BRANDEIS IS NAMED TO SUCCEED LAMAR

Wilson Selects Boston Lawyer to Fill Vacancy on Supreme Court Bench.

OFFICIALS ARE SURPRISED

Name Not Previously Even Considered Publicly in Connection With Place, but Once Mentioned as Cabinet Possibility.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—President Wilson today sent to the Senate the nomination of Louis D. Brandels, lawyer, of Boston, to be Associate Justice of the Supreme Court in succession to the late Justice Lamar. The nomination was a complete surprise in official circles. Mr. Brandels name had not been received.

not been mentioned publicly in con-bection with the place.

Air. Brandeis has been in the public eye for some years as a prolific writer on economic topics and for his connec-tion with labor and trust legislation.

He attraited some prominence six years He attained some prominence eix years age as attorney for the interests which ago as attorney for the interests which sought the removal from office of Secretary Bullinger in the noted Pinchot-Ballinger controversy. He was counsel later on for the shippers who opposed the general increases in freight rates before the Interstate Commerce Commission, and during the same period he was at the forefront of those who were demanding an investigation of the financial affairs of the New Haven Railroad.

Mr. Brandels represented the Oregon Industrial Welfare Commission last year in the case of O'Hara vs. Stettler, in the United States Supreme Court, giving the oral argument and preparing one of the briefs. The case is still pending in the court. Several years ago Judge Brandels appeared before the Supreme Court in the same capacity in the interest of the Oregon 10-hour law. In this case he appeared as counsel for Illinois and Ohio as well. He was, in 1919, chairman of the board of arbitration which settled the board of arbitration which settled the corrections of the board of arbitration which settled the board of arbitration which settled the board of the board of arbitration which settled the board of the boa is pointed out that the appoint ment of Mr. Brandels gives Massa-chusetts and New England two rep-resentatives on the court.

It is also declared by Democrats that Mr. Brandels does not belong to and is not a member of their party. They assert they were assured that a real bona fide Democrat would be named to the place made vacant by the death of Associate Justice Lamar, of Georgia. Both Democrats and Republicans assert that as a matter of fact Mr. Brandels is socialistic in his views; that if he should be permitted to go on the bench there would be an interpretation of constitutional questions which would strike at the foundation of the Government.

of constitutional questions which would strike at the foundation of the Government.

Added to the doubt of Mr. Brandeis' democracy is the irritation caused by Mr. Wilson's failure to consult members of the judiciary committee and Democratic leaders in advance of the appointment. In the past the usual course has been for the President to make up his mind and then sound the chairman and members of the judiciary committee. Nothing of the kind was done.

Republicans see in the nomination of Mr. Brandeis a bid to the Jewish, proceedings of the President made up his Cabinet he slated the Boston lawyer for the office of Attorney-General. Opposition of business men resulted in a decision not to name him.

It is evident that the nomination of Mr. Brandeis will remain for a long time in the judiciary committee.

300 LONG OVERDUE

Grave Fears Are Felt in London for Appam From African West Coast.

DISABLED LIFEBOAT FOUND

New Field, or Mine in Bay of Biscay Offered as Theory in Connection With Silence.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Fears for 300 Perstans, 166 of whom were passengers and 134 in the crew of the British steamer Appam, are great here, as the vessel has not been heard from since January 15, four days after leaving Dakar for Plymouth. The trip ordinarily requires only ten days.

A dispatch from Hull to Lloyds says that the British steamer Tregantle reports having passed at sea January 16 a lifeboat with the name Appam painted on the stern and the bow knocked away.

The Appam is many days overdue on the ten-day trip from Dakar, Senegal, West Africa, for Flymouth, A report from Lisbon recently announced that mines had been discovered in the Bay of Biscay. The Appam was of 7781 tons gross. She was owned by the British & African Steamship Navigation Company.

Submarine Is Suspected.

Since the disappearance of the Waratah in 1909 nothing has so mystified shipping circles as the vanishing of the Appam, the crack boat of the Elder Dempster line.

Shipping men, as a possible explanation of the Appam's disappearance, tentatively broach the theory of German submarines, shut out from the Mediterranean, operating off the West Coast of Africa, as well as one of Germany's mines in the Bay of Biscay.

The Appam called at all ports on the West Coast of Africa, picking up officials coming home on furlough. These formed a considerable portion of her passenger list.

Colonial Officials Aboard.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—"I think that for us the war is only beginning," said David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, in an interview today with the London correspondent of the Milan Secolo, "but I am absolutely confident of victory, because, although we all have made mistakes in the past, England and her allies are now taking counsel together and will be stronger, because they are united.

"By next Spring we shall have for the first time more munitions than the enemy, and our superiority in men is unquestioned. Besides this, Germany's financial position is growing worse daily."

Colonial Officials Abourd.

Among the passengers booked to sail on the Appam were Sir Edward and Lady Mer-weather and their son, Frederick Seton James, acting Colonial Secretary and closely identified with Colonial administrative affairs in Africa, and Francis Charles Feller, who was appointed chief commissioner of Ashantin 1905, and Mrs. Fuller.

Arrivals on a later liner say that there were 200 passengers on the Appam when she left Dakar.
