

NOTED JAPANESE PORTLAND GUEST

Brief Reception Tendered to Baron Shibusawa, Oriental Financier, at Station.

MANY AMERICANS IN PARTY

Visitor, Though Not Christian, Is in States in Connection With Sunday School Convention to Be Held in Tokio After War.

One of Japan's most distinguished financiers and men of affairs, Baron S. Shibusawa, who might be termed the J. Pierpont Morgan of his country, was in Portland about 20 minutes yesterday.

The Shibusawa Limited from San Francisco waited here its customary time before moving on to Seattle, the Baron and members of his party, of whom there were nine, enjoyed a most unusual entertainment provided by fellow countrymen here.

Met at the depot by President C. C. Cole and members of the Chamber of Commerce, and a delegation of prominent Portland Japanese, the Baron and his guests were escorted down the station platform to one of the rooms at the south end of the depot building.

There a veritable flock of little Japanese children, who lifted their shining faces in awe to a common center as the Baron entered, surrounded a table on which stood a huge bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

Baron Shibusawa seemed to feel at home immediately. He smiled at the youngsters, who quickly lost their awe and smiled back. He talked in his own language to one little fellow and patted him on the head. As a means of entertainment, it was unique but decidedly a success.

Innovation Is Tried. "No, that is not a Japanese custom," Kyo Kumasaki, Japanese Consul in Portland, explained afterwards. "Baron Shibusawa is a grandfather himself, and knowing his love for children members of the Japanese Association here thought he would be interested in seeing how young children here were getting along. He was pleased, as you saw."

For half a century Baron Shibusawa has been a financial power in Japan. Forty years ago he held the post of Vice-Minister of Finance. That he has not held higher governmental honors is because he has declined them. Today at the age of 74 he is president of the First Bank, the leading banking institution of Japan, and interested in many business enterprises.

Baron Shibusawa has himself been one of the factors in the modernization of Japan. He is one of the remarkable citizens of Japanese statesmen and financiers who have lived both in the old and new Japan. The Baron was a boy 7 years old when Commodore Perry, of the United States Navy, visited Japan in 1854, the date from which the new Japan begins.

Christian Work Aided. Though he is not a Christian, the Baron's visit to the United States is chiefly in the interests of the convention of the World's Sunday School Association to be held in Tokio after the war.

Baron Shibusawa is vice-president of the committee in Tokio that is arranging details of the reception to the Sunday school workers.

"Baron Shibusawa is traveling in the United States for several reasons," said Mr. Zumoto, his secretary. "He was on the commission of Japanese business men that studied conditions here six years ago, and one purpose of his trip is to renew some of his acquaintances made at that time."

"Baron Shibusawa is a lover of peace, and he hopes that the war will soon be over. While he is not here as a peace envoy, he nevertheless has in mind to do all he can while on this tour, which will take him through the United States, toward the promotion of peace and the end of the world-war. He also desires to promote the present happy relations between the United States and Japan, and will study industrial and trade conditions between the two countries."

INDIAN AGENT IS ACCUSED. Quinalt Fishing Decision to Be Appealed to Washington.

ABERDEEN, Wash., Nov. 14.—(Special.)—Three prominent Quinalt Indians will leave here shortly for Washington D. C., where it is said they will enter protest against E. M. Garber, superintendent of the Quinalt reservation, for what they declare is unfairness in the administration of fishing rights. The three Indians are being sent by a subscription from the tribe. The men are Joe Capoman, Billy Garfield and Billy Mason.

They declare that Garber, in attempting to readjust fishing rights on the reservation, showed discrimination. This spring the Indians caught more than 40,000 fish there, and the run is again on now, with fairly good catches prevailing.

SMITH WIELDS WEAPON

STEPHENSON MAN JAILED FOR ASSAULT ON PARTNER. Piece of Iron, Attached to Rope, Misses Man Aimed at, and Strikes Another in Stomach.

STEVENSON, Wash., Nov. 14.—(Special.)—Nicholas Long, a blacksmith living here, was today in the county jail at 5:20 o'clock this evening for striking at his partner, George Romin, with a concealed weapon in the shape of a piece of iron, weighing about one-fourth of a pound, clamped to a piece of rope about eight inches in length. The device slipped from his hand, however, as he struck at Romin, passing within an inch of the latter's face. It lodged in the abdomen of George Atanworth, who was standing just back of Romin, in Joe St. Martin's pool-hall, where the controversy occurred, knocking Atanworth down.

Long went for his gun immediately, but was intercepted by the officers, Sheriff Knox and his deputy, V. W. Harshbarger, who took him to the county jail. Long and Romin have been in partnership in the blacksmithing business for the past six months. About two months ago they got an option to buy the tools and machinery in the shop from Mr. Arnold, but while Arnold was away attending his mother's funeral in the East a few weeks ago they moved part of these effects to Carson, where they stored them. Upon his return Arnold made search for the missing tools, and upon finding them forced Long and Romin to return them, after which he closed the shop. There has been bad blood between Long and Romin ever since.

