Complaint Against Banker in Seattle Under Prohibition Law Denied Sheriff.

Warrants to Be Sworn Out Before Judges—Attorneys Express Opinion Recent Raids Violated Rights of Residents.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 21.—(Special.)—Holding to his expressed determination not to arm deputy sheriffs with warrants to search private homes, prosecuting attorney Lundin today denied the application of Sheriff Hodge for a complaint directed against a prominent Seattle banker.

Rights in Home Is Issue.

And so Sheriff Hodge and prosecuting attorney Lundin have come to the parting of the ways, for the sheriff is persistently talking the stand that many of Seattle's most prominent attorneys do, that the law gives a man certain rights within his own home which are inviolable and that raids on private residences unless there is proof of illegal sale or use of liquor, are without justification in law.

COPS DON WRIST WATCHES

Detectives Use Ruse to Get Invitation to Bet on Races.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Thirteen detectives from Inspector Morris' offices in the West Thirtieth street Police Station, who constituted themselves into a sort of "wrist-watch squad" raided Nos. 115 and 116 in the Hotel Marlborough, Thirty-sixth street and Broadway, which they reported to be a headquarters for the taking of racing bets.

Frank Waters, who said he is a broker at No. 1552 Broadway, was arrested as the proprietor, and Jesse Schwartz, a salesman, was held as an "innate." Four others were permitted to go.

The raid was made as the result of several letters Inspector Morris had received from a woman who declared her husband had lost many hundreds of dollars in the place. He assigned Detectives McNair, Townsend and Slattery to investigate.

The raid created some excitement in Broadway, when a patrol wagon backed up to the hotel's entrance.

EPICURE FEEDING CATTLE

YOUTH JUMPS FROM IDLE RICH CLASS TO FARM LABOR.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 14.—Before Theodore Peltzer's death fell toppled over the fortunes of the young man, a young man of wealth and leisure.

Today Herman Peltzer is a hired hand on a farm, working a farm hand's hours and drawing a farm hand's pay, less a month than he was accustomed to pay for a dinner just three months ago.

The law punishing one for having liquor in his possession which was acquired before the law went into effect when it was lawful to have it in one's possession, seems to be exp post facto.

POTATO RAISING HELD ART

North Dakotan Complains at Crop of 40,000 Bushels From 400 Acres.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 15.—Potato raising is an art, according to Nels Folsom, known as the potato king of the Northwest. Folsom hails from Hoople, N. D., and is said to raise more of the tubers than any other man in this part of the country.

The potato king said that the art of potato raising is one that few acquire, which accounts for the fact that there are not many potato raisers in the right kind of attention to their growing crops, he says.

Because of the light crop last season good prices are prevailing, which in a manner recompense the grower for the lack of quantity, declared Folsom. He has 400 acres near Hoople, which he devotes to the raising of potatoes, and he says that with only 40,000 bushels it was the poorest season that he has had since he went there in 1910.

The potato king says he has advised every farmer in the Red River Valley to plant a patch of potatoes, as it is the greatest preparation there is for the raising of alfalfa.

GAME LAW HITS EPICURES

Purveyors for Newport Winter Society Are "Inspected."

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 13.—Winter society at Newport will have to drop for a while its epicurean tastes for game out of season, for, although since the electric lights have been in force many have enjoyed a few partridges, quail and yellow legs, a raid this afternoon by game warden H. B. Beecher, supplied the Newport Harrington has placed the heretofore relished species in the "also-ran" class.

Among those technically under arrest for the alleged violation of having game birds in their possession after the closed season are the manager of Henry F. Rooney's market, on Thames street, who has been a member of the society who like to select for themselves their choice morsels, and Gardner S. Reynolds, manager of the Seaside market.

At the former place 68 birds were found by the inspectors and 42 at the latter place.

The inspection is the outcome of a movement all over the state, and other cities are involved.

The Well Dressed Window Nothing is better as a trade paper—unless it be direct news—The window gives the store character to every passer by. It marks it up or down. It attracts trade or repels it. People are often attracted to a window because it contains goods they know. For this reason retailers find it a trade bringer to show merchandise that is being advertised in the newspapers. People are interested in these goods and attracted to the window and to the store.
