SEND IN YOUR FAVORITE POEM. Is there some poem that has a special charm for you, perhaps one that has lingered in your memory for a good many years? If there is, would you like to have it published, so that others might enjoy it in great measure of such a poem, mail a copy of it to The Oregonian. A full page of these contributions will be published in an early date. Doubtless it will be impossible to use all of the poems submitted, but if a self-addressed envelope is enclosed, the author's name will be returned. Verses written recently are not desired. The intention is to make up the page of poems that are not widely known, at least to the present generation. If possible, give the name of the author and place where the verses first appeared. Please address your communication to the city editor.

Advertisements Intended for City News in Brief columns in Sunday's issue must be handed in The Oregonian business office at 3 o'clock Saturday evening.

LITTLE MATINEE GIRLS CURIOUS ABOUT ACTRESS

Winifred Bryson Is Really Her Name, and She Is 22, Not Married, but Hopes to Be at 25—Mother Is With Her.

BY LEONE CASS BAER. TRYING to be a bureau of general information about the stage has its drawbacks sometimes. And sometimes it has its compensations. For instance, since Winifred Bryson came to adorn the Baker Stock Company, as its leading woman, all the little matinee girls have taken their pens in hand, although usually they are pencils, and on their best monogrammed correspondence cards have written to ask if the charming young actress is married, and if Winifred Bryson is her really, truly, name. So yesterday I hot-footed it over to rehearsal to get a line-up on a few of the things the l. m. g.'s (little matinee girls) want to know. Question 1. Is she married? Answer: N-o-o-o, thank you. But she plans to be. That is, not exactly plans, for that suggests that she is making a hope chest or embroidering initials or reading up on how to cook for two. She isn't doing any of these, nor is she planning in the accepted sense of the word. For the man isn't even a possibility yet. He's a dream.

Winifred Bryson, Leading Lady at Baker Theater.

"One of those handsome devils who comes prancing through girlhood's ideal riding on a charger," I asked. "No-o-o," faltered the little "Maxine Elliott" girl, "chargers are old-fashioned. He must come in a splendid motor and a don't care whether he's handsome, if only he's good and true." "But if they're good or true they're always very, very ugly," I said. "He must have plenty of money and be willing to let me go right on with my work and never interfere in the least with my career." "I think they don't make 'em like that any more," I said wearily. "Well, managers want actresses to stay single, or if they marry not to talk about it. Do you suppose a young leading woman could make the stage Johnny's heart palpitate if he knew a husky big husband was in the wings waiting for her? It's queer maybe, but it's true, every young man or old one either, who is entranced with the playing of an actress likes to think of her as a momentary possession. "That's the charm of it for him, even if he doesn't understand the psychology of it. To a woman in private life any sort of a husband and a 'Mum' on her visiting cards is an asset," philosophized Winifred Bryson. "But to an actress he is a liability. "Marriage is a social sacrament to the non-professional woman, she can call in the whole world to rejoice with her. But the husband of an actress never has the pleasure of saying 'I want the whole world to know' 'I'm crazy about you and we're married.' No, he must wait quietly around until she is famous if he cares about her success. "Maybe that's the test of true love, however. An affection that doesn't need an audience for stimulus, one that can live and thrive isolated is genuine. And after all nothing is more important than just getting the right man. If I'm not married by the time I'm 25 I'll be very much chagrined, but I'm single now." "And 22," I added. As for question number two. Her real name is Winifred Bryson. She's a California girl, and mother Bryson came along to Portland with her only child and the two are great pals. And thus endeth the mission of a reporter whose business it is occasionally to bring truth to the people.

"COP" SIPS TO SAVE LIQUOR Explanation That Patrolman Didn't Want Whisky to Spill Considered. "Someone put a glass of liquor to my lips and began tipping the glass. I had to drink it or let it spill, so I drank." That was the way ex-Patrolman L. E. Cullins explained yesterday to the Municipal Civil Service Board why he drank at a downtown party New Year's eve while he was on duty. He was discharged January 1 for drunkenness and appealed to the Civil Service Board for a hearing. Mr. Cullins admitted having taken several drinks of beer and whisky the night, but declared that instead of being drunk as charged he was taken suddenly and violently ill. The board took his case under advisement until Monday. Sawmills Start Again. COTTAGE GROVE, Or., Jan. 27.—(Special).—The sawmills in this vicinity have resumed operations after being idle about three weeks on account of weather conditions.

