

COETIM NEWS

BY GERTRUDE P. CORBETT

An engagement of interest in many Portlanders is that of Miss Ruth Cooper, of Underwood, and Nathan P. Meare, of Pasadena and White Salmon, which was announced Saturday at a luncheon presided over by Miss Mabel Holmes, of Underwood, whose wedding will be an event of tomorrow.

Miss Cooper will act as maid of honor at the wedding of Miss Holmes and Leroy Childs, of Hood River, which will be solemnized tomorrow in Underwood. Miss Cooper's fiancé will leave in the morning to attend the wedding, and also to play the wedding march.

Mr. Meare acted as best man for the wedding of Miss Cooper and Nathan P. Meare, of Pasadena and White Salmon, which was announced Saturday at a luncheon presided over by Miss Mabel Holmes, of Underwood, whose wedding will be an event of tomorrow.

Most important on the calendar today is the wedding of Miss Myrtle Sylvia Dix and Henry Philip, which will be solemnized tonight at 8 o'clock in the Westminster Presbyterian Church. Miss Sylvia's father, Mr. H. P. Dix, is a prominent real estate and fruit ranching. The wedding will be an event of early January, and the young folk will be betrothed extensively with pre-nuptial functions.

Tomorrow Miss Helen Holman, of San Francisco, who is a member of the Hay's house group, will get many old friends at the informal tea to be presided over by Miss Hoyt at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Ralph H. Hoyt. The guests will be of the debutante set, in which both girls are popular.

At the Cotillion today in the Hotel Imperial, the program will be opened with recitations from the Bible. Among those who will contribute to the program will be Mrs. Will F. Powell, Mrs. L. E. Waters, Miss Lela Slater and others.

The Women's League of the Salvation Army is holding a number of Christmas bazaars at Second and Morrison streets, for the benefit of the Salvation Army work.

Hokey again is claiming the attention of society, and devotees of this particular sport, as many reservations as ever have been made for Friday night's game between Seattle-Portland. This is the first time Seattle has been represented in Portland, and that accounts for the great enthusiasm being manifested.

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Canfield left last night for their home in Clarkston, Wash., after a delightful trip to California and a visit with Mrs. Alice Vaughn, of 426 Lovejoy street. They were accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Jasper Booth, of Canfield, Idaho.

The Portland Rowing Club's dance, scheduled for tomorrow night at its attractive clubhouse at the foot of Iron street, is creating interest among the dancing-loving contingent. Committee for the evening includes S. N. Rogstad, D. O. Cooper, H. B. Vetterle, W. C. Gregory, C. H. Humphrey and J. F. Betsch.

Miss Virginia Riblett, a charming and attractive maid of Spokane, is expected soon to pass the holidays with Miss Gladys Dunne, a popular debutante of this city.

Roderick Macleay, who attended the closing of the Exposition in San Francisco, is passing the week with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Grant, with whom he is participating in the social gaieties of the Exposition city.

Eureka Council, No. 294, Knights and Ladies of Security, attended the address on the employment problem given by W. E. Utten at the regular meeting Monday night. Elaborate preparations are being made for the Christmas tree entertainment next Monday night, December 23, by Eureka's past president.

Natty Raincoats Blot Terror From Rainy Days.

Even Most Timid Women Venture Forth in Protecting and Becoming Raincoat.

PORTLAND'S rainy days heretofore will hold no terrors for even the most fastidious and timid of women. Yesterday there arrived in the Portland shops a number of raincoats, distinctive in design and in the smartness of their appeal. An artistic design in the plaid raincoat, made both in silk and wool, has been introduced, rather straight lines and a big, broad belt. A few of the features that will add to its popularity are the fancy bone buttons with long buttonholes, wide cuffs, button-trimmed, and a storm collar with one side hanging in a loose point and the other side buttoning over it. The coats are seen in both dark and brighter plaids.

The fanciful, transparent storm cloth has been fashioned into several models, both practical and good-looking, and in colors that range from green and yellow to black. In general these coats are extremely plain and have long straight lines.

Now enters gold and silver braid on velvet, broadcloth and even serge suits. Some of the most elaborate of the newest suits have embroidered gold and silver-covered buttons, little fancy braiding of the same on the sleeves and collars, and all have a military "Near Spring has brought in some suits suggestive of warmer days. There are a number shown in colored checks and bright tones. A green check is especially attractive, with a shirred pleated skirt and trimming of narrow dark green velvet bands in rows of three. The principal feature of the jacket is the novelty belt, which is finished in the center back with little velvet buttons, and goes up under the arms to two mock pockets in front. The sleeves have a buff right over cuff which is finished with bands of velvet and little buttons.

THE SANDMAN STORY

By Mrs. F. A. Walker

Honest John's Reward.

JOHN was a poor country boy, and knew little about the wide, wide world that lay beyond his father's gate. He had seen very few pieces of money in all his life, as the farm only gave them a scanty living. One day, while John was driving the cows to the pasture, he found a big bag of gold just beside the brook. He could hardly believe his eyes as he looked at the bright, shining coins. The more he gazed at the gold the more he wondered what to do. Finally he sat down and emptied all the money in his lap and commenced to count it with greedy eyes. An old green frog had been watching him all this time, and when he saw John count the last piece he hopped up to him and in a very friendly manner said: "My friend, you are rich now, but not for long. The money will be gone before you know it. If you will take it to the bank, it will be safe there, and you will be able to count it every day."

John jumped at the frog's words, for he was afraid of the frog's words, and he started on his way. As he passed through a deep forest he was startled by a voice from the treetops calling to him: "Oh, oh, my good friend, why do you walk on this tiresome journey when you have money enough to buy the finest clothes in the land?" John looked up and saw a big black crow perched on the highest limb of the tallest oak.

