DEBUTANTE AT NATIONAL CAPITAL WHO IS RECIPIENT OF MANY HONORS THIS SEASON.

Miss Grace Overman. BAIN PHOTO.

ONE of the smartest events of the early part of this week is the third of the series of dancing and card parties to be given tonight by the Scottish Rite Masons at their cathedral in Morrison street. Contrary to their established custom, the organization will hold this party Wednesday evening and Thursday as heretofore. Patronesses for this evening will be Mrs. H. J. Blasing, Mrs. R. D. Inman, Mrs. Roy F. Fike, Mrs. R. P. Knight, Mrs. Frank Lucas, Mrs. J. H. MacKenzie, Mrs. L. A. Bailey, Mrs. A. M. Wright, Mrs. Robert Sken and Mrs. McKinley Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Schade, of this city, whose marriage was solemnized in Seattle recently, have returned from their honeymoon through Washington and Britain Columbia and are now at home to their friends at 549 East Thirty-seventh street South.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Wolgamot entertained a few friends Friday evening at their attractive home at Golf Junction. Cards and dancing were features of the evening, high scores falling in favor of Mrs. Sydney Hatcher and Ralph Shepherd.

A color combination of pink and white was used in the dining-room, where covers were placed for Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Hatcher, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shepherd, Miss Lucille Carrol, Miss Lydia Dammeler, William Harboke, Jay Paddock and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Wolgamot.

Beginning at 10 o'clock today the Unitarian Women's Alliance will hold an all-day luncheon in the Unitarian Church parlors. The women are now sewing for local charity, and their philanthropy is far-reaching and excellent.

At 2 o'clock the busy workers will stop for a short business session, proceeding later with the Peace Hotel luncheon on Wednesday evening. The service was read in the ballroom of the Palace, beneath a wedding ball of pink roses, the same ball having been used to impart its beneficence at the marriage of the bride's parents. One end of the ballroom was converted into a floral bower, enclosing an altar with white pillars forming an arch. The pillars were topped with pink roses and carnations, the ensemble giving the effect of a huge umbrella-like bouquet, from which festoons of green entwined themselves to the base of the columns. The other end of the ballroom was massed in ferns and palms to the orchestra left. Baskets of spring flowers were hung in each window. Supper, which followed the ceremony, was served at a large table, horseshoe-shaped, banked with pink blossoms. Covers were placed for about 150, the concert-room being used for the occasion.

The bride, an unusually pretty young woman, was charming in a gown of white tulle, overdressed with Alençon lace, medallions of rose point being inserted in the Hester lace. The corage was embroidered in pearls. The gown was made short, the train being partially formed of the long tulle veil, which had medallions of the rose point inserted in an artistic fashion. The bridal bouquet was formed of many small bouquets of orchids and lilies of the valley in a shower effect, which few apart when the bouquet was thrown, many of the girls present endeavoring to catch them.

The Misses Emma and Beatrice Lichenstein, of New York, cousins of the bride, and the Misses B. Goldberg and Claire Enos attended the bride. The Misses Lichenstein wore pale pink and blue tulle over silver lace. The other two girls were gowned in orchid pink with silver lace. In place of bouquets the girls carried shepherd's crooks, topped off with orchids, roses and lilies of the valley. As the bridal party entered the ballroom they carried a charming picture, as all of the girls were still in their teens. Edmond Herrscher was best man, and the ushers were: Benjamin Sternheim, N. Goldberg, Emil Brilbacher and L. Orenheimer. Little Marie Meyer, thirteen we was of 4 years, carried the ring. The ritual was read by the Rev. Martin E. Meyer. Joseph Herrscher gave his daughter away.

Mrs. Herrscher wore a handsome gown of peacock blue paillettes, made over old gold tinsel, and she carried orchids. Mrs. Emma Cohn, of Spokane, a sister of the bridegroom, was gowned in black velvet, trimmed in champagne, also wore black, a handsome tulle, embroidered in silver. Miss Celia Friendly, another sister, was gowned in white tulle, embroidered in white, with vivid orchids to impart color.

Mr. and Mrs. Friendly left for a wedding trip to Palm Beach, Fla., on Wednesday. Upon their return in the Spring

The G. N. C. E. committee are making plans for their annual ball. It will be informal, on Tuesday evening, February 1, at Cottillion Hall. A feature of the evening will be a serpentine battle.