MOTHER CAN'T SEE CHILD MRS. BOWERS IS PUNISHED AS RESULT OF KIDNAPING.

Judge Cleaton Withholds Decision as to Plans Pending Action of the Higher Court.

Mollie Bowers, indicted yesterday with her brother, Clell Stump, by the grand jury for kidnaping her 8-year-old daughter, Marian, will be denied the sight of her child for the present, asserted County Judge Cleaton yesterday. The arrangements made by the court and which were interfered with by the abduction last Friday, permitted the pretty divorcee to visit her daughter frequently. If she proved to the satisfaction of the court that she could lead a life making her a fit person to care for the youngster, Mollie Bowers later was to have the permanent custody of Marian. Now other arrangements will be made by Judge Cleaton. He will not announce just what will be done, pending the action of the higher court, the kidnaping charge, but the arrangements will not be so liberal as first proposed. For the present, Marian will be placed in a family by the court. The family has not been decided upon, but the mother will not be consulted in the choice, as she was previously. Also, she may not visit or see the child until she has made some arrangements with Judge Cleaton. Mrs. Bowers, passionately declared yesterday that she could not live without the child and would take it from anyone who had the youngster, when free. She and her brother are held at the County Jail, being unable to furnish $1000 bond.

WISCONSIN COMPANY SUES ON BIG LOAN.—To recover $123,309.97, lent to the Southern Oregon Company for deposit in trust to cover accrued county taxes until the status of the Coos Bay wagon road grant was established, the Menasha Woodware Company, of Menasha, Wis., filed suit in the United States District Court yesterday. Dolph Mallory, Gearin & Simon represent the plaintiffs. Mr. Gearin said the suit was a friendly one, brought as much in the interests of the Southern Oregon Company as of the woodware company to determine to whom the money belongs. The supreme court decision did not settle the question, as the Southern Oregon Company, holding title to lands in the grant, did not care to pay the taxes until it determined whether the company is to hold the lands or they are to revert. In the meantime, the Menasha Woodware Company wants its money. Hence, the suit, which may reopen the wagon road litigation.

SEWER ACCEPTANCE IS FILED.—City Engineer Dater has filed with the Board of Public Works the acceptance of the sewer trunk sewer, which supplies Montavilla and East Montavilla, and the assessment for the property owners in the district. The sewer, which runs on Willow-street trunk starts at East Sixty-third and Willow street north of East Gilman street and extends eastward to the intersection of the Barr road to East Eighty-second, and then south to and beyond East Stark street to the end. A branch was built on East Fifty-third street, extending to East Eighty-second street. The total cost was $169,000.

Davis, and the following sisters: Mrs. G. W. Cusson of Lebanon, Or.; Mrs. Millie Chambers, of Butte, Mont.; Mrs. W. M. Tower, Mrs. James Reiley, and Mrs. W. M. Copley, of this city.

MISS DE GRAFF ON WAT HOME.—Miss Grace De Graf, principal of the Kenton School, who was one of the first to leave for the coast, is now on her way back to Portland, according to information received by her brother, C. W. De Graf, 490 Magnolia avenue. He expects her to reach Portland by January 31, unless she stays over in Chicago. She was believed to have reached Chicago yesterday on her way west.

SUBV. AFTER SUNDAY COSTS $25.—C. H. Hanson, arrested for violation of game laws, received a fine of $25 yesterday in Judge Jones' court. Hanson was arrested for shooting a deer on Saturday. Another hunter was fined $100 recently by Judge Dayton for having in his possession more than the bag limit of ducks and geese along the waterfront of the city.

MIRIAM D. CLARK DIED.—Miriam Doane Clark, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest F. Clark, of 114 West Folk street, St. Johns, died on Thursday, January 27, at the home of her parents.
