BUDGET MAKING IS TOPIC AT CHAMBER

Various Department Heads Tell How Items Are Prepared and Why.

MEETING ONLY ACADEMIC

No Action Is Taken, but Several Lively Tilts and Arguments Are Started -- Committees Named for Investigation Work.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce learned Tuesday night how the hudget for proposed expenditures in the various departments of local government are prepared, and why.

Mayor Albee explained the city's budget; Judge M. G. Muniy, the School Board's budget; Rufus C. Holman, the county budget; and S. M. Mears, the budget of the Port of Portland.

A large gathering of citizens heard the proceedings which were conducted before the directors of the Chamber's legislation and taxation bureau, Franklin T. Griffith, the chairman, presiding.

The meeting was not called for the purpose of taking action on any of the budget items and gave no expression of opinion on any of the budgets in whole or in part.

or in part. Incidentally, however, the chairman authorized to appoint a committee for the purpose of investigating proposed improvements on Fairmount boulevard other than those proposed by the county road department, and a committee to study the plan of forming a board of estimates and appropriations, as proposed by ex-Senator F. W. Mulkey.

Debate Enlivens Proceedings.

The proceedings were somewhat en livened by a sharp debate between Mr. Mulkey and Ralph R. Duniway, an attorney, over the application of the Bingham bill passed by the recent Legislature. The Bingham bill provides that no tax levying body shall increase its taxes more than 6 per cent over the highest levy in the last two preceding years.

receding years.

Mr. Mulkey, basing his comment on the recent Supreme Court decision in the Roseburg case, declared that the wides not apply to the City of Portund or to the Port of Portland, which perate respectively under independent marters.

Mr. Duniway took issue with him on this point, explaining that he has brought suit for a rehearing before the Supreme Court on behalf of citi-zens of Roseburg. He expressed the opinion that the Bingham law applies to municipalities as well as to ties and school districts, Auditorium Question Debated.

J. N. Tesi aroused sharp comment when he decirred that the municipal auditorium should not be built this year.

George L. Baker, City Commissioner, answered Mr. Tenl, declaring that in the face of a 2-to-1 vote four years ago and insistent demands by many citizens the city officials are unable to do other than the city officials.

the city officials are unable to do other than to proceed with prompt construction of the auditerium.

In discussing the city budget, Mayor Albee emphatically questioned the wisdom of a policy of withholding all expenditures for permanent improvements, even in the face of industrial depression. He declared that the steps to abolish medical inspection in the schools may prove expensive economy. "Our loyalty to Portland," he said, "should prompt us to stand for a certain amount of improvements every year."

new school buildings, which, he asserted, have been excessive in Portland. Public sentiment and public safety will not permit the erection of other than fireproof schools, he explained, but this condition may be met by developing a type of one-story structures upon which the school efficials are now working.

In response to questions Mr. Munly read from the reports of the commission that recently surveyed the Pertland school system, to show that the per capita cost of administration is lower in Portland than in any other city on the Coast. city on the Coast.

city on the Coast.

County Commissioner Holman spoke of the numerous items of proposed expenditure essential for the proper growth of the community. He enumerated good reads, a new armory for the militia, a county hospital and means of opening the unsettled land of the county to development.

He declared that the county should maintain a policy of permanent road construction and to build a certain mileage in new roads every year.

In speaking for the taxpayers, Mr. Teal urged economy.

Teal urged economy.

"It is well to plan great monuments for the future, something that our children and our grandchildren will enjoy," he declared, "but it is well to give some consideration to these of us who are now living."

SECRETS OF "HOUSE OF DAVID" CULT REVEALED IN COURT.

Testimony Given by Woman Suing for Damages After She Demanded Second Drawing.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. Nov. 10.—Inner secrets of the House of David, a religious cult, were aired today by Mrs. August Holliday, who testified in her own behelf in her suit for $35,090 damages for alleged criminal slander against Joy Purnell, son of "King" Benjamin Purnell, head of the cult.

The "king's" method of conducting courtships of the men and women of the "House of David," she said, was simple and direct. Each girl and each man wrote her or his name on a slip of paper, and then there were drawings.

Fishing Ground Dispute.

TOLEDO, Or., Nov. 16.—(Epecial.)—
Harry Fisk, 25, lies in a Salem hospital suffering from gunshot wounds that are said to be the results of a shooting affray brought on by a dispute over fishing grounds on the lower Siletz. A neighbor had been in possession of an eddy off the land of William Scott but had not been setting his nets for a few nights when Fisk and young Scott took possession of the grounds. As Fisk went to take up his nets Sunday, someone shot at him from the underbrush. When Fisk seemed too weak to reach shore, the neighbor appeared and rescued him.

Family Intensely Devoted to Mother and Each Has Pronounced Characteristics-Papa Foy Says He's Going Into Movies Next.

BY LEONE CASS BAER.
HIS is for the most part an interview with Irving Lewis Foy, the "funniest little feller" I ever ran across on the stage. He got the Irving Lewis part from a dramatic critic "friend of father's" in New York. All the Foys and audiences dote on Irving. He has a sliding scale of ages, and when I asked his present one he when I asked his present one he winked his big black eyes at me and said, "streetcar, censor or stage?" When he had been assured that it could not be used against him he confessed to 7 years. Sometimes when children's protective societies and similar bugaboos of the stage get after Irving his age jumps miraculously to 14. He was drawing pictures when I called in the dressing-room just before their act went on at the Orpheum. Decrepit horses, round-eyed cats and weird trains adorned his tablet.

or draped themselves over their smiling mother. She is an Italian madonna, adoring her flock and they are governed absolutely by love. From big brother Bryan down the line to baby Irving they make pals of dad and mother. Irving is going to be a doctor, "Horse?" I asked.

"No, a people doctor," he flashed. W. J. Bryan is the eldest. He says he is nandicapped in his name. I suggested changing it to Byron.

"No-o, a poet is worse," he said.

Bryan Wooes Muse.

Bryan is a song-writer. Words and melodies flock to his mind and he has already published a few. "My Honolulu Girl" is his newest and is being sung in the cafes and theaters in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"We just came from a season in motion pictures in Los Angeles," said father. "And I'm going into that business when this tour ends. I want Mary and Madeline to have vocal and instrumental music and dancing, and while I am in the pictures with the older children the little ones will be getting the training I want them to have." It was while they were in the movies that Charlie-next after Bryan—got his nickname. His fond family call him their lens-louse because he stuck so close to the camera that no one else ever "got took," Charlie is an athlete, and yesterday he was off for a game of ball with some friends he'd made. He is Pa Eddie's exact physical counterpart, as much in private life as on the stage.

Bryan is a song-writer. Words and moisy handkerchiefs. Mary is and noisy handkerchiefs. Mary is fourth. She is a heauty and she sang for me in a sweet, wholly unaffected way. Her voice is lovely, too. Mary spends her odd time crocheting. She is already 'way along on her Christmas gifts. Lots of Mary's friends will get bedroom slippers this year.
