RED IS MULTIPLYING

Dr. Laffin Says Race Is Gaining 2 Per Cent a Year.

INDIAN SPREADS DISEASE

Eye Infection Is Declared to Be Menace to Rest of State, but Tuberculosis Has Been Quered, He Believes.

The Indian is not a vanishing race; instead poor Lo is overcoming the white man's disease, supposedly so deadly to him, and gaining rapidly in numbers. This gain is greater in percentage than the gain by birth of the white population of the United States.

So says Dr. C. J. Laffin, F. R. G. S., for the past seven years agency physician at the Warm Springs reservation, Eastern Oregon, who, with Mrs. Laffin, is in Portland en route to Fort Defiance, Arizona, where he has been appointed physician in charge of the physical well-being of the Navajo Indians stationed there.

Discussing the problem of the Indian civilization through a series of slides, one of the most serious that remains to be considered by the Pacific Northwestern states, as carriers of trachoma and tuberculosis, he says, the Indians are a health menace.

Dr. Laffin has just brought his Indian charges at the Warm Springs reservation through a serious stage of the grippe. In the school there are 115 children and of this number 103 had the disease. Not a case was lost. Nearly 80 per cent of the patients, with rattling lungs and afternoon temperatures, seemed almost past hope, but who picked up with proper care and made speedy recoveries.

"True, probably 90 per cent of our Indians have tuberculosis in some form. This includes tuberculosis of the glands and other minor cases, and does not mean that the lungs are affected, by any means. After long study and close contact with the patients, I have come to the conclusion that they are not only less susceptible to tuberculosis than the whites, but they show a greater resisting power to the disease."

The Indian, he said, goes everywhere without restraint, stays at leading hotels and travels a great deal. Yet he estimates that no less than 25 per cent of Indians in this state have trachoma, a contagious eye disease, which is such a serious menace that thousands of foreigners who seek to land at Ellis Island every year are kept out of the country by the immigration authorities because they have this ailment.

On the Warm Springs reservation, he says, cancer is almost unknown.

Love Deserts Loves When Robert Declines Work.

Last Straw Is When Gertrude Has to Call on Parents for Something to Eat—She Gets Divorce.

CONNUBIAL bliss received a severe shock and love took wings when Gertrude E. Love found that Robert E. Love would do no other work than saw wood, and would only saw wood in the wood-saw season.

She might have stood for nagging, as love is charitable, but when she had to call upon her parents in order to ward off danger of starving on scanty meals, love lagged. When, on November 14, 1915, he threatened to kill her, loved grew cold, and Gertrude Love soon saw Love for dissolution of the marriage ties.

Love was put far out of the running yesterday when Gertrude Love was allowed to assume her maiden name of Gertrude Brown, after a divorce granted by Robert Love by decree of Circuit Judge Henry E. McGinn.

A divorce decree was granted G. W. Miller from his position as chief architect by Circuit Judge Davis.

J. S. FOSS DIES SUDDENLY

36-Year Resident of Portland and War Veteran Succumbs.

James S. Foss, an old resident of this city and veteran of the Civil War, dropped dead at his home yesterday night, Mrs. Robert F. Coe, 611 Mulberry street, Thursday night. He had been shoveling snow in front of the house when he dropped on the steps and died instantly.

Mr. Foss was born in Sumner county, Maine, November 7, 1845, and came to Portland in 1875. He was engaged in a number of years in the grocery and real estate business. He was a member of Company G, Twelfth Maine Volunteer Infantry, and was a member of George F. Wright Post, Grand Army of the Republic, and Orient Lodge of Oddfellows, No. 17.

UNLEASHED TEMPER COSTS

Sarah Poist, Who Protests Too Long, Is Fined $15.

If Sarah Poist had controlled her temper it would have saved her $15. She protested too much. Officers Wright and Russell went to her place several night ago to investigate conditions. They had no charges to press, and if everything had been found all right she would have been unbothered.

But she threw them out, figuratively speaking, and abused them, so they told the court. So Judge Stevenson fined her $15 for disorderly conduct.
