Oregon's Largest Herd Is Reported Near Starvation.

MANY BIRDS BEING FED

Rod and Gun Clubs Aiding Game Commission in Preventing Extermination of Life Held Valuable to Farmers.

Mastern Oregon reports that unless a moderation in the weather enables herd of elk in the Bear Den country near Snow Ridge to obtain food re is a grave danger that the animais will perish. The herd, brought to this state several years ago, is the Deputy Game Warden Hills, of that district, declares the anow is from ar-to eight feet deep and even the trap-pers have been forced to abandon their pers have been forced to abandon their Winter activity until the cold abates. The deer have been driven to lower elevations by the storm and by the wolves that have become extremely dangerous because of the lack of food. Poisoned horsefiesh has been planted to kill the bensts of prey.

All over the state work is being done to conserve the lives of game and song birds. Letters indicate that

Dr. C. F. Hodge, of the departmen Dr. C. F. Hodge, of the department of biology in the State University at Eugene, says the state has only one-third of the number of birds that are necessary for the extermination of insects and pests harmful to fruit and crops. He urges all children, especially, to build bird boxes for window sills and, by feeding what birds come, save their lives and a considerable sum to the farmers and fruitgrowers of the state.

At Camby and Gaston, with a snow-fail of 20 inches, the birds are being cared for.

Rod and gun clubs from many parts of the state have worked in conjunc-tion with the Game Commission in gaining effective results.

O. B. Parker, of McMinnville, yesterday wrote to the game department that he was feeding 500 bob-white quall, 100 China pheasants and 25 native pheasants. All through the Willamette Valley

China pheasants have become tame and apparently have difficulty in fly-

VICTIMS TO GET MONEY

COUNTY CLERK HOLDS $130 FOR PAUL WILLIAMS' DUPES.

Convicted Swindler Seeks to Turn Cash Over to Lawyer, but Part Restitution Is Ordered.

The $130 held in trust by County Clerk Coffey, part of the money a convicted awindler gleaned from big merchants of Portland in 1914, will not go to Oliver M. Hickey, the attorney who defended the criminal, as a fee.

Acting in accordance with the wish expressed by Paul Williams, the bad check man who was brought from the Penitentiary at Salem to testify in the case Tuesday, the jury yesterday turned in a verdict awarding the money to Mr. Coffey, who may dispose of it only on order of the court. The order probably will be issued by Circuit Judge Morrow dividing the money among merchant victims as partial restitution.

Some of the largest firms in the city some of the largest firms in the city were victimized by Williams, who is serving a sentence of five years for his activities. Williams and his wife established a strong line of credit and, with this to work upon, flooded the other with southous checks in one day elty with spurious checks in one day, and left for the south by the night train.

He testified in court Tuesday that he had already paid the lawyer $66 for his services, and that he had assigned the $130 to Mr. Hickey only for the purpose of getting the money out of the hands of the police. He said that was anxious the money be turned back to the merchants.