The wedding of Miss Mary Nudelman and Jack Cohen will take place Sunday at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Nudelman. Dr. Jonah B. Wise to officiate. The ceremony will be only for the families and intimate friends, and will be read at 1 o'clock. From 7 to 10 o'clock, a reception will be held for friends.

Mrs. J. A. Herring, of the Carmelita Apartments, suffering from an attack of grippe, is convalescing at Portland Sanitarium.

Samuel Hill, of Seattle, has taken up his residence at Hotel Mallory.

Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Smith and son, B. B. Smith, of Philadelphia, are recent arrivals at the Mallory. Other arrivals include: Mrs. and Mrs. W. T. Wright, of Union, O., and H. A. Shearer, Spokane, Wash.

NOT A PARTICLE OF DANDRUFF OR A FALLING HAIR

Save Your Hair! Double Its Beauty in Just a Few Moments.

25-Cent "Danderine" Makes Hair Thick, Glossy, Wavy and Beautiful.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you more will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful. It gives the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and abundant; and have an appearance of softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

THE SANDMAN STORY BY MRS. F. A. WALKER

Sammy's Circus Day.
 SAM was a grocery boy and drove the wagon to deliver pies and other good things to people's homes. But he did not like the job a bit. For he was fond of marbles and ball, and when there was a game in town it seemed simply awful to have to trot Ben around from door to door and lug in stupid baskets of cabbages and meat. But it seemed as if there was no help for it.

But he took out his disappointment in a mean way. Every chance he got he would worry Ben and set the dog on the cat, and when he got home he would tease his two sisters and baby brother till the whole family were glad when he was away.

In May the big circus came to town. Sam stopped his wagon to see the glided cage go by and the camels swinging along behind. When he got back to the store and found he had to deliver straw rose on the warm breeze, Sam jerked the box of pies into the cook tent, stole into the menagerie, where the beasts were eating their dinner. But he soon got tired of watching that and began to stare them. He would poke a stick through the bars of the cages when the showmen were not looking, tickle them when a wild animal was being led out with a wire, pull the hay from where the elephants could reach it and drag the pall from which the giraffe drank so fat he could not get it at all. When he had been about as disagreeable as a boy could be, he stole up some straw behind a cage, determined to stay there and sneak into the big tent when the performance began.

But when the band struck up he was surprised to see a wonderful thing happen, a thing that was not on the bill at all. The case door opened and out solemnly walked the animals. At the front was a big Bengal tiger lashing his tail with his tail. After him lumbered an elephant with a giraffe and several leopards. Strange to say, they all stopped right before where Sam sat. The tiger opened his huge, red mouth in an ugly snarl. "This is the boy that has been finding all his pleasure in making us miserable," he growled. "Here, Mr. Elephant, just toss him up into my cage."

In a moment Sam was being whirled around in the air, for the elephant thought he would have some fun, too. He was swung from side to side of the tent, but every time he fell the elephant caught him again just like a player at baseball.

At last the elephant tossed him into a cage and the tiger snapped the bolt. How uncomfortable he felt in his box for his legs were so cramped he could not stand and was obliged to crawl around on his knees. Then he was being swung, but when he tried to drink out of the pall in the corner the leopard pushed it over and it spilled all over the floor. All the animals laughed and roared again.

Then the elephant came up with a big tub full of sand. This they poured over the suffering boy, and it almost choked him to death.

"Fine fun, isn't it, making miserable?" asked the tiger, with a sneer. "You never remember that we have any feelings at all. I thought we would show you just how it feels to be worried as you have been doing us today."

Just then a band struck up again, but this time it was loud enough to wake Sam, for he had been asleep on the straw behind the cage for half an hour, and the performance was about to begin. The boy rubbed his eyes and looked about, but all the animals were quiet in their cages. And his clothing had not a grain of sand on it.

"Ge!" he exclaimed happily, "I must have had a dandy dream—and how glad I am that it is a dream after all. I tell you it was tough being shut up in a cage and having folks tease you. I guess I'll remember after this just how animals feel and not make them miserable any more."

So happy Sam went out to give Ben a fresh pall of water, and ever after he

Careless Use of Soap Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulled coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulled coconut oil at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Adv.