Long will be arraigned before Justice Young tomorrow afternoon, and it is reported that a half dozen eye-witnesses will testify against him.

The arrested man has been acting as the agent of Mr. Kimble, who owns a number of houses in Redmond.

CHAMBERLAIN PLAN MET BY OBJECTION

Penalty on Employment of Reservists Held to Make Securing Jobs Difficult.

OPPOSITION IN PROSPECT

Dismissal of Men Before They Are Called to Training Camp Would Obliterate Punishment for Violation of Law.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Nov. 16.—Serious objection will be made to Senator Chamberlain's proposed amendment to the continental army bill if the Oregon Senator undertakes to amend the Administration measure by inserting a provision penalizing employers who refuse to grant ample leave of absence to all employees who seek to avail themselves of this plan of securing military training.

The underlying principle of the continental army is to afford military training to young men who, for three successive years, can give up two months' time each year for instruction in the field after this training is completed, the men pass into the reserve for another three years, but while in the reserve they are not required to attend annual drills.

Army men have regarded the continental army idea as impracticable largely because they doubt the possibility of raising any considerable volunteer force in the way prescribed. They question whether 100,000 young men will be able to get two months' leave annually for three years, and at the same time retain their employment. They argue that any plan which will deprive men of their regular civilian employment will not succeed.

Senator Chamberlain, however, contemplates inserting in the law a provision which will make it incumbent on all employers of men to grant them whatever leave is necessary to enable them to receive training in the continental army, and he would impose a heavy fine on any employer who refused to allow any employee, a member of the continental army, whatever leave was necessary to permit him to attend the annual drills. If this provision means anything, it means that employers cannot dismiss employees because they take two months from their work each year for military training.

Jobs Made More Difficult. Those who criticize the Chamberlain plan say it will not accomplish what they desire, and they point out that any employer unwilling to allow his men the two months' leave required for military instruction could readily escape the penalty proposed by Senator Chamberlain by mere dismissing all his men who may enlist in the continental army. If he dismissed them before they are called to training camp, he would not be liable under such a penalty clause as Senator Chamberlain proposes.

The result would be that the Chamberlain idea would only operate to deprive many young men of their jobs and make it more difficult for men in the continental army to secure their employment. On this ground, the suggestion will be resisted in Congress.

DRY PLEDGE LOST, OWNER JOINS NEW YEAR CLUB

Charles Deyoe Fights Jailers for Demerol, but Membership Is Forced On Him.

"NEVER again will I take a drink," Charles Deyoe swore it. This was quite necessary, for it meant his immunity from membership in the New Year's Club, formed by Municipal Judge Stevenson, of those whose chronic spirituous proclivities made it advisable to keep them in durance until after the holidays here, Sunday. This was a month ago.

Deyoe had promised this before, but Public Defender Robinson assured Judge Stevenson that Deyoe would keep this oath, and had a nice pledge in mind.

SAYS SHE WAS SAVED FROM OPERATING TABLE

Brother and Sister Both Relieved by Simple Remedy Available to Any One.

In her gratitude for a remedy that saved her from the possible necessity for an operation, Mrs. Carrie Heflin, of Coala, Kan., writes: "Had it not been for Fruitola and Traxo I might have been on the operating table by now. It relieved me of at least one hundred and fifty gall stones. It surely does work wonders. My brother also had suffered for years and has been greatly benefited by Fruitola and Traxo."

Fruitola is a powerful lubricant for the intestinal organs, softening the congested masses, disintegrating the hardened particles that cause so much suffering and expels the accumulation in an easy, natural way. Traxo is a splendid tonic, acting on the liver and stomach with most beneficial results and is recommended for use in connection with Fruitola to build up and restore the weakened, run-down system.

Fruitola and Traxo are prepared in the Pinus laboratories at Monticello, Ill., and arrangements have been made to supply them through representative druggists. In Portland they can be obtained at The Owl Drug Co. Stores.

GAS SHUTOFF LAW IS UP

Proposed Ordinance Requires Automatic System in Buildings.

Construction of an automobile gas shutoff in every building in Portland except residences will be required if an ordinance, prepared yesterday by Mayor Albee, is passed by the City Council. The measure is aimed as a fire safeguard.

The plan is to force the building owners to install a system whereby the pressing of a button by a fireman will automatically shut off the gas in the building from the outside. Considerable trouble has been had in fire fighting because of the lack of facilities for shutting off the gas. It is said most other cities in the country now have the shutoffs, and some states have state-wide laws requiring them.
