Discussion of the ship-purchase bill has revived talk of subsidies as the means of reviving the American merchant marine.

These subsidies are misleading, because they lump together outright subsidies and payments for actual service rendered.

An article by Franklin Clark in the Boston Transcript goes into the subject in great detail.

These subsidies are misleading, because they lump together outright subsidies and payments for actual service rendered.

Examination of this table and comparison with the statements of the purpose for which the subsidies are made reveals the misleading character.

For example, the largest sum—$10,000,000—is credited to Great Britain.

It is also denied by British writers on shipping topics that the British government subsidizes its shipping.

But more significant is the probable effect of the decision on the business of the world.

The Kaiser would like to see the world divided into spheres of influence.

These panegyrics of autocracy close their mental eye to one aspect of history.