"No, Mr. Crow," he replied, "I shall not take one penny of this money, for it does not belong to me. I am looking now for the unfortunate person who has lost it."

The crow very much disgusted, flew away with an ugly "caw." Now John trudged along until he came to a beautiful valley. The towers were a lovely sight, and he stopped for a moment to pluck a bunch of deep red roses. As he broke off the largest and loveliest rose, an immense spider crawled up one of its velvet petals and before John had time to brush it away the little fellow crossed his legs and in the most important manner piped out: "Oh, oh! my foolish friend, why are you contented to remain poor when you have money enough to build the finest palace in the world? Have the King send for his royal family at your feet!"

"No," answered John in anger, "I shall not take what does not belong to me, and I will have the King send for his royal family at your feet!"

As night came on John climbed a tall tree for fear of the King. When he had settled himself as comfortably as it was possible on a big limb, he was startled by the sound of mourning. The noise seemed to come from within the trunk of the tree. John scrambled down, and to his great surprise found a little door on the side.

This at once opened, and there, chained to the root, was a lovely girl weeping as though her heart would break. With his strong hand he soon freed her and led her out of her prison. She was very grateful to John for all he had done for her, but still trembling with fear, she said she must hasten away, for the hideous monster would soon return. John then heard from her the sorrowful story of how she had been stolen by this monster. He had taken all of her gold, and in his mad race to hide it had dropped the bag on the way. No sooner had the lovely Princess spoken these words than John drew from under his arm the bag and presented it to her. The Princess recognized it at once.

"No," she said, "I shall not take it. You must have it all. It is poor return for all you have done for me."

"I will take it," said John, "only if you will promise to share it with me as my bride." The Princess smiled her sweetest smile and took his outstretched hand. "Come," he said, "we have just time to escape."

In the distance they could hear the low growling and heavy footsteps of the coming monster. But by the time he had gotten up to the tree the Princess and John had reached the palace and the grateful King had received him as his son.

No Christmas gift is comparable in pleasure-giving to the ANGELUS PLAYER PIANO

THE ANGELUS is the one gift that makes instant appeal to every member of the household. From the oldest to the youngest, each can find a special joy in its coming, because it can be personally used and enjoyed by all alike.

The ANGELUS is the universal means for musical enjoyment, requiring no finger skill or knowledge of musical technique.

The ANGELUS is the only player with which you can play like an accomplished pianist.

The reason is fundamental; it is because of the three exclusive and patented features which have made the ANGELUS world-famous. The Phrasing Lever—the most valuable and important expression device on any player-piano, giving a control of tempo only equalled by the human fingers. The Melodant—that emphasizes the theme or melody, and the Diaphragm Pneumatics—through which the perfect human touch is obtained.

We shall be delighted to tell you all about the ANGELUS and its wonderful features without involving any obligation whatever on your part.

HIGHLAND PASTOR RESIGNS

Rev. E. S. Bollinger Is to Go to Alaska Church.

The Rev. E. S. Bollinger, pastor of the Highland Presbyterian Church, tendered his resignation from the pastorate which he has held continuously for nine years, and the resignation was accepted Monday night by the official board.

He will go to Douglas, Alaska, and Owen Unstead, pastor in the church there, is mentioned as his successor in Portland. A meeting will be held tonight to attend to this detail.

The Rev. Mr. Bollinger plans to leave about February 1, and will be accompanied to Alaska by his daughter, Alice. His wife will follow in June.

Before taking the pupil in Portland, he was pastor in Oregon City for eight years, and before that in Astoria. For some time he was superintendent of the school for the blind in Salem. He came to Oregon in 1889.

MOOSE PLANNING DANCE

James John Lodge Will Entertain Next Saturday Night.

James John Lodge, No. 1569, Loyal Order of Moose, has leased the skating rink at St. Johns and will give its next dance at that place on Saturday night, December 18.

A Christmas tree celebration will be held in the McClure block on Jersey street. A dance will follow.

There will be a big class of candidates to initiate on the following Thursday night, December 23, when there will be a smoker and an auction sale in the clubroom.

SANITARIUM CHIEF FINED

Conductor of Tuberculosis Hospital in City Limits Punished.

Charged with conducting a sanitarium for tubercular patients at 978 Council Crest drive, contrary to the city ordinance prohibiting such institutions within the city limits, Mrs. L. Church was fined $50 in Municipal Court yesterday. Lawyers for Mrs. Church served notice of appeal and her bail was placed at $50.

The complaint against Mrs. Church was sworn out by William Young, who lives in the vicinity of the alleged sanitarium.

"I WON'T DO MY CHRISTMAS SHOPPING LOOKING LIKE A PERFECT 'DOWN', LUCILE!"

"No, I wouldn't, either! I'd go to CHERY'S, Anna, and get one of the elegant fur-trimmed Suits they're selling for as little as $19.50—and buy it ON CREDIT, of course."

"Why, can I do that, Lucile? You know, a Suit like that is just exactly what I've been wanting, but I was determined not to spend my Christmas money on myself. Can I really buy a Suit at Chery's without paying for it all?"

"Indeed, yes! I do that way — any number of girls do. Less than half the price will do at first and you can pay the rest either by the week or by the month. Anna, you'll be 'floored' when you see how smart Chery's $19.50 Suits are, and they have even lovelier ones, Broadcloth and Velvet, for $24.50 and $30."

"And, while I think of it, here's a card with Chery's address—339-331 Washington street, in the Pittock blk."
