A. L. Martin. DALLAS, Or., Jan. 16.—(Special.)—The Dallas Commercial Club enters its sixth year with bright prospects for one of the most successful periods of progress and activity yet known here. Several new industries that will materially enlarge the payroll are being urged to open in Polk's county seat.

The annual meeting of the club was held recently, at which the board of directors was elected. A. L. Martin, manager of the Oregon Power Company in Polk County, was unanimously chosen as president. Mr. Martin is on the board of directors of La Creole Club of Dallas, and was recently appointed a member of the Polk County Fair Board. Before coming to Dallas he represented his company as manager at Corvallis.

U. S. Fuller, of the Fuller Pharmacy, has held the office of president for four years, and has retired in spite of the urgent request of the club membership as well as his successor in office. Through his efforts individually is largely due the successful organization of a permanent county fair in Polk County.

U. S. Loughary was re-elected secretary and Eugene Hayer was re-elected treasurer. Mr. Loughary is now serving his second term of office.

of good song selections well sung and clever dancing, both by the leading actors. Dolly Dooley, played by Ben T. Dillon, yielded to a weakness while on a trip to New York and took a girl to a fashionable restaurant. While the girl was ordering high-priced dishes and wine he had the misfortune to lose his purse, so that he had to leave without settling his bill. His little escapade keeps Mike busy explaining and developments keep the audience in excitement. The Leshnaks, played by Will King, as usual contributes his share of comedy.

Among the popular musical numbers are "Can't You Hear Me Call?" sung by Dolly Bunch, the chorus and the Columbia quartet. She was called back for several encores. "Something Seems Tingle-Ingling," sung by Ruby Lane and chorus, made a hit with the audience. Frank Harrington, always popular, sang "We'll Have a Jubilee in My Old Kentucky Home." The Columbia quartet also sang several songs.

HIGHBROW HOBO DUE University is Open for Knights of Tomato Can.

ECONOMICS TO BE TAUGHT Latin Grace Over "Mulligan" and Greek Lyric to Put Coveted Fowl to Sleep Likely to Become Habit of Wanderers.

News has come all the way to Portland by hobo underground railway that "hobos" of St. Louis, is to establish a "hobo" university at Chicago. One need not be surprised at anything from those knights of the ties and tin can. No doubt, as they gather around their campfires they will mutter a Latin grace—"Tu sacra famas auris" before falling on their steaming "mulligan." Perhaps they will tell the chickens to sleep on their roosts with a Greek lyric from "Sappho" before plucking the fattest to grace their unctuous feast. Anyway, that is the way the philosophical members of Portland's migratory "hobos" view the learning situation.

These hobos were ever philosophers. The deep philosophy of the ages, which makes the callow students of ordinary universities sweat, will be to them like breathing in the ozone of a wider existence and, with that as an inspiration, some substantial contributions from them to that branch of human endeavor may be expected. Such ill fortune cannot be hoped for these merry members of a liberty-loving race, that any of them will become associated with their new study that, while meditating and contemplating the boundless depths of space, they will fall through a cattle guard even as a great Greek philosopher fell down a well.

These hobos who have left Portland undoubtedly will return in the Spring, and some of them will become "New" to ask the next passer for a dime "just to get a cup of coffee."

Another, however, realizing that going to school would mean boundless feasts at the expense of Mr. How's bank account, declared that he would start immediately. The new school is to teach medicine, economics and jurisprudence to be taught so that the hobos will know how to take care of themselves, and jurisprudence to keep them out of the clutches of the law.
