THE MORNING OREGONIAN, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1915.

Jacob Kitter, small grocer, of 413 East Eighth street, started a warm discussion when he declared that he believed the law to be "rotten" and the believed the law to be "notten" and the prosecutors even more so. "As we are all business men," no went on, "I, as a business man, an willing to go down the line with my brother Kellaher in this fight as a matter of justice. We should all give him our support." Stephen A. Lost, small grecer, of 996 Commercial street, said he had talked with nearly 50 merchants, whe are all in hearty accord with the announced purpose of the meeting. "And I hope we will all get in and solicit other merchants to join us and show these folks we mean business," he added he added "I'm going to work for the object in mind just as cheerfully and as haid as I can," said Ben A. Bellamy, pro-prietor of several grocery stores. "I will put in my time and financial help, and hope everyone here will give us a lift in this movement because we're roome to need a steat deal of help."

Training of the big offers will give to solve a great deal of help."
This, Anna N. Hoy, who tuns a small store al 5531 Foster road, expressed indignation at the law.

"You've said what I wanted to tell the gentleman." declared C. E. Monroe, procer, of 245 West Alder, addressing the chair. "I came here as a West Side merchant to attend a meeting against Sunday closing. It is going to hurt me a good deal to have to close on Sunday, and I am going to give any financial or other aid I cam."
