. A. D. Metcalf, who resides at Seaside. Until the suicide of his brother Joe the two had lived there together.
