Grant County Gets Largest Portion, $5171, and Lane Ranking Second With $5099—New Basis of Disbursement Used.

SALEM, Or., Jan. 20.—(Special.)—Among the counties in which are located National forest reserves, Secretary of State Olcott today apportioned $49,675.82. The money was received from the Federal Government from forest reserve rentals, sales of timber and other forest reserve sources for the year ending June 30, 1915. The amount was disbursed to the counties in proportion to the forest area within each county.

Under the law the counties must divide the moneys thus received in equal parts between their school and road funds. The counties in the state not participating in the distribution of this money are Clatsop, Columbia, Gilliam, Sherman and Washington. No National forest lands are situated in these counties.

New Basis Is Used.
In transmitting the schedule of National Forest areas the Acting Forester says that the schedule has been computed on a different basis from those previously furnished, since it includes only actual National Forest lands exclusive of alienated lands. The former schedules were based on gross areas.

According to the figures submitted by the Federal officials, Oregon's total forest reserve area is 13,259,992 acres. Grant County, with a forest reserve area of 1,356,457 acres, leads all other counties and thus receives the largest share of the money apportioned, amounting to $5171.60. Lane county is second with a forest area of 1,361,243 acres and receives $5099.82.

Amounts Are Listed.
A statement of gross area, the National Forest area and the amount apportioned to each county follows:

MOVING PICTURE NEWS

FAMOUS BLUEBIRD FILM TO BE SCREENED SUNDAY.

TODAY'S FILM FEATURES.
Pickford—"The City."
Peoples—"Mice and Men."
The Goddess.
Columbia—"The Corner."
The Hunt.
Majestic—"The Battle Cry of Peace."
National—"The Man Inside."
Sunset—"Rosemary."

ONE man's remorseless greed and the nemesis that overtook him in the form of one of his victims is forcefully and artistically pictured in "The Corner," a Triangle production which was given its initial public Portland screening at the Columbia Theater yesterday. A competent cast is headed by Willard Mack, former Baker Theater favorite, George Fawcett, and Clara Williams. The comedy of the performance is provided by Ford Sterling and Polly Moran in "The Hunt," a Keystone gale of laughter.

Screen Gossip.
Manager James, of the Majestic Theater, effected an eleventh-hour switch in programme yesterday and decided to continue the screening of "The Battle Cry of Peace" for the remainder of the week, postponing "The Fourth Estate" to some future date. The Vitaphone film which treats of National unpreparedness, is proving a good drawing card.

Marguerite Clark, in her splendid screen version of "The Goddess," will continue throughout the week at the Peoples Theater, along with "The Goddess," featuring Anita Stewart and Earle Williams.

At the Sunset "Rosemary" will be exhibited until Saturday night. This beautiful Metro production, exhibited with fine surroundings in the shape of decorations, costumed attendants and music, is proving very attractive.

Alan Hale, who has been with the Biograph for so long, playing leads, has left that company and has been engaged by the Lasky-Paramount Company.

Theda Bara, world-famous woman of the William Fox photoplay forces, has received an invitation to prepare a series of articles for a chain of influential newspapers. Miss Bara has received Mr. Fox's permission to write the articles, and it is expected that she will begin work on them upon the completion of the picture in which she is now working.

The second Fine Art Films subject in which DeWolf Hopper is starred has been titled "A Knight of the Garter" and is from an original screen play by Chester Withey and Tod Browning. The supporting cast includes Fay Tincher, Julia Faye, Max Davidson, Jewel Carmen, Bobbie Fuchrer and the co-author, Chester Withey. The direction has been entrusted to Edward Dillon.

William Faversham paid a high tribute to "The City" when he characterized it as the strongest and most vital play he has ever seen.

Edwin Stevens, star of "The Man Inside," once managed two musical comedy houses in Portland. This was back in the '90s. His last appearance in Portland was last season at the Orpheum Theater, presenting him at the Orpheum Theater.

Robert Warwick, the World Film star, was for several years the middleweight amateur champion of the Olympic Club in "Frisco." He still keeps in shape by boxing four rounds three times a week at a local gym.

