EXTENSION PLANS READY

Bids for Interstate Bridge Approach to Be Asked.

Plans were completed yesterday for the proposed extension of Union avenue from Bryant street to the city limits to connect with the interstate bridge. The filing of the plans will be followed by the placing of advertisements for bids.

There are two distinct improvements involved. One is for the construction of a viaduct and long fills for approaches over the tracks of the O.-W.

R. & N. and the other is for the paving of the entire extension. The viaduct will be charged up to a district extending south as far as Broadway. The paving will be paid for by abutting property owners.

EX-PRESIDENT'S SON HERE

Scott C. Hayes Reports Business Conditions in East Improve.

Scott C. Hayes, son of ex-President Rutherford B. Hayes and assistant to the president of the New York Air Brake Company, is in Portland on a business visit. He is accompanied by Mrs. Hayes.

"If our business can be taken as an indication," said Mr. Hayes, "the general industrial situation is improving decidedly.

"The railroads now are in the market for large volumes of equipment and our factories are running up to normal capacity to supply them."

Mr. Hayes reports that the roads in the East and those centering in Chicago are the heaviest buyers, but says that the Western and Pacific Coast roads now are beginning to make inquiries. A large volume of business now is being done for European roads handling military movements, he says. The New York Air Brake Company operates an extensive plant at Watertown, N. Y., but has agencies and branches throughout the country. Its office in Portland handles the trade for the Northwest.
