Quait and Smaller Birds Found Dead in Large Lumbers.

Chinese pheasants, Oregon's fitest ame birds, weathered the recent game birds, weathered the recent storms much better than the qual and the song birds, according to reports that have come to State Games Warden building. Pheasants that perished in most cases were lost because halls of neave and ion accumulated on their tails so they could not excape from wild animal that preved upon them. Qual were more easily chilled, how-ever, and this was also the case of the small birds of many varieties, which were found doad in large num-bers in many parts of the state.