Virginia Richdale Kerrigan, daughter of Wallace Kerrigan, superintendent of the Universal ranch, and who was born at Universal City six weeks ago, already has made her appearance in several pictures. The little one is a niece of J. Warren Kerrigan.

Marguerite Snow, Metro star in "The Upstart" and "Rosemary," writes on an average of 500 letters a week to motion picture fans who write her with letters.

Edna Mayo, starring with Henry Walhall in the Essanay series, "The Curious Case of Mary Page," was born in Philadelphia and grew up in Brooklyn. She has had many other exciting experiences in her life.

There is no danger of Hazel Dawn ever being placed in the "didn't know it was loaded" category. When the famous Players star was given a big automatic pistol to use in a midnight burglary scene in "My Lady Ince" she took the whole thing apart and very nearly succeeded in putting it entirely out of commission, while making sure that it held no cartridges.

PART OF EXHIBITS ARRIVE AT CHAMBER

Display of Oregon Products Being Established From Best Shown at Fair.

N. T. JUDD IS IN CHARGE

Woods, Minerals and All Resources of State Will Be Shown in Space Set Aside on First Floor of Building.

Portland will have the best exhibit palace on the Pacific Coast and products of all kinds and from all sections of the state will be shown in a permanent exhibit on the first floor of the Commercial Club building. The best of the exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition will be used in addition to the products already on hand. Three carloads of Oregon products culled from the vast quantity representing the state at the San Francisco fair already have arrived and are stored at the Commercial Club building ready to be unpacked and arranged. Another carload, the last, is due to arrive.

N. T. Judd, state exhibit agent, who will be in permanent charge of the new exhibit, is looking after the arrival and storing of the products preparatory to the final arrangement in the display. O. E. Freitag, of Oregon City, who has had wide experience in the displaying of products at the Oregon State Fair and other expositions, has been chosen to superintend the arranging of the products.

Work is now in progress and shelves and booths for the exhibits are now being put in. Conspicuously set up in the center of the auditorium is the "information desk" at the Panama-Pacific exposition. It is made of various Oregon woods, including myrtle, black walnut, fir, cedar and maple, all beautifully polished and showing a grain unsurpassed for furniture making. The booth is to be used by Mr. Judd as an office.

The exhibit will include all the products which can be produced in Oregon, apples, peaches and prunes, grain and forage crops and mineral wealth.

"We plan," said Mr. Freitag, "to have the railroads mention the exhibit in their folders and urge tourists and visitors to Portland to call at the exhibit palace and thus obtain first-hand knowledge of Oregon's products." "The exhibit will include in particular the display of forage crops which won for Oregon the highest possible award on those products. The other products which won so many medals of honor and gold medals will also be shown."

TREATY TRIAL IS TODAY

RIGHTS OF INDIANS TO COLUMBIA FISHING GROUNDS AT STAKE.

Fact Made With Yakima Nation in 1855 Is Chief Issue in Case of Sam Williams.

The treaty made between the United States Government and the Yakima Indian nation in June, 1855, under which the Indians, in return for certain concessions and relinquishments, were guaranteed the right in perpetuity to fish "in their usual and accustomed fishing places," is involved in a case that comes to trial before Federal Judge Wolverton this morning.

In behalf of Sam Williams, an Indian ward of the Government, and of the Yakima nation, the Government is seeking a perpetual injunction restraining Seufert Bros., wealthy salmon cannermen of The Dalles, from interfering with fishing rights of the Indians on the Oregon shore of the Columbia River.

Many Indian witnesses, Yakimas and Warm Springs, Oregon tribesmen, have been summoned as witnesses. They include such chiefs as Wallulatum, 104 years old, of the Warm Springs; Rev. George Waters, of the Yakimas, a noted Indian missionary, and many others.

At a hearing on the Government's petition for a temporary injunction, held last May before Judge Wolverton, the canner interests won the first phase of the contest, when the restraining order was denied by Judge Wolverton.

Robert R. Rankin, assistant United States Attorney, is handling the case for the Government. Judge A. S. Bennett, of The Dalles, and R. R. Butler appear for Seufert Bros.
